May Bird Count Set; Volunteers Being Sought

The annual countywide May Bird Count, sponsored by the Maryland Ornithological Society (MOS), will be held in Garrett County on Saturday, May 11, during the entire 24-hour period (midnight to midnight). Birds may be counted during any portion of the count period and in any part of the county, according to local count coordinator Fran Pope, who asks that willing volunteers contact her as soon as possible (see below).

"Feeder watchers" are welcome, as are others who may wish to count birds at a favorite spot. Volunteers must let the count coordinator know where they will be counting in order to assure the best coverage of the county and avoid duplication of effort.

The theme for this year's May Count is the "Maryland Atlas Project" (MAP), a five-year MOS project which is documenting the breeding birds of Maryland (profiled in last week's issue). This year's May Count participants will be asked to take a few extra moments to note bird behavior which might indicate breeding status. It is important that volunteers obtain a list of these behaviors, their meaning, and proper coding procedures from Pope prior to the count date.

Persons interested in learning more about the MAP, or in participating in the project, may attend a training session for Atlas volunteers set for 7 p.m. this coming Wednesday, May 8, in the Center for Adventuresports and Outdoor Studies (CAOS) facility at Garrett Community College. Walter Ellison, the state Atlas coordinator, will be on hand for a presentation and question-and-answer session.

To receive further information on the May Count and/or a count form prior to the May 11 count date, persons may call Pope at 301-334-4908 prior to May 8, or e-mail her through Friday afternoon, May 10, at fpope@gcnetmail.net. Pope can also provide details on the Atlas project, for she also serves as Garrett County's MAP coordinator.

Results of the May Count will appear in Maryland Birdlife, a publication of the Maryland Ornithological Society.

DEMURELY HIDING ITS YELLOW BELLY, a yellow-bellied sapsucker such as this would be a true "catch" for participants in the upcoming May Bird Count, which will take place across Garrett County on Saturday, May 11. Once fairly common to the county, sightings of the yellow-bellied sapsucker have been extremely rare over the past 50 years. Volunteers for annual 24-hour counts document the dozens of bird species making their home on the mountaintop this spring. To receive a May Bird Count form, persons may contact count coordinator Fran Pope at 301-334-4908 or via e-mail at fpope@gcnetmail.net. Pope can also provide details on volunteer opportunities with the five-year Maryland Atlas Project, which seeks to document the breeding birds of Maryland. An information and training session for MAP volunteers will take place beginning at 7 p.m. this coming Wednesday, May 8, at the Center for Adventuresports and Outdoor Education, located at 961 Mosser Road, on the far eastern end of the McHenry campus of Garrett Community College. ## Allegheny Energy, Union Agree To Tentative Bargain

Allegheny Energy and the Utility Workers Union of America (UWUA) System Local 102 have announced tentative agreement on a new five- year contract that would cover the union's 1,165 members.

"We believe that we have reached a fair agreement that meets the needs of our employees and our company," said Allegheny Energy chief negotiator Robert Summers. "This agreement demonstrates our continuing commitment to valuing our employees and providing reliable, low-cost energy with industry-leading service to our customers."

UWUA Local 102 president William J. Sterner concurred, adding, "The Local 102 Negotiating Committee believes that this tentative agreement accomplishes many of the goals the union membership had set. After many months of intense bargaining, this agreement has good provisions to enable both parties to solve long-standing problems."

The UWUA Local executive board members from four states will meet to review and approve the agreement. Membership ratification meetings will take place over the next several weeks.

Wildflower Walk To Take Place In Lostland Run

A guided wildflower walk through the Lostland Run area of Potomac State Forest is slated to get under way this Sunday, May 5. Interested persons are asked to meet at 2 p.m. at the Potomac Resource Center, located at 1431 Potomac Camp Road.

The hike will be led by Kevin Dodge, director of the Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology Program at Garrett Community College, who will identify wildflowers, speak about their habitat and ecology, and provide clues on how to remember them. For additional information, persons may call the Herrington Manor State Park office at 301-334-9180.

Jews For Jesus Evangelist To Speak At PVBC

Larry Dubin, an evangelist for the Jews for Jesus, will be speaking at Pleasant View Baptist Church on Sunday, May 5, at 10:15 a.m. with a question and answer session. There will be no admission charge.

Before joining the Jews for Jesus, Dubin received his bachelor of business administration degree from the University of New Mexico and joined the U.S. Navy. He then pursued his training at Dallas Theological Seminary and participated in its Summer Witnessing Campaign in 1998. He joined staff and participated in their 99 campaign as well. He now serves with the organization's Washington, D.C., branch.

The Jews for Jesus mission statement is "to make the Messiahship of Jesus an unavoidable issue to our Jewish people world-wide," said Dubin. The high profile group draws fire from some critics who say that it is disrespectful to single out Jewish people for evangelism.

"We believe that everyone needs Jesus and while we have been accused of 'targeting' our fellow Jews, we respectfully disagree," he said. "If the Bible is true, and Jesus is the only way to be reconciled to God, then what kind of Jews would we be if we didn't tell our own people about him?"

Jews for Jesus has permanent branches in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago, New York City, Washington, D.C., and Fort Lauderdale, as well as more than 82 chapters spanning 34 states. The group's international branches include Tel Aviv, London, Paris, and Moscow.

Persons wanting more information may call the church at 301-334-8515.

Savage Nursery Celebrates 25 Years Of Service

Savage Nursery, located west of Oakland along Route 39, will open for service on May 1, 2002, marking the 25th season Ken and Nancy Savage have been in business, providing quality vegetable plants and flowers to the community.

Walter Savage originally established Savage Nursery in 1945 to support his family during the rocky post-Depression years. The business was then passed on to his son, Stanley Savage. After Stanley's death, his son Ken assumed management and ownership of the business. Three years ago, Ken and Nancy began to train the fourth generation, when their daughter Kim began to work with them.

Savage Nursery has combated many trials that might have been fatal to any other business. On April 15, 1986, the flue of their largest greenhouse furnace caught fire. Half of the house was completely destroyed, and the glass in the remainder of the house shattered. All of their promising seedlings were lost.

Then in 1999, the Savages again lost their most of their inventory because of two devastating blows. The first was in March, when their furnace stopped functioning in the middle of the night and most of their product was frozen. Then in May of that same year, there was a water use ban and the Savages were not able to water what was left of their product.

When the economy of Garrett County was affected by the loss of businesses, many nurseries sprang up in the area. Savage Nursery has continued to thrive, despite the increased competition. The Savages pride themselves on offering three generations of expertise and homegrown hospitality.

To celebrate 25 years in business, the Savages will be giving a free six-pack of the flower of your choice with any order from May 6 to May 10. The Savages would also like to thank their loyal customers for so many years of patronage and friendship.

Savage Nursery is open from 8 a.m. until 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and 1 to 6 p.m. on Sunday.

Persons having questions or seeking advice on planting or tending flowers or plants may call Ken or Nancy at 301-334-3690.

GCMH RECOGNIZES NATIONAL MEDICAL LABORATORY WEEK — National Medical Laboratory Week is one week set aside to recognize the approximately 265,000 medical laboratory professionals and 15,000 board certified pathologists who perform and interpret medical laboratory tests. More than 10 billion laboratory tests are performed in the United States each year. "One reason for an increasing demand on medical laboratory testing is the stronger emphasis on preventive medicine, including early detection and diagnosis of disease," said Joyce Nutter, Garrett County Memorial Hospital director of laboratory services. "Generally, the earlier a condition is detected, the greater the likelihood of a cure. Early detection also means patients can help prevent a condition with changes in diet and lifestyle." The lab performs approximately 450,000 tests annually. "They have to be painstakingly meticulous in performing their jobs to provide dependable answers to our patient's family physicians," said Donald Battista, GCMH president and CEO. ## THE HOMEMAKERS CORNER

by Joan Schultz
Public Relations Chairperson

Spring is here and it is time for members of the Garrett Association of Family and Community Education Inc. (GAFCE) and Homemakers clubs to celebrate their Annual Achievement Day. The event will be held at the Deer Park Community Center on May 16, 2002.

Members will be recognized for years of service as well as perfect attendance, and the "Homemaker of the Year" will be announced. Registration will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 10 a.m. Registration fee is $3, and each member is asked to bring a covered dish, a place setting, and a craft to display. Crafts will be shown and judged. A plant exchange will also be held. Each club is responsible for a table centerpiece.

The program will begin at 10 a.m. Reverend John Grant, noted Garrett County historian, will be the guest speaker. All are welcome.

FCE Homemakers clubs are busy and active all year long. During the year members have supported community organizations such as the Dove Center and the House of Hope with donations of personal care items, household supplies, and non-perishable food. Children's books were collected and donated to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, and quilts were sewn and sent to children in need.

Every spring, members can be seen planting and weeding the area around the "Welcome To Garrett County" signs, and artistic members have made two trips to the Discovery Center to decorate the bulletin board. Members also play an active role in making the Garrett County Fair such a success.

Club meetings are interesting and informative. Programs have covered everything from Alzheimer's disease to food irradiation. Presently, members are working with Lighthouse, the Extension Office, the Civic Club of Oakland, and the town of Oakland on the Garrett County Garden and Flower Show scheduled for May 4.

Guests and new members are always welcome. For a schedule of meeting days and times, persons may call Joan Schultz at 301-387-9870 or Ann Mitter at 301-359-0527.

SMS Students Invest In Own Future, Stocks

Students in Helen Stephens' sixth grade class at Southern Middle School have been given the chance to earn money toward the purchase of stocks, which they may redeem when they turn 18 and graduate from high school. This program, Stocks in the Future, reinforces basic mathematic and English skills, and explores investment fundamentals and business concepts through the combination of in-class exercises and work on the Internet.

Students can earn up to $80 per year to invest in pre-designated stocks, Coca-Cola Company, Sony Corporation, Time-Warner/AOL, Toys R Us, and Walt Disney Company. This program is designed to reinforce and challenge the students' math, reading, writing, research, critical thinking, presentation, and computer skills.

Stocks in the Future is a nonprofit organization formed in 2000. In alliance with the Johns Hopkins Center for Strategic Organization of Schools, the program has been introduced in several schools in Maryland and two in Pennsylvania.

The students earn $1 for each full week's attendance at school, and each quarter grading period they may earn $2 for improving their math or English grades or earn $3 for maintaining an A.

Garrett County History Course Slated In May

Garrett County History, a series of four classes which includes such topics as early history, industrial development, transportation growth, and the development of the area, will be held on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 1 until 2:30 p.m. beginning on May 14 and ending on May 23 at the Grantsville Outreach Center. Featured speakers include Al Feldstein, Maxine Broadwater, Robert Bantz, and Robert Boal.

The first session will feature Feldstein, a regional historian and author from LaVale. His presentation will be a narrated slide show titled "A Postcard History of Garrett County." This show is based upon old postcards illustrating the history of towns, geography, historical sites, and landmarks throughout the county.

Broadwater, a retired genealogist and historian of the Grantsville Library, will present the second session. She is the niece of the late Leo J. Beachy, nationally known photographer whose photographs portray turn-of-the-century rural life depicting his love of nature, people, and children. The photographs have been displayed in the Washington Post, Life, Baltimore Sun, and the Republican. Broadwater will share a slide presentation of Appalachia and will have accompanying memorabilia.

Feldstein will return for the third session to present a slide show titled "An Overview of North Branch Coal Towns and Development," which will focus on several of the coal mining communities of the Upper North Branch, as well as a brief depiction of the Georges Creek coal mining region. A general overview of Garrett County's geographical, transportation, and historical landmarks will be incorporated for those in attendance who are not familiar with the area.

The final session will feature Bantz and Boal. Bantz is a retired development engineer from the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company and has been photographing and plotting the Nemacolin, Washington, Braddock, and Colonial Trail since his retirement in 1998. His presentation will consist of a brief overview of the historical aspects of the trail and a slide presentation showing the trail as it exists 250 years later.

Boal, a retired history teacher from Southern High School and president of the Garrett County Historical Society, will discuss the arrival of the B&O Railroad in southern Garrett County and the development of resort hotels in Deer Park, Oakland, and Mountain Lake Park.

At the request of some of the presenters, their fee will be donated to the Grantsville Library building fund. For additional information or to register, persons may contact Terry Beachy at the Grantsville Outreach Center at 301-895-3368.

Horse Board Awards $20,000 To Projects; Saddle Tramps Get $500

Riding lessons and camps for children, horse care education for new horse owners, and materials for new horse facilities are among the projects funded by the Maryland Horse Industry Board through grants totaling $20,000 awarded to 27 horse groups throughout the state. Locally, the Saddle Tramps 4-H Club will receive $500. The members will use the funding to attend state competition.

"The horse industry is a growing and increasingly valuable part of Maryland's agricultural economy, and grants are one way we can help support local equine activities," said Hagner R. Mister, secretary of the Maryland Department of Agriculture. "These small grants really help to get more people involved in equestrian activities and further develop the industry.

The horse board received 72 applications, which it evaluated for value to the industry, degree of industry promotion, size and scope of the activity, financial need, and quality of the written presentation. The grants awarded ranged from $300 to $1,000. Three other 4-H groups and two 4-H centers also received funding.

The board was established in 1998 to promote and develop the horse industry, according to the MDA. General funds from the state funded the first two years of the grant program.

During the 2002 Legislative Session, the General Assembly passed HB 467, an assessment on commercial equine feed, which will provide an ongoing source of funds to promote the horse industry. The refundable $2 per ton assessment on feed will cost the horse owner about $3 per horse per year and will fund this grant program, as well as additional horse industry promotions, research, and outreach activities undertaken by the Maryland Horse Industry Board.

Thunderstorms Continue To Bring Moisture

Thundershowers fell upon Maryland over the weekend, delivering replenishing moisture to the soil. Rainfall amounts last week ranged from .8 inches in Talbot County to 2.1 inches in Somerset County. Consequently, topsoil moisture rated in adequate supply rose 10 percent from the previous week, and 6 percent is now rated surplus. Subsoil moisture rated in adequate supply rose 13 percent from the previous week, and 1 percent is in surplus supply. This increase in soil moisture will help spring crop establishment and growth.

The recent rain also benefitted pastureland and hay crops. Pasture conditions are rated 14 percent excellent, 44 percent good, 35 percent fair, 6 percent poor, and 1 percent very poor. Hay supplies are rated 4 percent surplus, 80 percent adequate, 8 percent short, and 8 percent very short.

Despite wet conditions, farmers had 5.2 days suitable for field work last week to continue planting activities. Corn is 40 percent planted, 24 percent ahead of last year at this time, and 22 percent ahead of the five-year average. Planting for vegetables such as cucumbers, green peas, snap beans, sweet corn, tomatoes, and cantaloupes are all running ahead of schedule.

LIBRARY NEWS

In January, the library system lost all of its data for the conversion to an automated system. The staff is are now re-entering that data. The library will be open the regular patron hours of Monday, 2-8, Tuesday, 2-5:30, Wednesday, 2-8, Thursday, 2-5:30, and Saturday, 9-2. With the exception of Friendsville Head Start, the library and staff will not be available at any other time. They hope to finish cataloging Friendsville's collection by the end of the summer and to begin programs for birth to 5 and senior citizens in the fall.

The Race to Read Spring and Summer Reading Program will continue until the end of August. Although special programs are not planned for this summer, books, color sheets, stickers, and reading logs are available. The library also has several special activity areas set up for all children, including a race track and two play mats.

Erin Frazee was the first to complete her reading log.

Handy Checklist Helps Ensure A Fun, Trouble-Free Vacation

Ask any tow truck operator along an Interstate highway or in a resort area and he'll agree, "Year after year, car trouble forces vacationers back home ahead of schedule with their carefully prepared budgets blown sky high."

Car trouble usually means more than just a repair bill, reminds the Car Care Council. It can involve towing charges, lodging, and possibly a rental car. Add to that the cost of extra phone calls, meals, missed flights and general inconvenience, and you've got an expensive ordeal.

This scenario can be avoided with a pre-vacation inspection performed by a qualified automotive technician. This "physical" for your automobile should address the following systems:

- Cooling
- Braking
- Emission control
- Steering/suspension
- Fuel
- Electrical and ignition

In addition, the tech should evaluate engine performance, tires/wheels, A.C./heater/defroster, instruments/gauges, windshield wipers, horns/lights/mirrors, seat belts and the car's body, inside and out. Not only can a pre-trip inspection help reduce chances of costly and possibly dangerous road trouble, it also provides an opportunity to have repairs made at home, with one's own technician who knows the vehicle.

Especially important, it provides peace of mind. While no inspection can guarantee a car's performance, it's gratifying to know the proper precautions for a safe trip were taken.

For motorists who find themselves staying closer to home, the Council recommends a yearly evaluation performed on your car. This can help cut repair costs, by discovering a worn component before it creates major problems. It can also improve your car's trade-in/resale value. Add to that better handling, dependability and driving enjoyment and you'll agree that an annual inspection can save you money down the road.

Car Care Council offers a free inspection guide. To order your copy, send a stamped, self addressed envelope to the Car Care Council , Department SPE02-XI, 42 Park Drive, Port Clinton, OH, 43452.

Checking Fluid Levels Requires Just Minutes

Three useful things you can do in five minutes or less:

1. Hard boil an egg
2. Read this article
3. Check all the fluids under the hood of your car.

The third one may be the most valuable five minutes of your day considering that finding just one fluid, such as brake fluid or power steering fluid, before it gets too low could help prevent an accident. Catching low anti-freeze-coolant can save your engine and a lot of money. Topping off windshield washer fluid before it's too low can be the difference between not seeing an accident and avoiding it.

Some of these, brake fluid, anti-freeze-coolant and windshield washer solvent levels are easy to see, says the Car Care Council. They're in translucent reservoirs. Others, such as the engine oil, transmission and power steering fluid, are checked with dipsticks. As noted in the owner's manual, reminds the Council, overfilling can be counter-productive, especially in the case of engine oil and transmission fluid. Too much of these fluids build up pressure, which can damage a seal.

Overfilling can be due to an incorrect reading of the dipstick. If it is not inserted all the way, says the Council, it will show a low oil or fluid level. Topping off could cause overfilling. Follow instructions in the vehicle owner's manual. Pull the dipstick, wipe it dry with a clean towel and re-insert it all the way. Another tip: don't check the oil immediately after shutting off the engine. That also can cause a low reading. Let the engine sit, shut off, for about five minutes to be sure all of the oil at the top of the engine has drained down into the crankcase.

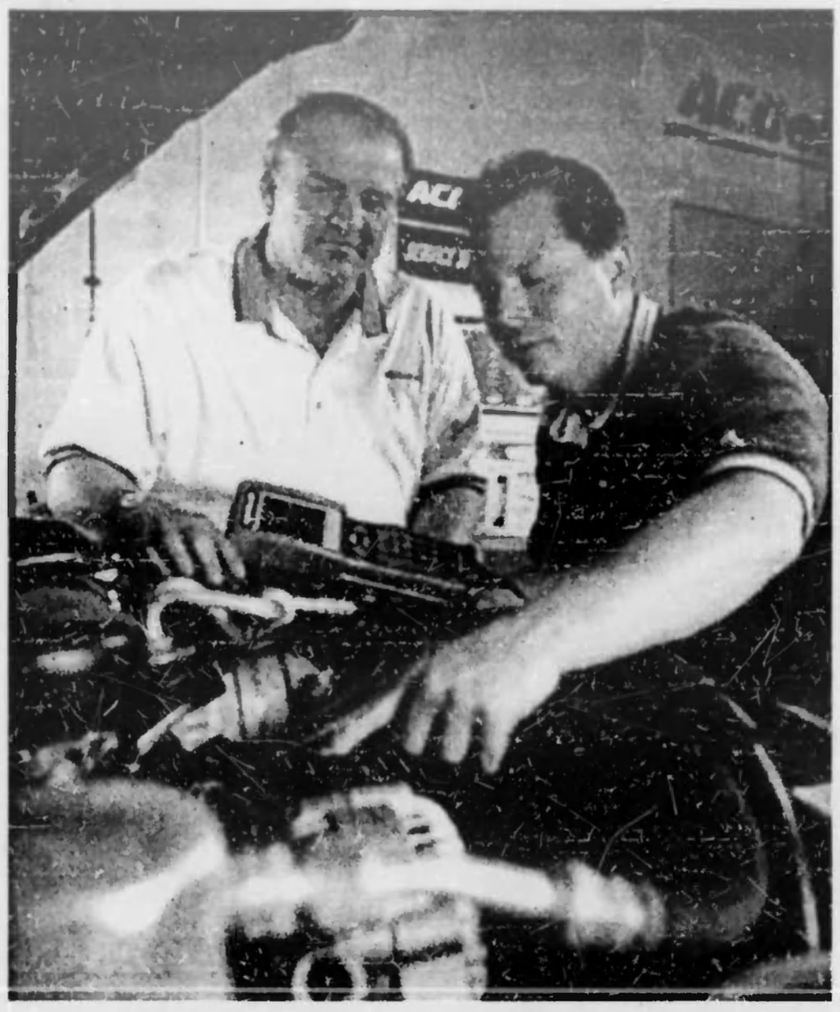
An Ounce Of Prevention Worth A Pound Of Cure

Since Ben Franklin's historic almanac was written long before the automobile was invented, you likely won't find a copy in your glove compartment or at your local service station. But his adage "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" is never truer than with your vehicle.

Contrary to what much of the general public thinks, preventive maintenance on your vehicle is more than just changing the oil and rotating the tires.

Yes, oil and tires need to be checked regularly. But so do batteries, brakes, engines, emissions systems, belts and hoses, heating, fuel systems, lights, fluids, and steering and suspension systems. A recent Car Care Council study showed that the most common problems were inadequate cooling system protection, low tire pressure, low or dirty oil, filthy air filters, and low, burnt or dirty transmission fluid. And, according to the study, roughly 30% of all vehicles on the road need some brake work.

With spring approaching, it's important to make sure the air conditioning is working and the coolant and radiator are in good shape. Oil changes, tire checks, brake inspections, and suspension checks are year-round concerns.



Most qualified service centers today use electronic diagnostic equipment to help keep your vehicle in good running condition.

"Now is the time to make sure your vehicle is getting the parts and services it needs from a professionally trained technician," ACDelco Brand Manager Geraldine Ford-Brown said, "and ACDelco has parts for whatever you drive."

A good guide to preventive maintenance is the owner's manual of the vehicle. It provides a maintenance schedule and indicates how often work is needed and the recommended service intervals.

Naturally, common sense plays a big role in the care of your vehicle; much depends on the time of the year and the age and condition of your vehicle.

"Just because there are 100,000 mile intervals on new car systems or components doesn't mean maintenance isn't needed," said Sue Christopherson, manager of ACDelco Service Training, U.S.

A five-year-old vehicle may need new belts and hoses even though it hasn't reached the recommended mileage for changing those parts. Likewise, air filters and spark plug wires should be inspected, and battery and cable connectors should be cleaned and tightened regularly even though the parts themselves may not need to be replaced.

Unless you feel qualified to perform these tasks on your own vehicle, consider taking your vehicle to a service center for regular checkups and maintenance. When searching for a service center, consider these tips:

•Ask for the qualifications and credentials of the technicians at the service center.

•Look for a shop where the technicians frequently attend training and display ASE certification. They are more likely to be up to speed on correct repair procedures for today's vehicles.

•Look for a shop that is well organized with well-informed employees and top-notch service.

•Some service centers provide check lanes for motorists to bring in their cars for a general inspection. Take advantage of these free diagnostic services.

•Look for technicians who use simple language, not fancy jargon and terminology, when discussing your vehicle.

Is Your Car Ready For Summer?

Some preparation during the spring months will help ensure that your summer driving plans go smoothly, say the experts at the nonprofit National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE). The following tips are from ASE:

•Read the owner's manual and follow the manufacturer's recommended service schedules.

•Some spring cleaning is a good start. Take out the snow shovel, gloves, and winter boots and store them 'til next season. Less weight means better gasoline mileage. Wash, thoroughly rinse, and wax your vehicle to remove winter's grime and protect your vehicle's finish from summer's heat and glare.

•Have hard starts, rough idling, stalling, etc. corrected before hot weather sets in.

•Flush and refill the radiator according to the service manual's recommendations. The level, condition, and concentration of the coolant should be checked periodically. Let the engine cool down before removing the radiator cap.

•If you are not a do-it-yourselfer, look for repair facilities that employ ASE-certified automotive technicians. Such shops often display the blue and white ASE sign.

•The tightness and condition of all belts, clamps, and hoses should be checked by a qualified auto technician.

•A marginally operating air conditioner system should be serviced by a qualified technician.

•Change the oil and oil filter as specified in your owner's manual. Properly dispose of used oil. Replace other filters (air, fuel, PCV, etc.) as recommended. Dusty conditions, heavy towing loads, or lots of stop-and-go driving may necessitate more frequent oil and filter changes.

•Check the pressure and condition of tires, including the spare. Let tires "cool down" before checking air pressure.

•Inspect all lights and bulbs; replace burned out bulbs. Replace worn wiper blades.

For a free brochure with tips on getting your vehicle ready for summer, send a self-addressed, stamped business-sized envelope to ASE Summer Brochure, Dept. MC-102, 101 Blue Seal Dr., S.E., Suite 101, Leesburg, VA 20175. Or visit www.asecert.org for these tips and more information.

The National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE) was founded in 1972 to improve the quality of automotive service and repair through the voluntary testing and certification of automotive technicians. ASE-certified technicians wear the blue and white ASE insignia and carry credentials listing their exact area(s) of certification.

Are You Leaving Rubber On The Road?

It's not difficult to tell which of these tires has left rubber on the road.

Compare your odometer readings with highway mileage markers before and after you've installed new tires and you'll see a difference. The new ones, with larger circumference, cover a slightly longer distance per revolution. That excuse may not hold water with the trooper who says you're going faster than your speedometer indicates.

The weight and dimensions of a tire change because the rubber wears away, accumulating an invisible pile at the side of the road, says the Car Care Council. Some of this rubber was scrubbed off because the wheels are out of alignment. (Remember how you can wear out a pencil eraser with the back and forth motion on paper?)

Imagine an average car, driven about 12,000 miles a year, going down the road with wheels misaligned by just 0.17 inches. The driver constantly tugs at the wheel to keep the car going straight down the road. In effect, the tires are being dragging sideways for the equivalent of 68 miles over the course of a year. This condition, along with underinflation, increases rolling resistance. End result, tires are wasted away and fuel economy plummets as your gas goes out the exhaust.

The solution: keep tires properly inflated and wheels aligned and balanced. As with so many services, wheel alignment has become a computerized business. Sophisticated equipment calculates the vehicle's measurements and compares this information with the original equipment specifications from the vehicle manufacturer.

The technician then makes necessary adjustments and, if necessary, replaces worn components. Some front wheel drive cars have adjustable rear wheels, which also may need alignment.

How do you know if your tires are wearing too quickly or unevenly? Steering irregularities, such as pulling in one direction or wandering, indicate either one tire underinflated or wheels misaligned. Your alignment or tire expert can recognize and diagnose abnormal tread wear patterns, says the Council. Determining and correcting the cause of abnormal wear can save a lot of money and go a long way toward improving the handling of the vehicle.

And it cuts down on the amount of rubber you'll leave on the road.

Lights And Wipers Easy To Check, Essential To Maintain

After September 11, everything changed, including travel. With more folks opting for road trips over air travel this vacation season, the highways could be packed. This means it's going to be especially important for motorists to see and be seen. Two simple checks that will increase your chances of avoiding a vision-related crash involve wipers and lighting.

WIPERS - During the most recent National Car Care Month vehicle check lanes, 21% of the participants had wipers that smeared, streaked or chattered across their windshields. Although climates vary, wipers generally need replacing every six months. An easy reminder is to change wiper blades in the spring and fall when you change your clock. Be sure the windshield washers are working properly, too, and keep the reservoir filled with solvent.

LIGHTING - Another important pre-trip check should be exterior and interior lighting. Vehicle check lanes revealed an over-all failure rate of over 25% in the lighting category. The Car Care Council reminds motorists to check their lights monthly.

Other suggestions from the Council include turning on headlights both day and night. This helps define your car's position on the road, and its distance from other drivers.

Remember, your lights are the only way you have to communicate with other drivers. When the lighting is defective, the other motorists may never see the message that you intend to stop or turn. Either way, the end result could be disastrous.

Car Care Council

Hand signals are one way to communicate, but to really send a message to other motorists, turn signals that function correctly can't be beat.

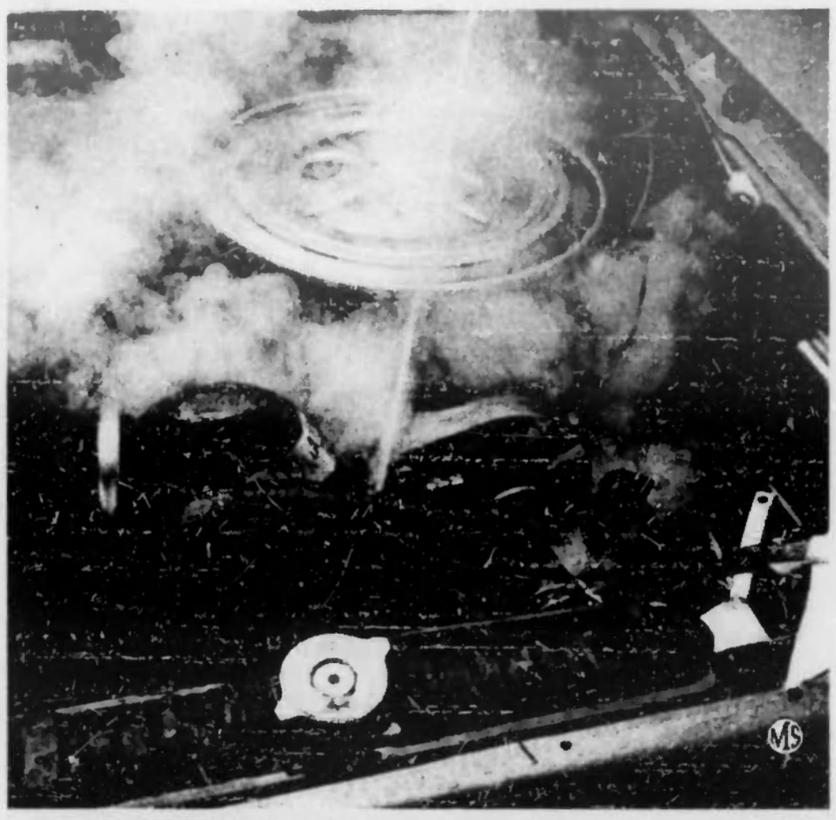
How To Take The Stress Off Of Your Cooling System

(MS) — The automotive cooling system works hard year-round. However, during the summer months, when many car owners take a driving vacation to relax, it can get stressed out.

The system is subjected to the strains of extra baggage, long hours, highway speeds, stop-and-go city driving, and possibly mountainous excursions.

To relieve stress and strain on the cooling system, Gates Rubber Company engineers recommend that motorists perform three simple checks before packing the family car.



THE INCONVENIENCE of a cooling system failure will abruptly change your motoring vacation itinerary. The Gates Rubber Company suggests an engine tune-up, and a complete cooling system inspection before the summer driving season. Ask your service technician to check for the proper amount of liquid coolant and to replace any engine hoses that are four years old.

CHECK THE COOLANT LEVEL

First, check the level of coolant in the see-through plastic recovery tank located in the engine compartment. There are two lines marked on the tank. The top line is typically marked "full hot" or "maximum." The bottom line indicates "full cold" or "minimum."

If you see that the coolant level is below the appropriate line when the engine is hot or cold, add equal amounts of water and the recommended type of antifreeze to the recovery tank to bring the coolant up to the proper level.

A cooling system that circulates the required amount of coolant will help the engine run efficiently and absorb excess heat. If the coolant level is low after repeated fillings, have a service technician inspect the entire system for leaks.

CHECK THE COOLANT HOSES

Second, check the hoses that circulate the liquid coolant to and from the engine.

Gates engineers say the best way to check coolant hoses for potential failure is to squeeze them near the clamps or connectors when the engine is cool. Use your fingers and thumb to check for weaknesses, not the whole hand. Failure from electrochemical degredations (ECD) occurs within two inches of the ends of the hose, not in the middle.

ECD causes microcracks in the hose tube, allowing the coolant to attack and weaken the hose reinforcement. Accelerated by high heat and flexing, the hose can develop a pinhole leak or rupture under normal pressure. In most cases, if the hose ends are soft and have a "mushy" feel, the hose is under attack by ECD and it should be replaced immediately.

The upper radiator and bypass hoses are very susceptible to failure from ECD. To be safe, Gates recommends that coolant hoses be replaced every four years.

CHECK THE THERMOSTAT

Third, check the thermostat to ensure that it is properly controlling the coolant flow in and around the engine. Usually mounted on the engine block at a coolant hose connection, an open thermostat sends hot coolant through the upper hose to the radiator where it is cooled before being directed back to the engine. A closed thermostat sends the coolant to the water pump via the bypass system, then back to the engine.

When the thermostat is stuck in the open position, the engine cannot reach its optimum operating temperature because coolant immediately flows to the radiator. If the thermostat is stuck closed, coolant is prevented from reaching the radiator, causing the engine to overheat. Overheating is especially damaging to the engine.

Gates engineers recommend a routine inspection of the cooling system's thermostat, along with the belts and hoses, at least every six months.

The most common method for checking the thermostat is to allow the engine to run for 15 minutes. Then, feel the upper radiator hose with a gloved hand. If the hose does not feel warm, it means the thermostat is not opening as it should and it should be replaced immediately by a service technician.

Take A Cooling System Quiz

Your cooling system doesn't ask for much, a little antifrecze, an occasional flush. Check your cooling system savvy with these four multiple-choice questions.

1. For maximum freeze protection antifreeze mixture should be:

(a) half antifreeze and half water; (b) pure antifreeze; (c) 70% antifreeze, 30% water.

2. In the cooling system the thermostat:

(a) controls engine temperature; (b) works the air conditioner; (c) modulates the diodes.

3. A radiator cap is designed to:

(a) keep water from sloshing out of the radiator; (b) keep the cooling system operating at a specified pressure; (c) last indefinitely.

4. A broken drive belt can cause:

(a) overheating; (b) loss of power steering; (c) dead battery.

ANSWERS

1. (C) is correct, although a 50/50 solution is adequate for most climates, protecting to -34 F. Never use pure antifreeze.

2. (A) is correct. A thermostat that allows an engine to run too hot or too cold can damage the engine.

3. (B) is correct. And when replacing the cap, be sure to install the right one for your vehicle. Pressure recommendations vary.

4. Because all three functions are dependent upon drive belt (or belts) all three answers are correct.

Frequently a rebuilt engine is better than the engine originally installed at the factory, thanks to advances in technology. It is dependable, reliable and backed by an excellent warranty.

Keep In Touch While Driving

Many drivers find themselves living out of their cars these days. With commute times increasing and longer, business trips or even family vacations, shouldn't time spent in the car be as enjoyable and as accommodating possible?

That's the thinking behind telematics — the newest "big thing" to hit the automotive community. It is the mobile technology that's making downloading songs while driving, onboard navigation software and onboard Internet service possible.

The word "telematics" comes from the blending of the words "telecommunications" and "informatics," the science of obtaining and transmitting information (derived from the German word for "computer science," informatik).

According to Compuware Corporation, just as the Internet astounded us with its ability to provide information with unprecedented speed, telematics is an emerging technology that promises to "wow" mobile consumers with enhanced in-vehicle safety, navigation and convenience features.

What does telematics make possible? An entire list of features including:

- E-mail, Internet and telephone;
- Television, streaming video and computer games;
- Traffic and navigation information;
- Emergency and safety features, including night vision, forward-collision warning systems and braking by global positioning system;
- Shopping;
- Banking;
- Stock trading.

Safety is the main concern with this technology. According to the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, in-vehicle "distractions" account for up to 25 percent of automotive accidents and that number is steadily climbing.

But no matter what telematics safety regulations are put in effect down the road, it's certain that automakers will not put the brakes on their efforts to find ways to offer the technology — as long as consumers are willing to pay more for productivity tools and luxury toys for their cars.

Washing Can Help Get Your Car In Shape For Summer

(MS) — Now that winter is over, thoughts of fitting into your swimsuit and spring-cleaning come to mind. Why not also tack onto that list some spring cleaning for your car as well ... at a professional car wash? With all the snow, freezing rain and road salt from the last few months, winter has produced some harmful conditions that could affect your car's finish, wheels and overall appearance. And, with the arrival of warm weather, there are a host of new challenges with which to contend.

PROFESSIONAL CAR WASHES can help get your vehicle in shape for summer.

WARMER CLIMATE HAZARDS

Just as road salt in the winter eats at cars, during warmer weather acid rain, falling leaves, dead insects and other airborne debris can also erode auto finishes.

"Acid rain damage can penetrate and etch clear coat finishes, whose protective qualities will then eventually corrode, exposing the paint to many harmful, corrosive elements." explains Mark Thorsby, Executive Director of the International Carwash Association (ICA). "A car with bad acid rain damage could be devalued by up to $1,000 at trade-in or resale time." ICA is a non-profit trade organization representing more than 3,000 car wash owners who operate 12,000 individual car washes around the world.

The best prevention is to keep your car clean by frequenting a professional car wash every ten days and especially immediately following a rainfall. At the car wash, have them apply a polymer-based or similar protective high-gloss wax to further protect the car's finish from such hazards as decaying bugs, bird droppings, tar oil and tree-sap.

GET RID OF THAT MUD

Mud seems to follow hand-in-hand with all the rain spring and summer bring. The overabundance of mud can cause major damage to your vehicle's finish. Clearing out mud from the undercarriage of your car can protect it from rust and body rot around the wheels and door sills. Car washes offer rust inhibitor treatments to remove caked-on mud from your undercarriage, which holds moisture to metal and causes damage, to further protect your car against rust and corrosion from the inside out.

RETAIN YOUR CAR'S VALUE AND APPEARANCE

There are many other reasons to also regularly professionally clean your vehicle besides weather-related hazards. According to the ICA, regular professional washing and waxing will help maintain your car's appearance as well as retain the value of your car.

"Most car owners understand the value of changing motor oil regularly to protect the engine, but if they forget and instead choose to replace the engine, the car could still be as good as new," Thorsby says. "However, a car with oxidized paint and a rusted-out body can never be economically restored. The best prevention is regular washing and waxing at a professional car wash."

Car washes offer simple to extensive operations to suit your needs. For starters, try an exterior-only tunnel wash to automatically provide applied protective waxes, undercarriage treatment and self-serve vacuums. Also consider detailing or custom polishing while at the wash for more extensive procedures. By applying a premium polish and buffing it, you can restore the shine of your car. On the detail side, you can vacuum everything from under the rugs to the trunk, or have the air conditioner vents swabbed.

ENVIRONMENTAL BENEFITS

Not only does regular professional car washing help you retain the value of your vehicle, it is also more beneficial to the environment than driveway washing.

"Professional car washes are gentler to auto finishes than the hose-and-bucket method, and the cleaning solutions we use are specially formulated for clearcoat and other new car finishes," Thorsby says. "Most car owners are surprised to learn that the sponges they use when washing their cars in the driveway hold sand and scratch the car's surface, while the cleaning material we use literally slips out of your fingers when wet."

Thorsby further explains, "And, as an added benefit to the environment, professional car washes use biodegradable cleaning solutions, far less water that do-it-yourselfers and dispose of the waste water according to strict federal and state environmental regulations. On the other hand, waste water run-off from driveway washing flows directly into storm sewers, which take it to lakes and streams, where it can harm fish and wildlife."

Environmental authorities in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey and Pennsylvania are now strongly discouraging the practice of driveway washing. Particular attention is being focused on charity car washes held in parking lots and school yards where potentially damaging waste water isn't usually disposed of properly. To locate a professional car wash near you, visit www.carwashes.com.

Rainy Day Tip

(MS) — If your windshield wipers tend to smear rather than clear, heed the advice offered by the International Car Wash Association (ICA). Professional car washers and technicians know that wipers build up a thin layer of grime — especially after a dry spell. That grime keeps the rubber blade from contacting the glass, which results in smeared windshields and poor visibility.

ICA recommends the following solution: Keep blades clean by wiping them with a paper towel or cloth moistened with rubbing alcohol; even water will do if alcohol is not available. If the wipers are hard to reach when at rest, turn the engine on, activate the wipers, then turn off the ignition; the blades will stop mid-windshield where you can reach them. If you are caught in a rainstorm, pull off to a safe spot before attempting this quick fix. Best results are achieved when you replace wipers every four to six months. To locate a professional car wash near you visit www.carwashes.com.

Changing One's Own Car Oil Is Relatively Easy

All vehicles require periodic oil changes, although many people shy away from the job believing it could be too difficult to tackle themselves. Yet changing your own oil has many benefits: you get the satisfaction of doing an important job; you pick your own time to do it which won't tie up your car all day; you'll know that the job was done right and save money in the process.

In case you've never changed your oil before, here's a step-by-step runthrough, courtesy of Kendall Motor Oil.

GETTING STARTED

1. Consult your owner's manual to find out how many quarts of oil are needed and the "weight" of motor oil recommended.

2. Get a new oil filter for the make, model and year of your car. Follow manufacturer's instructions carefully on how to thread and mount filter.

3. You'll need an oil filter wrench to remove the old filter, and a wrench to fit your car's oil drain plug.

4. Find a low pan that will fit under your car to catch draining oil.

FIVE EASY STEPS

1. Position the car in a driveway or similar safe and convenient location. Run engine up to operating temperature, then turn off. Position chocks against wheels to prevent car from rolling.

2. Place drain pan under car beneath oil filter. Remove old filter with filter wrench. Let oil from old filter drip in pan. Note: turn oil filter counter-clockwise when removing with filter wrench.

3. Place drain pan under oil pan drain plug. (Note: The drain plug is located on the oil pan, which is lowest part of engine under car. Be careful not to loosen transmission drain plug, which is located on assembly just in back of engine.) Loosen oil drain plug with wrench. Make last few turns by hand so plug does not fall in pan. Clean plug so it's ready for replacement after oil has drained. Be careful not to get hot oil on your hands.

4. Allow enough time for engine to drain fully. Replace and tighten oil drain plug. Install new oil filter. Place some clean oil on your fingertip and oil the filter seal to assure a leak-free fit when new filter is seated. Tighten new filter only by hand.

5. See owner's manual for oil fill location. Add new oil. Check oil pan drain plug to make sure it is properly seated and sealed. Be sure there is no leak around filter. Add all but one quart and run engine a few minutes to circulate oil into filter. Check oil dip stick. The plastic one quart bottle makes changing your oil easier and cleaner.

Explore Charitable Auto Donations

It is your favorite car and the one that got you through all of the tough times — high school, college, the first year of marriage. Yet, now you are ready to move on but don't want to see your pride and joy be just another contribution to the local auto graveyard. How can you ensure your auto will go on to provide joy for yet another needy individual? Donation.

Car donations are a viable alternative for individuals and businesses who want to dispose of unwanted vehicles, according to the Better Business Bureau (BBB). Not only are you helping a charity, you are also guaranteed a income tax write-off of a sizeable amount. However, before you make any rash donation decisions, check out these tips from the BBB on how to approach the situation wisely.

Group Eligibility

Don't assume that a charitable-sounding organization requesting donations is eligible to receive deductible gifts. Ask for a copy of the organization's Internal Revenue Service Determination Letter (generally about 2 pages) that verifies the soliciting group is a tax-exempt charity. (Churches are not required to apply for exempt status.)

Check out the charity

Make sure the charity is registered to solicit with your state government's charity registration office. Also, contact you local Better Business Bureau for information they may have on file.

What Happens to the Car?

Some charities may state that the donated cars will be used to help carry out the group's program service activities like providing transportation for needy individuals. However, if the charity is involved in major promotions for contributions, chances are the sheer volume donated will result in most cars not being used but, instead, sold to raise funds for the organization.

What About Receipts?

Ask the charity for a receipt that verifies a car donation was made. For cars that need to be towed-in, the charity may need to mail receipts and titles to the donor. It is also up to the donor to place an accurate value on the car donation. An official used car price guide is helpful.

For more information on car donations, contact the BBB's Philanthropic Advisory Service or your local Better Business Bureau at www.bbb.org.

Distractions While Driving Can Be Life-Threatening

The cell phone has gained notoriety for contributing to accidents because drivers allow phone conversations to divert their attention from the road. While driver inattention stakes its claim as a leading cause of traffic accidents, the cell phone should not shoulder all the blame. Among distractions:

1. Settling an argument among kids in the back seat
2. Selecting or changing tapes or CD's while driving
3. Applying make-up, shaving and/ or sipping coffee while driving
4. Trying to accomplish both (2) and (3) simultaneously
5. Doing (4) while talking on the phone.

Don't risk your life while driving, says the Car Care Council, or allow other such distractions to put you at risk. What are these other distractions? Examples include:

1. Doo-dads hanging from the rear view mirror – Take 'em down. They can obstruct vision out of both the front and rear windows. Hey, it's a free fix.
2. A damaged rear view mirror – Get it repaired. Many of your driving decisions are only as good as the view from your mirrors.
3. Worn windshield wiper blades – Replace them. Smeared glass and chattering blades can be unnerving. Blades are inexpensive and you can probably do the installation yourself.
4. Torn or frayed car mats – Get new ones. The old mats can catch a heel and force your foot down on the gas or brake.
5. Droopy headliner – Purchase a kit to reattach it or buy a new one. Material draping down in the back obstructs the view out of the rear window.

Determine what annoyances you can fix yourself and which ones need professional attention, says the Car Care Council, then act immediately. To delay could mean an accident waiting to happen. For more information, visit us on the web at www.carcarecouncil.org.

Safety Tips For Highways And Urban Areas

HIGHWAYS AND CITY STREETS require especially attentive and cautious driving.

Few people think about getting into an accident when they sit behind the wheel. After all, if you stopped to worry about every possible scenario, you might not make it out of the driveway. Yet, there are certain safety precautions that every driver should be aware of, especially when traveling on bustling city streets or busy highways.

BE AWARE OF LARGER VEHICLES

When driving on the highway you are at a serious disadvantage if involved in a crash with a larger vehicle. In order to keep you and your family safe when driving around trucks, you should be extra cautious. Here are a few ways to minimize injuries according to the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration:

• Cutting in front can cut your life short — If you cut in front of another vehicle, you may create an emergency-braking situation for the vehicles around you, especially in heavy traffic. Trucks and buses take much longer to stop in comparison to cars. If you force a larger vehicle to stop quickly this could cause a serious, even fatal accident.

• Watch your blind spots — Large trucks have blind spots, or "No-Zones," around the front, back and sides of the truck. A truck could even turn into you, because these areas make it difficult for the driver to see. So, don't hang out in the "No-Zones," and remember, if you can't see the driver in the truck's mirror, then he or she probably can't see you.

• Avoid squeeze play — Be careful of trucks and buses making wide right turns. If you try to get in between the truck and the curb, you'll be caught in a "squeeze" and can cause a serious accident. Truck drivers sometimes need to swing wide to the left in order to safely negotiate at right turn, especially in urban areas. They can't see cars directly behind or beside them. Pay attention to truck signals and give them lots of room to maneuver.

Easy Pointers for Avoiding Road Rage

Traveling on the country's roads can sometimes be challenging. It can be difficult to deal with other drivers who have their own definitions of sharing the road. But there's no need to bow out of the race or get tempers flaring; by being courteous you can avoid road rage and turn your road trips into pleasant experiences.

While all drivers are human and thus subject to the same emotions, no one has to give in to road rage. Here are a few ways to curb aggression on the road, courtesy of www.allsands.com:

• Let bygones be bygones. If someone is changing lanes and cuts you off, that's an indication that the person may be prone to more aggressive driving behavior. Your best bet is to let the person have plenty of room. Use extra caution when shifting lanes by properly using your turning signals.

• Back off. If you are driving slowly in the left-hand lane, be polite and move over into the right-hand lane in order for the person behind you to pass. Conversely, if stuck behind someone driving slower than you are, relax, slow down, and wait for an opportunity to pass.

• Keep your hands to yourself. If you want to avoid road rage, don't use obscene gestures, shake your fist or point angrily at "offending drivers" on the road. However, this doesn't mean you should feel free to shout at, criticize or insult other drivers instead. Any or all of the above can result in an angry response from the other driver.

• The long arm of the law. Another thing to consider is the legal ramifications of road rage. Many state and local officials actually patrol the roads on the lookout for aggressive drivers.

Getting The Most Out Of Your Vehicle's Safety System

If you've been involved in an accident in which one or more of your vehicle's airbags deployed, you probably appreciate more than most people the added safety and protection these seemingly simple devices offer. In fact, you may be one of the more than 5,000 people whose lives, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), have been saved because of vehicle airbags.

But airbags won't effectively do their job of protecting you and other occupants in your vehicle unless you do your part before — and, just as importantly, after — you're in an accident that triggers airbag deployment. Here are some tips to help you get the most protection from your vehicle's safety systems.

• Check the owner's manual for your vehicle to make sure you understand what the airbag light on the instrument panel is telling you. Generally, if the airbag light is ON (other than briefly when you first start the vehicle), there's a problem with the system that should be checked right away.

• Although 1998 and newer vehicles have redesigned airbags that reduce the chance of injuries from airbag deployment, it is always best not to sit too close to an airbag. Drivers should move their seat rearward as far as they can without impeding their ability to see the road ahead and to reach the steering wheel and pedals. (Try to ensure there is at least 10 inches between the steering wheel and the driver's chest.) Don't lean forward as you drive. If your vehicle has a tilt steering wheel, tilt it downward so the airbag will deploy toward the driver's chest, not the head.

• All 1998 and newer cars (and 1999 or newer light trucks) also have passenger-side airbags. All front-seat passengers — not just those who are shorter or elderly — should also move their seat as far rearward as possible to maximize the distance between their chest and the instrument panel to give the airbag room to deploy safely.

• NHTSA recommends placing all children 12 and under in the rear seat. It's the safest place for children in vehicles with or without airbags. Never place a child in a safety seat in the front seat of a vehicle with a passenger-side airbag.

• A deployed airbag cannot be "repacked." In fact, the bag and many of the system's parts are not "repairable." They must be replaced. The parts are designed for each specific vehicle. For the system to function correctly in another collision, the proper parts must be purchased and installed by a qualified technician.

• Airbags won't protect you as well if you're not also wearing a seat belt. They work together as a system. Some vehicle seat belts have a device that automatically tightens the seat belt in the event of a crash; as with an airbag, once it deploys, it must be replaced. Also, in severe crashes, the webbing fabric of the seat belt may become stretched, which could affect its restraining ability in a subsequent collision. Ask to have your seat belts checked after an accident.

In choosing a repair facility, look for evidence that their technicians have been properly trained. Many insurance companies and repair facility associations recommend you look for a business that has earned the I-CAR(R) Gold Class Professionals (R) designation. The Gold Class designation indicates that a repair facility's employees have completed a substantial amount of training. They are up-to-date in collision repair knowledge and technology. I-CAR training covers virtually every step of the repair process. This includes analyzing the damage, structural repair processes, corrosion protection, matching your vehicle's paint finish, and checking safety features such as airbag deployment, seatbelts and anti-lock braking systems. I-CAR established the Gold Class Professionals designation to help consumers identify repair facilities that have invested in proper training.

For the location of a Gold Class Professionals shop near you, visit the I-CAR web site at www.i-car.com or call (800) 422.7872.

Safety Tips

City driving requires a completely different style of defensive driving than highway driving. More street signs, narrower roads and a greater concentration of people require a driver to always be aware of the surroundings.

• Be an attentive driver — Inattentive drivers can be very dangerous when they drive slowly or ignore signals and create an emergency-braking situation. Young children running into the street, lights from stores along city roads and a host of other distractions could catch a driver's attention. When you are driving, focus only on the road.

• Avoid aggressive drivers — These people put themselves and others at risk with their driving style. Speeding, running red lights and stop signs, and pulling out of parking spots quickly or in front of buses can create dangerous situations. It may also lead to road rage for the aggressive driver or for others sharing the road.

USE COMMON SENSE

On all roads across the country remember to drive safely and courteously. Always buckle your seat belt — your best protection in the case of a crash. And never drink and drive. Alcohol affects a person's ability to make crucial driving decisions, like braking, steering or changing lanes.

Read. Then Recycle.

With Your Car, Timing Can Be Everything

These teeth on a timing belt engage with mating teeth on camshafts to control valve timing. A worn belt can cause engine failure.

Automotive engines and life have at least one thing in common:

Timing is everything. And one vehicle component often overlooked during routine maintenance is the engine timing belt. If this component fails, the engine will cease running, and the car will coast to a stop. The lucky motorist will only have the inconvenience of being stranded on the side of the road until the car can be towed to a repair facility to have the timing belt replaced. On the other hand, the engine might suffer severe, if not catastrophic, damage to its internal components.

This potential disaster can be avoided easily and relatively inexpensively by replacing the timing belt within the required replacement interval.

Timing belts resemble an engine accessory serpentine belt in appearance, only they typically have square teeth on the inside surface. They usually are constructed of rubber reinforced with nylon. Simply put, the timing belt transfers the rotation of the crankshaft to the camshaft. The rotating camshaft activates the valves, which provide air and fuel to the cylinders and expel combustion gases to the exhaust system.

The valves and pistons are constantly moving up and down at very high speeds.

When the pistons are down, the valves are open; when the piston is at the top of its travel, the valves are closed. Some engines don't allow clearance between a valve at its lowest point and a piston at its highest. The timing belt, therefore, is the critical link to ensure that these components don't collide. If collision occurs, damage to the valves, pistons, cylinder head, and cylinder walls can result. This can be an expensive repair.

Timing belts usually are protected from foreign objects by a cover, which makes visual inspection impossible.

Many domestic vehicles built within the last several years and the majority of imports are equipped with a timing belt. Other engines rely on a timing chain rather than a belt. Refer to your owner's manual or take your car to a repair facility if you are unsure. The owner's manual maintenance schedule is a source of timing belt replacement intervals.

Typically, automakers recommend replacing the belt every 60,000 to 90,000 miles.

Timing belt replacement usually requires removal of the engine drive belt that operates the alternator, water pump, power steering pump, and air conditioner. Consider replacing this belt, or multiple belts, when having a new timing belt installed.

Things You Auto KNOW!

For the average vehicle, typically with over 100,000 miles on the odometer, the term preventive maintenance takes on a new meaning. The Car Care Council suggests that with proper care your aging vehicle can provide dependable transportation for another 10 years and beyond.

How About Some Timing Belt Questions, Answers?

(MS) — Many times you may not take the necessary precautions to prevent engine wear and tear because you're not familiar with certain items under the hood. A working timing belt is essential for happy motoring.

1. What is a timing belt?

A timing belt is a toothed, flat rubber belt that synchronizes the power-producing internal components of the engine.

2. Where is the belt located?

The timing belt is inside the engine. You can't see it when you open the hood. To find out if your car engine has one, check your owner's manual or ask your service technician. The second choice is your best bet.

3. When should it be replaced?

Depending on the vehicle and the engine, carmakers recommend timing belt replacement every 50,000 to 100,000 miles. To be safe, Gates Rubber Company engineers say the belt should be changed at 60,000 miles.

4. What happens when it breaks?

After four years, the timing belt could fail whenever the engine is running. The engine and vehicle will stop dead, and you'll need to be towed to a repair shop. Depending on the type of engine, the service could be as simple as installing a new belt, or it could mean replacing the entire engine if valves, pistons, cylinder heads and cylinder walls are damaged. Gates says it is very important to replace the timing belt system (belts, idlers/tensioners) before they break and possibly cause major engine repair.

Mom? Dad? Can I Borrow The Car?

You made it through the first day of school, sports practices, braces and the pressures of puberty, but how will you survive one of the toughest challenges your family has yet to face — your son or daughter behind the wheel of a car?

A driver's license offers teen-agers a unique sense of freedom and independence — and don't they know it. Yet, once the license is issued, how can you learn to encourage safe driving habits and trust your teen without seeming like a prison warden? With patience, understanding and some help from MetLife Consumer Education Center's brochure, "When Your Child Gets a Driver's License."

A new driver not only can put emotional stress on a family, he or she can affect the household budget as well. Insist that your child understand that driving is not just a joy ride.

YOUR CHILD has a driver's license. Make sure you are ready for the changes in store.

INFORMATION FIRST

Information is your teen's best bet early on. Don't let him or her just hit the road — set some ground rules first:

- Insist that your child always wear a seat belt — as the driver or a passenger.
- Encourage defensive driving, which involves observing speed limits, allowing adequate distance from other vehicles and slowing down during adverse weather conditions.
- Be sure your teen knows and understands the traffic laws in your area. Explain how violating these laws is dangerous and drives up insurance rates.

MECHANICS OF DRIVING

A license does not guarantee that your teen is a "driver." Only practice can help him or her earn that status.

- Encourage your teen to enroll in a driver's education course.
- Make sure he or she knows what to do in the event of an accident.
- Teach the mechanics of a car and proper maintenance.
- Remember that your novice driver can benefit from supervised driving practice.
- Keep in mind that motor vehicle accidents are the leading cause of death among young persons. Speeding is often involved.

For more information on teen-age drivers, call (800) 638-5433 for your free copy of "When Your Child Gets a Driver's License." Made available as a public service, the brochure is part of MetLife Consumer Education Center's Life Advice program, created to help people better manage the major events in their lives.

Driving a vehicle with bad brakes is like using a parachute that works nine times out of ten. Have you had your brakes checked lately?

Safety Driving Tips Every Teenager Should Read, Heed

You've passed the test, your license has been issued and you're ready to enter the roadways. After all, once you have that laminated plastic card you're a driver, right?

Actually, a driver's license should really be called an "operator's license," because up to this point you really only know how to perform the basic functions of operating the car, but you need to get some first-hand experience under your belt. Here are some informative tips from www.teendriving.com especially designed for teens by a teenager who knows firsthand what new drivers should look for.

School Daze

You may think it's the ideal time to goof off with friends and show off your new set of wheels, but you should be extra cautious when driving around school grounds.

- Get to school five to ten minutes early and leave five minutes late to avoid the mad dash into and out of the parking lots. Many accidents happen when kids are rushing to and from classes.
- If your school lot has perpendicular spaces (not angle parking), park in a space you can pull straight out of instead of having to back out. Backing out in crowded lots is tricky. However, in some states, pulling straight through a parking space is illegal — so check your local traffic laws before using this tip.
- Always stop for school buses with flashing lights. The flashing lights mean that students are either getting on or off the bus, and they may be crossing the street. Their safety depends on cars obeying this law.

Out and About

Here are some safety precautions for driving around town.

Gas-electric hybrids (GEH) are coming on strong for their fuel saving, emissions-reducing and performance enhancing technology. They are getting rave reviews from owners, and the auto-makers are getting the message. Currently there are 3 gas-electric hybrids on the market, by 2004 motorists will have at least 8 options ranging from two-seaters to sport-utes to pickups.

- Avoid making left-hand turns across busy intersections that don't have turn signals. It takes a while to learn how to gauge the oncoming traffic.
- Don't make assumptions about what other drivers are going to do.
- Watch out for aggressive drivers and try to stay out of their way. They are the cause of many accidents, especially on highways.
- Don't cause another car's driver to slam on the brakes by pulling out in front of the car or swerving into another lane.

Stormy Weather

Bad weather requires specialized driving techniques.

- Turn your headlights on anytime you need to turn your windshield wipers on. It will increase your visibility and help others see you.
- Double the space you normally leave between you and the next car. It's harder to stop on slick roads.
- Brake gently. Do not pump your brakes if you have ABS (anti-lock braking system).
- Remember to always wear your seat belt, avoid speed excess and don't drive like you own the road. These simple tips can help save your life and others riding along with you.

Keeping The Kids Entertained On Road Trips

LONG CAR TRIP? It's no problem when you have accessories from NYKO to help make your child's portable gaming system even more fun to play.

"Are we there yet? I have to go to the bathroom! She's on my side! I'm bored!" Oh, the joys of traveling in the car with children.

Luckily for parents, NYKO Technologies has several products to keep young Nintendo Game Boy Advance fans happy on family road trips. While the portable video gaming system can keep kids entertained for hours, NYKO provides several accessories that enhance their gaming experience, extending your time for peace.

Give your kids the perfect illumination to keep playing once the sun has gone down and the family still hasn't reached its destination. NYKO's newest patented light source for the Game Boy Advance, the UFO Light, retails for $14.99 and comes with three glow-in-the-dark, interchangeable "saucers" — perfect for trading! The futuristic light source also features a pass-through connector —complete with flashing LED lights — that allows siblings or friends to play at the same time. Parents will also love that the UFO Light requires no batteries!

Another way to illuminate the Game Boy Advance while traveling in the car is the Worm Light Plus, retailing for $9.99. The Game Boy Advance version of NYKO's original Worm Light that started the industry's lighting craze, the Worm Light Plus provides the patented "super white light" for optimal viewing. It also requires no batteries and features a pass-through connector to link several players together.

Another source of additional light for playing in the car, NYKO's Magni Light for Game Boy, also provides something extra — a 1.5x magnifier for easier viewing! No more squinting to see your highest scores or detailed games on the small screen. The product retails at $14.99 and features a compact folding design, ideal for easy storage and transport while on the road.

To shake up your child's favorite game that's been played over and over again, give him or her a treat before the next long car trip. NYKO's Shock 'n' Rock for Game Boy Advance provides instant life-like motion sensation to add excitement to games like Tony Hawk, Mario Brothers and Rayman. A five-in-one product, the Shock 'n' Rock also includes adjustable rumble, amplified stereo speakers, a 15-hour rechargeable battery, an AC adapter/charger and an ergonomically designed comfort grip.

Tote around the Game Boy Advance, game cartridges, portable systems and other NYKO accessories safely. NYKO's Strong Box is available for $19.99 in three icy, translucent colors — purple, white and blue. It also contains a tray with adjustable dividers and a removable shoulder strap for easy transport.

NYKO also offers a myriad of other accessories to help you gain the most enjoyment from all major gaming systems like Nintendo GameCube, GameBoy Advance, GameBoy Color, Microsoft Xbox and Sony Playstation 2. NYKO products are available at electronic, software, chain and toy stores nationwide. Or, for more information, visit www.NYKO.com.

Learning How To Choose The Right Vehicle Is Important

From grill to spoiler, there are many options, colors, styles and packages for vehicles to fit nearly every driver out there. But how do you decide just what type of automobile is right for you or your family? First, you must learn the statistics of different vehicles and make a list of which features appeal to you most. Here are some items to consider, courtesy of www.familycar.com.

TALK ABOUT DRIVE

Cars usually come with three different options: front-wheel drive, rear-wheel drive or all-wheel (four-wheel) drive. Here are their differences:

• Front-wheel drive — A vehicle which has most of its weight on the front wheels, usually between 60 and 70 percent, so that it tends to go straight, just like and arrow where the weight is concentrated in the arrowhead. On slippery surfaces, if you give it too much gas in a turn, the front wheels will spin, causing the car to skid straight ahead. Even an inattentive driver will immediately realize there is a problem and let up on the gas, quickly regainmg control. Most modern cars have front-wheel drive.

• Rear-wheel drive — Most luxury cars over $40,000 have rear-wheel drive, as well as all race cars and most performance-oriented sports cars. Rear-wheel drive cars have their weight distributed closer to 50/50 between the front and rear wheels, which is conducive to a smoother, more stable ride. This weight distribution allows the car to have a greater maximum stopping power. However, these types of cars are not as effective under slippery conditions.

• All-wheel drive — The best traction in adverse weather conditions can be achieved with all-wheel drive vehicles. These cars handle as well as, if not better than many rear-drive cars and are as safe and predictable during everyday driving conditions as front-wheel drive cars. They may, however be more expensive to purchase and repair.

AN AUTOMATIC DECISION?

Most cars purchased today are automatic gear shift, however many people prefer standard stick-shift vehicles because they provide a greater sense of control. While it is a matter of personal preference there are some things to consider:

• A standard-shift car will usually have a lower resale value. It is harder to find a buyer for it.

• While most modern automatic transmissions are reliable, if they do break down they could be expensive to repair. On the other hand, clutch replacement on a front-wheel drive car with a stick shift can also be costly.

• All things being equal, a standard shift car driven correctly will get a slightly better gas mileage than an automatic. But if you are a fast driver or are not methodical about shifting at the right time, then a 4-speed automatic will be more efficient.

SIZE DOES MATTER

One of your final major decisions is the size of your vehicle. Do you have a large family? Do you haul around a lot of stuff? These are questions you have to ponder before heading to the dealership.

• Minivans or station wagons — These vehicles are ideal family cars. They usually seat a large number of people and have plenty of room left over for stuff.

• Sport-utility vehicles — Many of these are used for the same purposes as minivans but owners prefer the unique look these rugged vehicles have to offer. They do have some disadvantages, though, including a noisier, harder ride; less interior space than a minivan; and higher ground clearance which makes them harder to climb into.

• Pickup truck — A basic pickup truck can cost less than most inexpensive cars. It is very light in the rear without a load and, therefore, may not handle or stop well in adverse weather conditions.

The Ripple Effect Of Neglect

"My repair bill was $2,500 for a loose clamp on a radiator hose? How come?"

It wasn't the clamp that cost the big bucks, of course, it was the damage the loose clamp caused; how a situation can snowball.

Harold had detected the odor of antifreeze from his overheating engine. Later, after returning to his parked car, he saw a puddle underneath. Having seen no "check engine" light, he shrugged his shoulders, figuring he'd have it looked into on his day off.

Bad decision, Harold. By next week, after an unexpected rush trip to the airport, the leak had become a gush. Without coolant, the engine overheated, losing power and making ominous noises. Looking for a service facility on the busy highway, Harold kept on driving until the engine was damaged.

First, the aluminum cylinder head became warped, after which overheated piston rings, bearings and valves were damaged. Grooves worn into the cylinder walls put the finishing touches to this engme. It was ready for major overhaul.

"But what's with this estimated $800 for transmission work," he asked. "The car has been shifting just fine."

The mechanic explained that Harold unwittingly had "cooked" his automatic transmission when he procrastinated replacing that seemingly inconsequential hose clamp. The transmission is cooled by the engine cooling system.

Does this remind you of throwing a pebble in a pond, just to count the number of ripples? Unfortunately, in this case, the ripple effect is much worse than the circles of water moving away from the stone. These ripples will cost big money. It happens every day, according to the Car Care Council, who emphasize that most catastrophic automotive repairs could be avoided with preventive maintenance.

High-Tech Ways To Take Music On The Road

Many times there is nothing better than setting out on a road trip with your favorite tunes packed along to make the ride enjoyable. But, how many times have you fussed with multiple CDs, cassettes or flipping between radio stations to keep a continuous flow of music?

Companies like the Los Angeles-based PhatNoise who made a deal with Visteon Corp., the second largest auto parts maker to license its MP3 jukebox, will enable drivers to bring music directly from their PCs to the road.

The jukebox is an add-on accessory for your car's existing sound system. It features software that lets users load hundreds of hours of music stored on MP3 files in their computers onto a small cartridge that then goes in the car.

MP3 is a compression format that turns music on CDs into small computer files. Demand for MP3 devices in cars has already begun to surge.

Another technology that can help bring continuous, uninterupted listening pleasure is satellite radio — a new band of radio that will deliver nonstop digital-quality music and other programming directly via satellite to vehicles and residences.

It is a fact that driving and music go hand-in-hand, and technology is evolving faster than ever to create the ultimate driving experience.

Use Of Car Seats Crucial To The Safety Of Little Ones

So you've decided to have a baby. Congratulations! Just as much as your home life will change with the addition of this new bundle of joy, so should your driving habits and the safety precautions you take.

Children have individual needs at specific ages, therefore it is important to be readily aware of these needs even before your son or daughter arrives. Though this information is widely available and often discussed, it can sometimes be confusing or overwhelming for a new parent, or any driver for that matter. For clarity and safety's sake, here are some pointers, courtesy of www.parentsplace.com.

• Before your baby is born, purchase a car safety seat that fits securely into your car and is convenient to operate. Your baby needs to be well-protected right from the start. It is critical that the restraint be not only well-secured with a seat belt, but that your child is securely buckled in.

• In the early weeks, when your baby might not have good head control, it is helpful to use a head support intended for car seat use or roll up a baby blanket to place around your baby's head to steady it. Otherwise, his or her head will have a tendency to flop from side to side.

• Never place your infant in the front passenger seat. This is especially important if your car has a passenger-side air bag. If the air bag deploys in the event of a crash, the force and rapid expansion could kill or injure a child, even when he or she is safely secured in a car seat.

• If your baby is sick or needs constant attention, it is important to have an adult sit in the back to help care for him or her. It can be very distracting (and dangerous) for the driver to keep turning around to care for the baby. The rear-facing position is the most protective. It is important not to move your child into a full-size safety seat too soon. Your baby should weigh at least 20 pounds AND be one-year-old. If your child is very large, but still well under a year of age, it is still very important for him or her to be placed in a rear-facing seat while riding in the car.

• Some rear-facing car seats have an upper weight limit from 22 to 25 pounds. Some of the newer seats accommodate children up to 30 pounds or even more. Each seat should have a fact sheet so read carefully before selecting a car seat for your child.

• As much as you might be tempted to hold your new little one in your arms, it just isn't the time or place for cuddling. Make it a rule, right from the start, to have everyone in the car securely belted-in for each and every trip.

Repowering, Rather Than Replacing, Engine Advised

A person can learn a lot from kids, and it doesn't always have to do with video games or top 40 music. In fact, it's more likely to pertain to romance or money. Money was the topic recently at a lunch table when the conversation turned to purchasing a car.

"My mom says that used car lots used to have good deals," sighed Heather, "but the one I visited yesterday didn't have, like, a single vehicle in my price range. Even with my trade in y'know."

"Let me ask you a question," said Karen, the savvy auto tech student. "What's wrong with the car you're driving now?"

"Well, for one thing, it's 8 years old so it's, like, looking a little worn. But the main thing is the engine. We've already had it in the shop once. My dad says that when the engine starts to go the rest of the car isn't far behind."

"I'll try to say this nicely," said Karen. "Your dad's dead wrong. That car is built to last. I'll bet you could fix it up for a fraction of the cost of a new or used one. Especially if you replace the engine."

Chalk one up for Karen. Today's cars are designed to be roadworthy far beyond the 100,000 mile mark, as long as they receive proper maintenance and repairs. Eventually, this may mean replacing the old engine.

Why Repower?

For more and more vehicle owners repowering has become the intelligent alternative for for a number of reasons. The kids at the lunch table might be surprised to learn that replacing a car, even buying another used car has plenty of hidden costs, including higher insurance, finance charges and taxes. Of course, a used vehicle is always a gamble and a new car begins to depreciate the second it's driven off the lot.

Better Than Before

A better idea may be to keep the car you're currently driving and investigate replacing the engine with one that's been restored to the original specifications. The Automotive Repower Council says, with advances in technology, the quality of the rebuilt may exceed the original.

The remanufacturing procedures include thorough and extensive cleaning, machining and installation of new and reconditioned components. Engine producers are so certain of their products' reliability that each engine is backed by an exceptional warranty, sometimes lifetime.

Not Just for Penny Pinchers

Teenagers or motorists who watch their pocketbooks are not the only ones who can benefit from the intelligent option. Anyone with a vehicle in good condition that has a failing engine will want to consider repowering. Karen put it best when she asked Heather, "Do you really want to commit to all of those car payments?" The Automotive Repower Council asks, "Do YOU?"

Find out more in a free brochure entitled Sticker Shock! To order, send a self addressed, stamped envelope to: Sticker Shock!, 42 Park Drive, Port Clinton , OH 43452 or call 1-866-4RE-POWER. Learn more on the web at www.repower-.org.

Always Pays To Monitor The Monitors

Ignoring your check engine light or covering it with tape is like burying your head in the sand. The Car Care Council emphasizes that the various warning indicators are crucial; they monitor all critical functions of the vehicle, helping the driver avoid damage to the vehicle and/or the environment.

Whether these lights report on something as basic as overheating or low fuel or a more complex function such as malfunctioning oxygen sensor or antilock braking system, each of these warning lights is there for good reason.

Be sure to note each time the ignition key is turned on, that all of the instrument panel warning lights illuminate. They should go out when the engine starts. If not, consult your owner's manual.

You Should Scratch Your Dog, Not Your Car

ENSURE YOUR CAR is scratch-free when you wash it with OXO Good Grips non-abrasive car washing brushes. Clockwise: Tire brush, large car brush, wheel brush, small car brush.

(MS) — You don't need to be a car enthusiast to appreciate the pleasure of a clean car. Whether you're washing a high-performance car or family sedan, using car wash brushes that won't scratch the paint or wheels is critical to preserving the value of the vehicle. And because a car is usually the second most expensive purchase a person makes, it is wise to protect your investment.

When cleaning a car, one of the first steps is to make sure you are using proper cleaning tools. Too often car owners unknowingly scratch the clear coating on the paint, permanently dulling the finish by washing their car with tools, like mitts or towels, that trap dirt or other abrasive materials. The choice of many professionals is to use car wash brushes because they release abrasive materials to prevent them from coming in contact with the car.

One company that offers a line of car wash brushes designed specifically to clean each part of a car is OXO Good Grips. The line includes a large and small brush for cleaning car bodies, a tire brush and wheel brush for rims and wheel wells.

The large and small car wash brushes have extra-long bristles with soft, feathered tips that won't scratch. The wheel brush is great for cleaning in and around spokes and lug nuts. It has a long handle that protects fingers and knuckles when cleaning deep dish rims which are found on popular sport utility vehicles. The brush bristles work particularly well at scrubbing stubborn dirt, brake dust and grease that collects on wheels, but are soft enough to not scratch the clear coat. The tire brush has stiff bristles for tackling dirt on sidewalls. Its handle is positioned to fit the natural contours of the hand and provide the leverage needed for hard scrubbing.

All of the OXO brushes are covered in a soft, non-slip material that cushion hands, is easy to grip even when hands are soapy and wet, and reduce pressure while gripping. The material is designed to eliminate the possibility of sharp corners or edges scratching delicate automotive finishes.

This season, you can leave the scratching to Fido and head out to Pep Boys Stores nationwide where the OXO Good Grips are available and range in price from $7 to $20 each.

Baby Wipes Are Not Just For Baby Anymore

Wipes! We see people using them for everything from kitchen chores to upholstery cleaning. Even the traditional ritual of cleaning a baby with a wash cloth, soap and water has given way to snatching a towelette out of a plastic box. Not only are baby wipes more convenient, they do a better job than the old fashioned method, thanks to ingredients like antibacterial agents and aloe.

Convenience cleaning gets two thumbs up from car owners, too, says the Car Care Council. Automatic car washes are readily available and inexpensive. An automatic wash is a quick, and affordable way to rid your vehicle of rust causing contaminants, delivered by precipitation. Since washing needs to be done every couple of weeks, convenience, is the key.

Remember the term "elbow grease", once used to describe the main ingredient of seasonal car clean-up? Think of these as the "good old days", says the Council, with wonderful new products designed not only to reduce some of the labor from spring car care but also to provide a protective coat to paint, plastic and rubber.

Mother Nature still prevails, of course. Birds, bugs, mud, tree sap, ozone and ultra violet rays still do their damage. Add acid rain to the mix, along with other chemical fall-out, and you have a hostile environment for even the best paint and interior protection.

Among the benefits of the spring spruce-up, like painting a room, is the joy of revitalization, seeing your car come back to life. And there's the fun of shopping for these products, some of which will be new to most car owners.

Leading the product parade is an array of chemically impregnated wiping cloths for easy application. Enhancing paint and interior surfaces, there are wipes for virtually every surface, according to the Council. Some are permeated with wax, and others are intended for glass. Several different types are for interior appointments. Upholstery fabrics and carpeting have their dedicated wipes, too.

These items, along with traditional spring cleaning products will add enjoyment to the task of polishing, waxing and brightening up tires and the black trim. For more information on car maintenance, log on www.carcare-council.org.

A 'Paws-itively' Perfect Pet Tip:

(MS) — Nowadays, more and more pet owners feel pressured to leave their furry friends at home when they take to the open road. The Dog Lover's Companion series from Avalon Travel Publishing is perfect for anyone who doesn't want to leave Fido behind. The books include extensive information on the best dog-friendly shops, hotels and parks in select regions across the country, including Atlanta, Boston and California. The series books are available at bookstores and online retailers. Visit www.dogloverscompanion.com for more information.

Adjust Mirrors Right To Avoid Tunnel Vision

A driver relies upon his or her mirrors heavily while driving, but most notably when changing lanes or merging into traffic. However, many drivers adjust their sideview mirrors so that they can see the side of the car on the inside edge of the mirror, which doesn't maximize your viewing ability effectively.

According to the National Motorists Association, positioning the sideview mirrors in this fashion essentially has created "tunnel vision" to the rear of the car. Your sideview mirrors overlap much of what your inside rearview mirror sees and you've also created blind spots.

So, what is the solution? Simply adjust the sideview mirrors just beyond the point where you can see the side of the car on the inside edge of the mirror. With this setup, you almost completely solve the blind spot problem. And with fewer chances of a car in your blindspot, the less likely you'll be involved in an accident while merging or changing lanes.

Perhaps you're thinking, "I don't need to change the adjustment of the sideview mirrors because I glance over my shoulder before changing lanes." This generally is an effective way of checking for cars in blind spots, yet unless you've worked to control it, your arms will move in the direction your eyes are looking causing the steering wheel to turn. With well-positioned mirrors, your head won't have to turn as far to check any remaining blind spots.

Popular Lubricant Also Good For Spring Cleaning A Car

Before getting behind the wheel, drivers may need to give their vehicles a spring cleaning. Simple preventive and corrective measures, combined with regular tune-ups and oil changes, can keep your vehicle in optimum condition-allowing you to rest easy during your daily commute or warm-weather driving adventure.

WD-40, the Multi-Purpose Problem Solver of NASCAR, can help you maintain and clean your car.

Use WD-40 to:

- Restore luster to your automobile's exterior by removing road salt, tar, tree sap or other debris without harming the finish
- Prevent corrosion on the vehicle's undercarriage and wheel wells
- Displace moisture on electrical components
- Remove bumper stickers with ease

When you're done working on your car, getting yourself clean doesn't need to be a hassle. Keep a Lava bar or liquid pump in the garage, kitchen, or bathroom for convenient and efficient clean-up.

Lava and WD-40, both products of the WD-40 Company, are officially licensed products of NASCAR. Lava is The Heavy-Duty Hand Cleaner of NASCAR. WD-40 Company also signed an endorsement agreement with Daytona 500 winner Ward Burton, driver of the Caterpillar No. 22 car.

- Penetrate stubborn lug nuts, bolts and hinges
- Clean dead bugs and road grime off the front grill and bumper
- Lubricate sunroof cranks and window rollers, as well as convertible tops and hinges

Improve Fuel Economy With Synthetic Oils

Spring's arrival brings warmer weather, spring-cleaning and, for motorists, it brings the annual spring oil change. Of the many motor oils on the market, many people prefer synthetic motor oils for the superior year-round protection and engine performance they deliver.

Synthetic motor oils offer many advantages over conventional motor oils. Even though synthetics have been around for nearly three decades, consumers are only just now becoming aware of these high-tech lubricants.

The relationship between friction and engine horsepower is easy to perceive. Reduce friction, and an engine's pistons, gears and power train will operate more efficiently, producing more power. The greater the friction, the greater the dissipation of power. In order to produce an equal amount of power with petroleum, one must expend a greater amount of energy (fuel ignition).

A feature story in the Sept. 1999 issue of Corvette Fever magazine offered readers tips on five ways to gain up to 40 more horsepower. One of these tips, which the magazine called "Free Horsepower," was to switch to a synthetic motor oil called AMSOIL.

From its inception in 1972, AMSOIL has recognized that reduced friction allows great engine-operating efficiency, increased power and reduced fuel usage. Today, nearly every major oil company has a synthetic motor oil as part of its product offering.

In addition to increased horsepower, synthetic oils enable motorists to save money due to other benefits. An Eaton Truck Components brochure recently highlighted four ways people could save money using synthetic lubricants:

- Save money on lube by changing at less frequent intervals.
- Save money in reduced fuel usage (increased fuel efficiency).
- Save money on reduced downtime.
- Save money on longer-lasting seals.

Numerous tests have demonstrated the increased fuel efficiency of synthetic lubricants. In a Sequence VI Engine Test for fuel economy at one independent testing firm, AMSOIL Series 2000 Synthetic OW-30 demonstrated the highest test score ever recorded by that facility. The results were deemed "fabulous" in a written correspondence, and "the best ever seen" by company engineers.

Because they are more resistant to viscosity breakdown, synthetic motor oils last longer. Their thermal stability offers better protection against deposit formation and sludge. Their oxidation resistance and resistance to burn-off results in lower oil consumption.

In short, the benefits of synthetics are extensive. For this reason, many believe that synthetic motor oils will be the lubricant of choice in the new millennium.

Gov. Signs Bills Sponsored By Edwards, Hafer

Governor Parris Glendening recently signed several bills sponsored by local legislators during the 2002 Maryland General Assembly. The new laws will affect small colleges, Savage River State Forest, nursing home residents, and Korean War veterans.

House Bill 179 will allow Garrett Community College to receive $240,000 and Allegany College of Maryland to receive $360,000 in unrestricted grants for fiscal years 2003 to 2005. The colleges will also each receive $500,000 in FY 2003.

Other state community colleges will also receive various amounts of grant monies. The legislation was introduced in an effort to make funding to small community colleges more equitable to that of larger four-year colleges. The bill was sponsored by Delegates George Edwards, Casper Taylor, and Kevin Kelly. Senator John Hafer sponsored it in the Senate as well.

The Savage Ravines and South Savage wildlands designation bill was also recently approved by the governor. With the legislation, 4,000 acres in the Savage River State Forest will now be designated as "wildlands."

Motorized vehicles, timber harvesting, and development will not be allowed in those areas with the designation. Backpacking, camping, hunting, fishing, and other recreational activities, however, will be permitted. Frostburg State University will also be allowed to use the lands for educational purposes.

Edwards and Hafer said that they tentatively supported the bill because it was apparent to them that other state lawmakers were going to push for the bill anyway, with or without them, and they wanted to have some control over the local issue.

Both the House and the Senate unanimously approved the legislation during the General Assembly.

The governor also signed Hafer's SB 5 this week. The

Crashes Ensue After Drivers Fall Asleep

Three separate motor vehicle accidents occurred this week after drivers fell asleep behind the wheel, according to the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police. Each of the drivers sustained minor injuries as a result of the mishaps, and one was charged.

The first accident occurred at 6:50 a.m. this past Thursday, May 2, when Mildred Renee Olson, 37, Baltimore, fell asleep as she was traveling on westbound Interstate 68 just west of the Finzel exit, and her 1995 Ford Windstar van crossed over two lanes of traffic and went into the median before coming to a stop. The only occupant of the van, Olson was transported by the Frostburg Ambulance Service to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released. No charges were filed by state police.

Harvey House, "A Home Away From Home," Slates Dedication

Harvey House, formerly known as Right Step, will hold an open house on Friday, May 10, from noon until 2 p.m. at its new location at 102 S. Third Street, Oakland. A ribbon-cutting ceremony is slated for 1 p.m.

The Garrett County commissioners, Delegates George Edwards and Casper Taylor, Senator John Hafer, and Office of Consumer Advocates executive director Ethel Nemick have been invited to the event.

The new peer-supported center offers consumers of mental health services a place to socialize and discuss issues. "We have a wonderful group of people here," said Dan Snyder, Harvey House coordinator, who started a similar center in Cumberland. About 14 consumers visit Harvey House on an average day. "They're a second family to me," Snyder said.

"You meet a lot of nice people here," added Elsie Eddington. "You can joke with each other. It's better than sitting at home."

The consumers are responsible for the facility themselves, Snyder stressed. They did all of the painting at the site, do the maintenance, and plan activities and outings. The consumers even chose the new name to honor Friendsville resident Louise Harvey, a long-time mental health advocate.

"I think of Louise as a

Suspicious Fire Levels Mt. Zion Vacant House

A fire that was apparently intentionally set destroyed a one-story, vacant, wood-frame house last Thursday evening. The structure, which was owned by James Duckworth, was located at 574 Mt. Zion Crosscut Road near Swanton.

According to a release from the office of the Maryland state fire marshal, a neighbor saw flames across from his residence and telephoned 911 to report a what he thought was a woods fire. Upon the arrival of units from the Deer Park, Bloomington, and Kitzmiller fire departments, it was learned that the flames were coming from the house, which by that time was nearly "on the ground."

An investigation by deputy fire marshals Steve Wendling and Ryan Chapman, with assistance from Canyon, of the K-9 (canine) unit, it was determined that the fire was intentionally set. The house has been vacant for a number of years and there was no electrical service.

This was the second vacant dwelling on the same property destroyed within one week, and investigators determined that the previous fire was also intentionally set. They are asking persons with any information about either incident to contact their office at 301-387-0482.

The loss in last Thursday's fire was estimated to be $10,000. Sixteen volunteers brought the blaze under control in about 30 minutes.

Water Quality Study Sought By DCL Board

The regular spring meeting of the Deep Creek Lake Policy and Review Board took place last week, with approximately 30 persons on hand in the audience. Among the major topics of discussion was a proposed study of the lake's water quality, as the board is asking the state to undertake such a study in order to provide guidance on how to ensure the lake's long-term health and viability.

"We have a lot of water quality information, and the board members feel a comprehensive study should be done to pull all of that information together and look at everything," said DCL Recreation Area manager Paul Durham. "They want a comprehensive picture of lake water quality, so when they review issues they are making an informed decision instead of just going by perception."

In receiving the board's request for the study, Durham noted that there is no money available in the state coffers to fund such a project at this time. The state is currently preparing to undertake a major study of the lake's carrying capacity this summer, which will up-

Coal Miner Loses Leg Following Machine Mishap

A Mettiki Coal Company miner remained hospitalized in serious but stable condition in a Baltimore hospital this morning after an early Monday mining accident at the Table Rock Road mine resulted in the loss of his leg. A second miner was slightly injured in the 1:55 a.m. mishap.

Ron Pyles, 44, Kingwood, W.Va., was working near an underground conveyor when the equipment's belt "gobbed down," a common mining term meaning material had built up at the end of the conveyor belt and shut the unit down. After turning off the power to the unit and Pyles and co-worker Dave Tasker, 48, Deer Park, were cleaning the coal from the area, the belt, which was under tension, released. The freed belt threw both men into the roller, which was moving because of the tension release.

The men were freed by fellow crew members and a team of mine managers who have been trained in emergency medical procedures, taken to the surface, and transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

Pyles was flown by Maryland State Police medevac helicopter to Cumberland Memorial Hospital and subsequently on to the University of Maryland Shock Trauma Center in Baltimore, while Tasker was treated at GCMH and released.

Both men have over 20 years' experience apiece in underground mining work, according to Mettiki corporate affairs manager Dave Thomas.

Volunteers Sought For Annual Yough River Cleanup

The tenth annual Youghiogheny River Cleanup, sponsored by Mountain Surf Inc. of Friendsville, is set for Wednesday, May 15, in and along the river from Friendsville south to Sang Run. "After nine years of cleanup efforts, paddlers from around the world now see the Yough as it should be seen; however, this is a job that will always be there to do," commented John Mason, president of Mountain Surf.

The cleanup will be carried out by water with kayakers and guides in rafts pulling trash from the river itself. Additional volunteers are needed to assist in cleaning along the riverbank in the Friendsville area, and to move bags to town collection points. Persons interested in volunteering for the cleanup are asked to sign up by contacting Mountain Surf's Bill Welch

Commissioners Present FY 2003 Budget, $3 Million Less Than '02

The Garrett County commissioners this week presented the county budget for fiscal year 2003. The total operating and capital budget for the year is $47,305,241, which is almost $3 million less than FY 2002. The difference is largely due to the elimination of a $2.4 million short-term loan for construction of the new Health Department complex.

"A great deal of the budget over the years has been spent on capital improvements and reducing debt," said Gregg. Capital improvements projects, totaling $5.8 million, to be funded this year include renovations to the county courthouse, expansion of the county airport, various Ruth Enlow Library projects, construction of a new Grantsville Roads Garage, the Adventure Sports Center in McHenry, and a number of road and bridge improvements.

With the completion of the health center in October, the commissioners are now focusing on a new detention center as a top priority. They have allocated $25,000 this fiscal year for the center's preliminary planning, design, and site selection. The officials have also projected a need for $300,000 in FY 2004 for land acquisition and $10 million in FY 2005 for the actual construction of the center.

Funds have also been allocated this year for one additional deputy and one correctional officer at the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

The largest portion of the county funding will again go toward education. A total of $21,260,036 has been appropriated for the Board of Education, Garrett Community College, and the Ruth Enlow Library. This allotment constitutes 45 percent of the total budget, which is 7 percent more than in FY 2002.

The Board of Education will receive almost $1.5 million in capital monies for major renovations at Route 40 Elementary School, completion of the planetarium at the Hickory Environmental Education Center, and renovation of the Southern High School library.

Commissioner Wendell Beitzel noted that the debt service was less this year because the new health center had been completed. Debt service for FY 2003 includes payments of $1,077,898, with loan proceeds directed to the new Grantsville Roads Garage and the Route 40 Elementary School renovations.

Correction Noted To Date Of GCC Commencement

The 30th annual commencement of Garrett Community College will take place on Saturday, May 18, beginning at 10:30 a.m., according to revised information received from the college. A press release submitted last week had incorrectly specified the event date.

Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, former superintendent of Garrett County Schools, will deliver the keynote address, and special activities have been planned to commemorate GCC's 30th anniversary. The public is invited to attend the commencement and the reception for the graduates following the ceremony in the Student Center.

Former MLP Mayor, Dispatcher For EMS Dies Suddenly At Work

David Michael Turney, 50, former Mtn. Lake Park mayor and community service volunteer, died suddenly Monday, May 5, 2002, while at work at the Garrett County Office of Emergency Management. He was a 911 dispatcher for the department.

Turney apparently died of a massive heart attack sometime between 7:30 and 8 p.m. He was working alone in the dispatcher's office at the time, as his co-worker had stepped out for a brief, scheduled break.

Concerns were raised around 7:30 p.m. when an administrative call to that office went unanswered. A number of 911 calls reporting a vehicle accident (with no injuries) went unanswered as well. Correctional Officer Dave Higdon went to investigate at about the same time that Southern Rescue Squad member J.P. Pysell was on his way to the emergency office. The men reportedly found Turney slumped in his chair.

"He passed away doing what he loved best," Garrett County Commissioner Ernest Gregg said during a brief commemoration of Turney, observed as the first order of business at Tuesday's regular public meeting. Commissioner Wendell Beitzel said that Turney, as a long-time mayor, was known for "working hard to solve problems, not create them."

Several emergency management staff members were present for the observance, including Director Brad Frantz.

"He dedicated all his adult life to public service and safety, and he will be sorely missed," Frantz said.

FIRST UNITED BANK JOINS HOSPITAL CAMPAIGN — First United Bank recently showed its support for the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Capital Campaign by pledging $50,000 to the hospital's upcoming expansion/renovation project. "It is encouraging to see our business community supporting our project so generously," said Elaine McDonald, campaign chairman. Since its founding in 1900, First United has grown steadily through sound financial management practices and by investing time, energy, and resources in the communities it serves. As the banking subsidiary of First United Corporation, the bank provides a wide range of financial products, including trust, insurance, and investment services. Headquartered in Oakland, First United serves the people and businesses in Maryland's Garrett, Allegany, Washington, and Frederick counties, as well as West Virginia's Mineral, Hardy, Hampshire, and Berkeley counties. First United's commitment to the expansion project will be recognized by having the hospital's renovated main lobby named for the bank. For more information about the hospital's project, persons may call 301-533-4178. Pictured above, from the left, are Donald Battista, GCMH president and CEO; Bill Grant, First United Bank CEO/chairman of the board; and McDonald.

NHS CHEERLEADERS RECOGNIZED — The Garrett County commissioners this week recognized the Northern High School cheerleaders for their recent accomplishment. The young athletes won first place at the East Coast National Cheerleading Championship, which was held in February at the Atlantic City Convention Center in New Jersey. "We're proud of you. You are a credit to your school and parents," said Dr. Wendell Teets, Garrett County Board of Education superintendent. The coaches' time, hard work, and skill were also recognized. "We're really proud of your accomplishment and the leadership that got you there," said Commission Fred Holliday. Each of the girls received a certificate from the commissioners. Pictured above, left to right, are Commissioners Wendell Beitzel, Holliday, and Ernie Gregg. Standing in the first row are Coach Leah Savage, Tiffany Beiler, Tiffany Beam, Coty Ware, Amanda Friend, Stephanie Hutzel, and Coach Lisa Carr. In the second row are Brandi Fazenbaker, Abbi Sisler, Becka Stark, Kristen Schefft, Amber Weimer, Brooke Butler, Carrie Friend, and Janine Beachy.

MLP Man Faces Burglary, Felony Theft Charges

Detectives with Garrett Bureau of Investigation and Garrett County sheriff's deputies arrested Joseph Ray Kisselovich, 47, Mtn. Lake Park, on the strength of an arrest warrant, which charges Kisselovich with first, third, and fourth degree burglary and felony theft.

These charges stem from an investigation conducted by GBI of the April 11 burglary of the Wolford Perando residence located in the Oakland area. According to police, 20 long guns and pistols, valued at approximately $9,400, were stolen from the residence.

GBI detectives were able to recover a majority of the weapons.

Kisselovich is currently incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail on $250,000 bond, according to a jail spokesperson.

Adventure Sports Project Article Correction Noted

The "Adventure Sports Project Under Way" story that appeared on the front page of last week's Republican requires a correction. The article stated that Commissioner Ernie Gregg said that no county funds were involved in the adventure sports project, which is incorrect.

The commissioner was referring to a private company's project involving windmills that may be built in the county, not the adventure sports project. The Garrett County commissioners this week allocated $250,000 for the Adventure Sports Center in their FY 2003 budget. The same amount was also allocated last year for the project.

One-Day Conference Set To Focus On Connections of Animal/Human Cruelty

Dr. Randall Lockwood, Ph.D., and vice president of Research and Educational Outreach for the Humane Society of the United States, will present a one-day conference on the connection between animal abuse and other forms of violence on Wednesday, May 22, in the conference room of the Discovery Center at Deep Creek Lake State Park.

The conference is being sponsored by Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety (PAWS), the Garrett County Family Violence Coalition, the Dove Center, the Allegany County Family Violence Council, and the Animal Welfare Society of Allegany County. It is scheduled for 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. There is a $10 fee to attend, which will include lunch. Registration information may be obtained by contacting the Dove Center at 301-334-6255. The conference is open to the public and members of the community are encouraged to attend.

Lockwood is a noted authority, both nationally and internationally, on the subject of animal abuse and its connection to other forms of violence, according to Annette Robinson, spokesperson for PAWS. He is the author, along with Dr. Frank Ascione, of the 1998 publication Animal Cruelty and Interpersonal Violence: Readings in Research and Application, which Robinson said is considered to be a definitive text on the subject. He has also written numerous articles on the subject for various scientific and law enforcement journals as well as veterinary and animal welfare publications.

Lockwood's efforts to increase public and professional awareness of the connection between animal abuse and other forms of violence, and to find creative approaches to the problems of violence in our society, were profiled in 1999 on The Cruelty Connection, an award-winning British Broadcast Corporation/Arts and Entertainment documentary. His latest text, co-authored by Dr. Leslie Sinclair, and titled Forensic Investigation of Animal Cruelty: A Guide for Veterinary and Law Enforcement Professionals, will be published sometime this year.

Robinson said the main objective of the conference is to increase knowledge of the connection between animal cruelty and other forms of violence. It will provide an opportunity for professionals in the field of animal protection, care, and control to interact with those in the human services field who deal with abused children, women, and other victims of violence.

"It is hoped that such interaction will lead to the formation of a coalition which, given the tools provided by the conference, will further work to address issues of violence in the community," Robinson said.

The conference will also help train animal and human service groups, social workers, and teachers to recognize signs of violence and neglect, and to then work together when dealing with reports of animal abuse.

"As far as family violence is concerned, animal abuse is often the only outward sign that violence may be occurring within a given household. Recognizing this fact and working cooperatively to implement cross-training and cross-reporting policies, domestic violence, and animal protection agencies can help reduce incidents of family violence," Robinson said.

Such a plan will require the support and cooperation of local and area government officials, the police, the judicial system, educators, social workers, human service providers, and the media, she said.

Brochures have been distributed throughout Garrett and Allegany counties inviting people from diverse professional fields to attend the conference. Robinson said their "participation and support of this researched-backed information is vital."

"Elected and appointed officials who work to support our safe communities need to hear these violence connections so that they can strengthen existing laws and incorporate new legislation for safer neighborhoods and counties," she said. "Their attendance will also lend credibility to the importance of this conference and future work in this area.

"Spousal abuse, child abuse and neglect, elder abuse, rape, and even threats of murder in high school hate lists — Garrett County is not immune to any of these," she continued. "In many such cases animal abuse has been known or alleged to also be involved. Animal abuse is a red flag. Where animals are being abused, people are at risk. Violence to animals in our counties is as much a human welfare issue as an animal welfare issue. We as a community need to take a hard look at what we are doing to identify potential problems. We need to take steps toward setting up a standard protocol for handling animal cruelty complaints, and, most important, see to it that trained and qualified personnel are involved."

Colorado Man Pleads Guilty In GC Circuit Court

A Ward, Colo., man pleaded guilty in Garrett County Circuit Court last week to second-degree assault and disturbing the peace. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced John Rolland Carter, 31, to two years in the Department of Corrections, but then suspended that sentence. Carter is on two years' supervised probation, with conditions which include that he receive a mental health evaluation and treatment, if indicated, and have no contact with the victims in the case.

According to the Garrett County state's attorney, Carter was charged with the offenses, as well as extortion and theft, after an Oakland-area man reported that Carter made threats against him and his family. The victim, therefore, agreed that Carter could have one of his horses. Carter later returned to the man's farm and removed the horse during late-night hours, but was observed in the area by acquaintances of the victim.

Oakland Crash Injures Driver On Garrett Hwy.

An Oakland woman was slightly injured Monday afternoon when her car rear-ended another vehicle just north of downtown Oakland at the entrance to the Green Acres Garden Center. No charges were filed by the Oakland Police Department.

At approximately 3:35 p.m., in the 12000 block of northbound Garrett Highway, a 1994 Dodge Spirit operated by Dorothy Marie Purbaugh, 77, Oakland, ran into the back of a 1998 Chevrolet Venture operated by Denise Ellen Reese, 41, Oakland, who was stopped while she was waiting to make a lefthand turn into the store's parking lot.

Purbaugh was transported by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released. The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene.

Running A Stop Sign Leads To Various Charges

A Cumberland man was arrested and faces many charges after a Garrett County sheriff's deputy saw his truck run a stop sign at Bumble Bee Road and Deep Creek Drive in McHenry.

Further investigation by the deputy revealed the operator, Jonathan M. Shaffer, 27, was intoxicated, police said. Shaffer was charged with driving under the influence (DUI), driving while impaired (DWI), DUI per se, failure to stop at a stop sign, and an equipment violation.

Shaffer was later released from the Garrett County Jail after an initial appearance before a District Court commissioner.

N.Y. Man Jailed By State Police For Possession

A New York man was arrested this past Thursday, May 2, on drug possession charges filed by the Maryland State Police following a traffic stop along Interstate 68 near Grantsville.

Kenneth Scott Schipf, 29, Mastic, was stopped along the westbound interstate at approximately 12:40 p.m. by state troopers conducting speed enforcement near the Casselman River Bridge. In questioning Schipf about his speed, which was clocked at 91 miles per hour, troopers determined through a computer check that his New York driver's license was suspended.

A search that followed the arrest uncovered one plastic bag of suspected marijuana and one pack of rolling papers. In addition to a charge of driving with a suspended license, Schipf was charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. He was subsequently taken before a District Court commissioner, and released on a $500 bond.

In other state police news, a Florida man was charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol and driving while impaired by a controlled dangerous substance (CDS) after a Friday morning traffic stop on I-68.

At approximately 10:45 a.m. a 1995 Saturn was stopped by state troopers for speeding on the eastbound interstate, west of Amish Road. After the driver, Andrew S. Huszar, 20, Boca Raton, was arrested for DUI and transported to the McHenry barrack, "further testing resulted in charging the operator with driving while impaired by a CDS after a drug recognition expert responded," according to the official MSP press release. The suspected CDS was not specified by state police. Huszar was subsequently released from the barrack.

Local Man Sentenced For Sex Offenses

Oney Franklin Sweitzer, 19, Crellin, was sentenced in Garrett County Circuit Court last week for two sex offenses and contributing to a child being in need of supervision. For each of the three charges, Judge Jim Sherbin imposed a one-year sentence, to run concurrently. All but three months of that sentence was suspended, and Sweitzer will be placed on supervised probation for two years upon his release.

According to Lisa Thayer Welch, Garrett County state's attorney, Sweitzer was charged by sheriff's deputies in Aug. 2001 after Oakland-area parents reported their 14-year-old daughter had not been staying at a relative's house to baby-sit, as they believed, but was at Sweitzer's residence without their permission. After locating the girl at Sweitzer's residence, which was located in Bloomington at that time, an officer determined that the two had engaged in criminal sexual activity and arrested Sweitzer.

GCC Library To Close For Summer Months

The Garrett Community College Library will be closed from Monday, May 20, until Monday, Aug. 19, for construction of a new air-conditioning unit. Library staff request that all materials be returned to the facility prior to the closing, or as soon as possible thereafter, at either the front desk or the 24-hour drop box located just outside the main building's entrance, off the student parking lot.

The current collection of daily newspapers will be available in the college's music room (across from the business office) for reading throughout the closure period. For further information, persons may call the GCC Library at 301-387-3009.

Artisans Needed For Weekends At Spruce Forest

Spruce Forest Artisan Village, located along the Old National Road east of Grantsville, is seeking artisans and demonstrators who are interested in renting spaces in the village during high-traffic weekends.

Artisans would be required to submit an application and samples of their work for jurying by the Spruce Forest Artisans' Guild. Once and if approved, that artisan would select one of the following dates for demonstrations and sales: May 25-27 (Saturday through Monday); June 14-15 (Friday and Saturday); July 4-6 (Thursday through Sunday); Aug. 2-3 (Friday and Saturday); Aug. 31-Sept. 2 (Saturday through Monday); or Oct. 11-12 (Friday and Saturday).

Juried artisans will pay a nominal booth fee in advance for the dates, and all proceeds from their sales during those days belong to each respective artisan.

Weekend artisans must be present and open for business from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. each day they are at the village, and they must commit to the entire block of time listed. Artisans must also be willing to demonstrate their craft in addition to selling their works.

Shelters are provided by Spruce Forest and are included in the booth fee. In case of inclement weather, artisans may move onto the Miller House porch or inside the Village Church. Fees are non-refundable to juried artisans once their days of appearance are confirmed with the village.

To request an application or for more details, persons may contact village administrator Trish Morgan, weekdays, at 301-895-3332 or e-mailtmorgan@spruceforest.org.

Harvey House

voice for mental health forever," said Trish Yoder, director of the local Core Services Agency — Mountain Top Mental Health Association. "She has kept [the issue] in the forefront, even when some didn't want to hear about it." She noted that Harvey has been an advocate for almost 30 years.

"This has been a welcome change," said Snyder, about the new site. The new location offers consumers more room and is within convenient walking distance to restaurants, offices, and stores.

Harvey House is open Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 1 until 5 p.m. and on Saturdays from 10 until 4 p.m. No referrals are needed, and all services are free. Transportation to and from the center is also supplied free to consumers. Family members are also welcome. The center provides a free meal, and coffee and snacks are always available.

"This is a home away from home," said consumer Wayne Stewart. "We build each other up." The home-like setting has a kitchen, treadmill, television set, VCR, computers, and games for consumers to enjoy, as well as a quiet meeting room for discussions.

The consumers do crafts, have Bible studies, play bingo, go on shopping trips, and have picnics. But the group has a serious side as well. They offer each other peer support, develop their own self-help skills, and attend seminars about mental health. Part of the group's mission is to educate others about the mentally ill, promote the human rights of persons with mental illness, and confront discrimination and stigmas about mental illness.

Snyder's future plans for Harvey House include starting adult education classes, starting a focus group to explore job opportunities for consumers, and helping children with drug and alcohol problems.

The group's former location along Weber Road, Oakland, houses a new advocacy center. Named after Robert L. Witt, who died in February, the Witt Advocacy Center helps mental health consumers with their entitlements, bills, and other needs. Witt, a former bus driver and president of the Right Step's board of directors, was admired by his fellow consumers for his leadership abilities and sense of humor. He was also instrumental in establishing Harvey House. The Witt Advocacy Center is operated by Kelly Snyder, Dan's wife.

For more information about Harvey House, persons may call Dan Snyder at 301-334-1314. Persons or businesses interesting in donating new board games, craft materials, computer games, adult basic educational materials, or a love seat may also call Snyder.

A Legacy of Service...

No week goes by that our obituary columns don't contain names of persons about whom one could eulogize at length. In fact, an editorial could most likely be written about each and every person included there. We decided to single out one person this week, however, not just as a tribute to David Turney, who died so suddenly this week while on the job as a 911 dispatcher, but as a tribute to all people who live their lives as Dave did.

Many people join various organizations in their community in order to build an impressive resume or as a means of looking to gain something material in return. But some do so purely from a desire to be of service to others in as many ways as possible. That was Dave Turney.

Usually the aforementioned joiners have a bubbly, outgoing personality (a nice way of saying they can sometimes be real "BS'ers"). Sometimes it's all part of the act to try to impress. But Dave was one of those guys who, frankly, did not have a bubbly personality. On the contrary, he was a rather shy person, who just quietly went about doing his job.

Among those jobs were serving as treasurer of both the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department and the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad, organizations which have budgets in the tens of thousands of dollars. Being a treasurer, and especially being a really good treasurer, as Dave was, is an extremely important, but tedious, time-consuming, often unappreciated job. One could account for every penny of both of these organizations, on any given day, because of Dave's dedication and professionalism. Of course, he was paid nothing for his services.

He was also an active member of the Oakland Elks Lodge, another exceptional community service organization, stepping right into the line of officers. He was no doubt destined to become an Exalted Ruler of that group, had his life not ended so soon.

He also served as a competent, effective mayor of the town of Mtn. Lake Park, another significantly stressful position of service. Of course, he was paid for that work (several cents per hour). He was elected to that position six times by his fellow citizens.

After a career in retail bookkeeping and bank work, Dave elected to take yet another highly stressful job, that of a 911 dispatcher, because it was still another way that he could be of service to persons in need. With his long background as an emergency service volunteer, and his commitment to doing an excellent job, he became one of the finest dispatchers in the history of the Garrett County Office of Emergency Management in a matter of weeks.

All the while, Dave battled high blood pressure, not allowing it to prevent him from courageously taking on the stress associated with his various duties. His commitment and courage ultimately cost him his life.

Dave was also a man of great faith, often called upon to offer a benediction or blessing at a meeting or event. About that, he was not at all shy. His Christian faith was evident in the way he tried to live his life.

Dave turned 50 on April 10, just two days before one of his friends and high school classmates did so. And that friend and classmate (this writer) is going to miss him. But he left a fine legacy for others to mimic — an outstanding example of continuous, unheralded, humble service to others.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

What a great loss Garrett County suffered this past week with the sudden and shocking death of Dave Turney. I knew Dave for quite a long time, and I loved and respected him dearly.

Dave gave totally of himself in everything in which he was involved, whether it was one of the many volunteer organizations to which he belonged, or just being a good friend to listen whenever someone so needed.

This loss is felt not only at home from his wife, Rose, but the town of Mtn. Lake Park, the Sheriff's Office, the Southern Rescue Squad, the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, and the Oakland Elks Lodge where Dave was a good member and House Committee chairman.

It will truly be very hard to fill the many pairs of shoes that Dave wore, and wore them well, in so many different capacities!

Dave, you will be sorely missed, but always remembered fondly for your outstanding dedication and commitment to Garrett County, your friends, and mostly your loving wife Rose and your family.

Fraternally,
Sandra Brantner,
Exalted Ruler of Oakland Elks Lodge

To the Editor:

The Teen Issues Forum held at Southern High School on Monday evening was outstanding! It was obvious that the students had taken a lot of time to carefully prepare their display boards and video.

Teen pregnancy, substance use, and dating violence were the topics selected by the teens to learn more about. This was insightful on their part because, unfortunately, these are often the areas in which the teens have experiences, but all too often these topics are not adequately addressed by the adults in their lives.

Kendra Todd from the Health Department, Officer Rob Corley from the Sheriff's Office, and Heather Hanline from the Dove Center provided pertinent information for the teens and parents to consider. Garrett County is very fortunate to have dedicated professionals such as these to help to guide the future of our youth.

"Hats off" to Ms. Robin Spiker, Southern High School English teacher, for devoting her free time to making sure that the students had the environment they needed to "shine" like they did Monday evening. She has definitely made a positive and lasting impression upon their lives. She is exactly the kind of teacher that comes to mind when we think of the those special teachers who made a difference in our lives.

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

It was very kind and considerate of the families of Mel Foley and Frank Sweitzer Jr. to have memorials made to the Garrett County Humane Society Inc. in lieu of flowers. Not only will these memorials be recorded in our permanent files, but those whose animals are spayed/neutered will be always grateful. All of these donations will be used exclusively for our Spay/Neuter Program.

We are very grateful to these families and extend our deepest sympathy. It is such a wonderful way to be memorialized.

Gratefully,

To the Editor:

Shame of you, Commissioner Ernie Gregg. Committing to spend $9 million tax dollars on the adventure park at Wisp and explaining that this is needed because there are not enough affordable activities for our youth. I don't believe for a minute that making whitewater and building some stupid museum for crazy people who climb mountains is going to help our children.

Take the money and do what's right for a change. Help our local people. Don't give it away to the rich developers. They can afford to build their own parks. Why weren't there public hearings on this?

Robert Gloifelty

To the Editor:

OK, this will be it for a while! I have let Jack out of the box on many issues, and commissioners and company are scrambling to get out in front of all of this with spin, misdirection, and non-response. So here's one more for you all to chew on. I'd really like to hear other people's responses about what they are doing to us.

From the executive summary requesting tax dollars for Mountain Village West (for those of you who don't know, that's the low-income housing proposed for Deep Creek Lake): "This development has local government support from Garrett County. The county commissioners have provided a resolution in support of Mountain Village West and will be providing a contribution of a tax abatement - - -."

Some other facts: Builder's profit - - - 7% of net construction, plus another 3% for builder's overhead, architect design and administration 3% and 1.5%, respectively, and, hold on to your hats, developer's fee "at 15% of total development costs, excluding acquisition costs, syndication and reserves, plus 10% of acquisition costs." Folks, unlike the commissioners who think people in the county are too dumb to know about snow loads, I believe y'all are smart enough to know that on a $4 million project, that's a whole bunch of money! To say nothing of the project itself.

"The target populations for Mountain Village West are the 25 to 44 and 45 to 54 age groups. The majority of the target population is concentrated in the Deep Creek/McHenry area, primarily because this is the major location of the employment base." Folks, I believe the commissioners may have forwarded some inaccurate information. I haven't done a study, but just looking around, I find that hard to believe. We're talking low-income people, and personally, Deep Creek Lake is the last place I'd expect to find poor people.

They refer to the area (DCL) as a "revitalization area." Really! They refer to it as the "employment site of low and moderate wage persons." Well, now, that's for sure! "The county forecasts 1,000 service worker employment positions over the next five years based on economic activity under way." Is this what we want for the youth in this county? Well, I think not, as was pointed out by the people who attended the Economic Development meeting. That's the one where we're still waiting for the actual comments to be published; not just mine, by the way, but of all who attended.

"None of the two bedroom units are restricted for occupancy by elderly persons." In govspeak, I believe that means that the elderly are ineligible, and, as I previously pointed out, Garrett Countians will not be given first priority.

These are but a few of the things that I gleaned from the humongous document covering this project. But of course, all of you already knew about them from the many meetings that the commissioners have held. Hey, I had to end on a humorous note.

Tip of the iceberg, folks! You just don't know! Anyway, go to it; I'm backing off for a while.

To the Editor:

As a sophomore at Southern High School, my friends are beginning to get their driver's licenses. While I am happy for them, I am also worried that they do not realize the dangers of drinking and driving.

When Diane Lee brought up the idea of a mock car crash involving a drunk driver at a meeting of the Garrett Youth Council, an organization that I have been involved with for three years, I jumped at a chance to participate. Another sophomore, Zech McPhail, also took the opportunity to get involved. We finally had an opportunity to help convince students not to drink and drive.

Neither one of us was to thrilled to hear that we had to be at the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad at 7:30 in the morning, but our mission was still the same — to keep other people from drinking and driving. After putting on our wounds at the squad hall, we were taken to the high school and took our places in the car with Amanda Cassidy, an AmeriCorps worker, and Tammy Martin. A little blood was added (not pleasing Amanda or me) and we were set.

Tammy played the part of a drunken driver. She managed to escape with just a few bruises on her face. After being in the car about five minutes, we saw ambulances pulling up, and lights flashing. Before the fire and EMS personnel actually arrived to rescue us, we were able to observe the faces of those people who passed by the high school. Drivers were almost completely turned around, almost causing a few real accidents. Students on buses scurried to one side of the bus with their faces smashed against the windows, trying to get a better view of the "accident" taking place in the front yard of Southern High School at a tree that many students had never noticed before. We were unable to watch for long, as we were soon being asked questions about the state of our health.

Before I knew it, I had a blanket wrapped around the back of my neck and a man was next to me saying, "It'll be OK; we'll get you out of here as fast as we can." After that, the experience became one of the scariest of my life. I can only imagine my fear if I had not known what was going on. After about five minutes, or what seemed to me to be an eternity, I heard the shatter of glass and saw it spread all around me.

As the paramedics were trying to get my neck stabilized the driver was taken from the vehicle and arrested. The windshield was being taken out now so that they could get to Amanda, who at the time was in serious danger of dying. I was then turned and put on a backboard. They wrapped me up in a blanket because I was shaking because of the cold, and they strapped me on. The people then picked me up and carried me to the ambulance. Just a few minutes after I was loaded into the ambulance, they brought Zech into the back of the ambulance too. His leg was squirting blood where he had been cut on the artery.

As soon as he got into the ambulance, I heard his voice, filled with frustration; "Get this thing off me!" Of course, the paramedics hear this often and calmly responded," Not until a doctor checks you out." The doors were then shut and we were "taken to the hospital." We didn't go all the way because we were fine and wanted to see what was going on. We had to stay in the ambulance so that we wouldn't be seen after our quick recovery.

From the ambulance, we couldn't see much, but after everything was done, we were able to get out and look at the car. It didn't look like the car we had gotten into, or that Zech and I had left. The paramedics had made the car into a convertible, with the top flipped back. The steering wheel was pointing up to the sky, along with the rest of the dasnboard. I think that was when the reality really set in for me. If this had been real, the little girl that we had hit (who was represented by Annie, the rescue squad's resident dummy) would really be dead, Amanda would almost be dead right now, I'd have no use of my right hand to write this letter due to the open fracture on it, Zech would be having a hard time walking, and Tammy, our driver, would be fine, except for a few bruises and being in jail.

This is an experience that I'll never be able to forget. I got a chance to learn the lesson the easy

View from My Window

BEING IN THE AIR

The server steps toward the backline, tosses the ball into the air, and smacks it across the net. If the server is especially skillful and confident, he may throw the ball higher into the air, as he leaps to pound the ball overhand — a jump serve. The ball may fly in a pronounced arc or in near direct flight, straight or curved.

When the ball is in the air, it is in play, back and forth across the net until one team or the other fails to return the ball properly. A point is then scored by the serving team or the serve is lost. This is volleyball, and it has become my son's sport of choice.

As in every good father-son relationship, we have shared and separate interests. There are other interests that become shared by both of us because they are so important for one of us. Sports have become that latter kind of shared interest because they have been so important to my son.

In the case of volleyball, I began to be interested for my son's sake. As time has passed, the game itself has asserted itself in my imagination. Volleyball requires the strategizing of football played at the speed of basketball. In a good volley, between the two teams, a dozen plays may be called and executed within a minute altogether.

Strategy is not restricted to calling and executing plays. In a recent game I saw my son's coach make four substitutions in two serves — sometimes they will play a game without any substitutions — in order to rotate a particular player to the serving position. The coach counted on that player to finish the game. He was not disappointed.

I like volleyball — as another parent observed to me — because there is almost no way to cheat, and the referees have as little discretion in their calls as in any sport played. Two referees and two linesmen staff each game. They are stationary, and they all have their eyes on every ball.

It is not unusual for the chief ref to consult with another official before pronouncing the decision. There have been occasions when the chief referee has summoned all three of the other officials to confer together before rendering a decision.

Most of all, I like volleyball because of the intellectual affinity required among the players. At their best, players' brains are linked by invisible lines. Physical skill must be matched by an intuitive knowing of one another. When that happens, each play becomes a ballet haiku, a few coordinated movements, evocative and poetic.

Volleyball, like ballet, is about being in the air. It is, of course, about the ball being in the air. Just as importantly, though not as immediately obvious, it is about the players being in the air. In those seconds before the serve, the teams assume pre-determined positions in their proper rotation.

For an instant they freeze, statue-like. When the server sends the ball into the air he also releases the other 11 players, who move to other positions. Defenders leap into the air to block while other players prepare for a deflected ball, while yet someone else rises in an extravagant offensive swing at a ball which is elsewhere, a purely diversionary move.

Then suddenly it is over. The point or the serve has been won. Whatever they all did seconds ago has become irrelevant. There is but one point of interest now: the next ball. Again someone serves, and 12 players stride and jump in movements simultaneously orchestrated and extemporaneous.

Ballet and volleyball both invite a question: Where is someone when he or she is in the air? The question is as old as philosophy, at least. The combination of movement and disconnectedness from terra firma gives a sense of being someplace indefinable, even though we know that we can chart any person's position anytime with Cartesian coordinates.

Perhaps we understand the ascension of Jesus better if we think of it in terms of volleyball, as a kind of ballet haiku. Jesus was in the air, to the amazement of the disciples. His movement was meant to release them for actions simultaneously orchestrated and extemporaneous.

Instead of being released, they were lead-footed. They received much-needed coaching which they heeded. Jesus being in the air became their creative moment. The earth became the place to stand only until the next opportunity to become airborn in shared amnity with the one they watched as he leapt beyond Cartesian coordinates.

To Thank the Teacher

by Nancy S. Grasmick
Maryland Superintendent of Schools

Many teachers with whom I've talked knew early on in life what they wanted to be. Even with little or no exposure to real school themselves, they corralled the neighborhood children — or their stuffed animals when the neighbors eventually rebelled — turned their porches and basements and backyards into classrooms, set up chalkboards, and distributed crayons with purpose and gold stars with benevolence. Their paths were set and everything that followed was preparation.

My path was not so clear. Growing up, I wanted to be a pediatrician. But then an adverse reaction to medication prescribed to me as a teenager left me deaf for about a year. And that's when something wonderful, and ultimately ironic, happened. I decided I'd become a teacher.

The teachers I knew during this time in my life taught me well, capitalizing on the abilities I retained and making up for those I had lost. Aside from being immeasurably skilled, they were kind, patient, and utterly devoted to me and to my classmates. And I thought then that teachers must certainly have the opportunity to change more lives than doctors have the opportunity to save.

I've considered those long-ago experiences a lot this year. I remember being frightened because something I had relied upon — something I had taken for granted — suddenly and irrevocably changed. And I remember my teachers guiding me through my uncertainty.

On September 11, teachers in classrooms all across this state guided students through their own fear and uncertainty. And, in that instant, they became more than teachers. They became counselors, confidants, and friends. They tried to make sense out of the senseless, to reassure, even as they needed reassuring, to comfort, even as they needed comforting.

To these teachers I can say with certainty that your students will not forget your stability in a world they think is falling apart. They will not forget your compassion in a world that seems short on it. They will not forget your gift for teaching, when we all have so much to learn. Of course, your students may not tell you these things for many more years. They may never tell you at all. But Johann Wolfgang Goethe found evidence of such feelings nonetheless. "In all things," he said, "we learn only from those we love."

And so, this year especially, I thank the teachers. I thank them for making miracles simply by expecting of students what they expect of themselves: preparation, diligence, and reflection. I thank them for involving parents in their children's learning; for helping them reinforce that learning at home; and for celebrating with them the wonder of each small accomplishment. I thank them for letting others debate whether teaching is an art or a science. Because they know that teaching is — above all else — love.

way, without the pain and without the loss. I know what it's like to go through the steps of an accident now. If we were able to change just one person's mind, we have succeeded. I know that because of this experience, I will never drink and drive, nor will I ever ride with a drunk driver, because if I do, I may end up in the same situation with a lot more pain.

I hope that we have succeeded in our mission. Please show us; make your driving decisions the right ones. Stay sober and stay safe.

Thank you,
Samantha M. Cavalier
Garrett Youth Council

To the Editor:

I would like to add my two cents to the subject of "What to do with the money being invested in the playground for the rich.'" Hey, why not give the kids in our community a youth center? What a novel idea. Allegany County has a YMCA; two, as a matter of fact. And, yes, I'm well aware of their financial problems. Washington County has a Boys and Girls Club of America that is doing quite well and serves a large portion of the kids in that area.

We are currently looking at the program structure of the Boys and Girls Club of America and are very impressed with what they have to offer. It is our goal to bring one to Garrett County.

I've spoken to quite a few of our elected officials about this idea. You may or may not be surprised at the responses I've gotten: I've tried, there isn't enough money, why don't you do it, we have after-school programs, they've got the Wisp, the lake, that's what the adventure sports complex is going to be for, go talk to so and so... and on and on. I spent months getting the run-around with "go talk to so and so." I have sent letters to the governor, congressman, senator, state representative, commissioners, mayors, etc., for support. 99% of them are in favor of the adventure sports complex. The people in charge of this project made sure they got every penny of money that was out there for the taking.

Just this week I spoke to one of the more influential lawyers in our area about the possibility of helping to get a non-profit organization started, pro bono. She laughed at me. I was not amused. Personally, I feel that we should all pool our resources to make this project successful. Gee, how silly of me; I must be thinking of the time in the past when the community pulled together and gave of themselves unselfishly. Before you attack me for this comment, yes, I know there is still community spirit here in Garrett County; I've seen it in action. So why is it when there is talk of getting a youth center for Garrett County, people pretend they've suddenly gone deaf? What's wrong with this picture? It's not going to put money in their pockets. That's what's wrong!

Yes, I'm well aware of the fact that the Lions Club is financing the Yough Glades Community Center. I'm also aware that it's going to take at the very least two years until it's completed. I also realize there are programs and activities available to our youth, such as after-school programs, organized sports, Boy and Girl Scouts, youth groups at church, etc. But there is a huge percentage of kids that these programs don't reach or even appeal to. Plain and simple, the kids in our community want somewhere to go where they can ride their skateboards, rollerblades/skates, and bikes, or just to hang out with their friends, somewhere that's safe, easily accessible, affordable, someplace they can call theirs. I don't think that's too much to ask for. We as adults have places to go where we can "just hang out," why shouldn't our kids?

Within the last month, there has been a group of people who work under the Southern Garrett Youth Alliance and have been trying to provide fun, safe, and affordable activities for our youth. We've had a coffee house for high school students; we've had a Karaoke Night for middle school students; and May 4 were having a Cinco de Mayo family dance. We have many more activities planned. We've had fairly good turnouts and have gotten a lot of great feedback from the kids at these events.

I would like to recognize the following individuals/businesses for their time and generous donations to make these events possible: Ed Nutter, Derek Nutter, John Armstrong, Jenny White, Amy Piper-McConnell, Penney, Nikki, and Casey Hughes, Jane Avery & Our Town Theatre, Sam Butler/Laker Café, Ernie Gregg/Gregg's Pharmacy, Pam/Jan Florist, Sue Roberson/Mary Kay Cosmetics, Susie Garner/Garrett 8, Reel Video, Sheila O'Neill/Loch Lynn Restaurant, Kathy/Perfection Plus, Monica and Andrea Hedrick, Megan Shaffer, DJ JonnyRock, Dave Turney/Oakland Fire Department, The Republican, CVS, Coca-Cola of Cumberland, Paul Moreland/Unfinished Business, Holly Holler, Lauren Jolles, Toni Callis, Jim and Susie Garner, Peggy Logsdon, Robin Beckman, and Doug Gaither, Linda Dawson/Broad Ford Elementary. If I've left anyone out, I apologize.

Everyone is always complaining about the kids in our community being destructive, walking the streets, dealing/doing drugs, smoking, drinking, getting pregnant, running the roads, hanging out in parking lots, riding their skateboards on the sidewalks. Instead of complaining about it, do something about it! Give them someplace to go that will be safe, affordable, and easily accessible!

We always need help. We always need donations for our events. I've said it before; I'll say it again. I don't care who does it or how it gets done, just as long as it gets done. We are talking about our future leaders. It's time to step up to the plate and take care of our kids today so they will take care of us tomorrow.

To the Editor:

While peeling carrots the other day my mind wandered to the people who picked those carrots. I thought about the hard-laboring workers who help harvest the foods we eat. They are paid very poorly, yet work very hard. My mind then began to think of all the very hard-working people who do their jobs for low pay, no recognition, no benefits, and often are looked down upon by so-call professionals.

Today the push is for higher education. The higher the college degree you have, the more prestige one has. If one doesn't go to college,... well, let's just say, I doubt if you would see their picture in the paper as being "Mr. ditch digger of the week."

I am an RN and have a very good job, and I guess I am a so-called "professional," but I have had many low-paying, non-professional jobs. I have, for example, picked green beans for 2¢ a lb. and I've dug potatoes. I know how hard some of the "blue collar" workers work. Many, if not most, are paid far less than they should be, and often times by the "professionals." I wonder how it would feel for their bosses if the tables were turned and the shoe were on the other foot?

The Bible offers the solution for all of life's needs, and it does most assuredly for this. Luke 6:31: "And as ye would that men should do to ye also to them likewise." Wouldn't things be so much better if we would all just do what the Bible says?

God bless the workers! We are all needed to make it here on earth!

P.S. If we were all doctors, lawyers, CPAs, etc., who would fix our roads, bag our groceries, or mow our lawns?

To the Editor:

Community spirit is something Garrett County has in abundance, and a perfect example was in full force on a recent evening when Boy Scout Troop 22, under the direction of Scoutmaster Bob Stephens, turned out to help clear and clean up the lot belonging to Our Town Theatre, on the corner of First and Center streets in Oakland. And while we were certainly the beneficiaries of their labor, they were really there to support one of their own. Ben Peracchio, a member of Troop 22, is planning and arranging the construction of a memorial garden on that site as his Eagle Scout project. The garden will be dedicated to the memory of students in Garrett County who did not live to graduate from high school.

Recent inclement weather has slowed the construction of the garden wall, but the troop wanted to help Ben move forward with the project by preparing the lot. They picked up bricks and stones, raked trash and leaves, and loaded it all, including some large sections of tree trunks, on a truck donated by Marshall Stacy, of Pinetum Enterprises. They seemed to enjoy themselves, being particularly delighted as various "treasures" were unearthed as they worked.

The most striking part of the evening to me, however, was the fathers who came and worked beside each other and their sons. What wonderful role models they were, demonstrating love of community and support for their sons activities, and teaching them some of the skills involved in such work.

On behalf of the board of directors of Our Town Theatre, I want to thank Ben, Marshall, Bob, all the members of Troop 22, and their fathers, for a great job well done. I hope they will remember what they contributed to that project every time they go past the garden.

Sincerely,
Judy Finkel
President of the Board

To the Editor:

My friend Ron went to his doctor. The doctor inadvertently gave him a shot that triggered an extreme "adverse reaction" or side effect of incessant, excruciating pain. That was years ago and he has never recovered, despite trying almost every known painkiller. Point: Sometimes conventional medicine and therapies harm, rather than help. This is just one of many reasons people are flocking to alternative/natural/integrated medicine.

Unfortunately, however, snake oil has never entirely disappeared. That compromises the reputation of licit, effective alternative remedies. So what is the confused consumer to think? As an advocate, beneficiary, and armchair student of natural medicine for more than two decades, I have a suggestion for starters: Take your cues and clues from health professionals you know you can trust.

A recent edition of The Republican included a brief introduction from Gregg's Pharmacy to valerian, one of America's most popular herbs. As explained by Gregg's, valerian is a safe, mild, and natural sedative. I have read that the benzodiazepine tranquilizer Valium takes its name from valerian, especially interesting during these days of never-ending terror alerts.

Another helpful source of information about valerian is The Natural Pharmacy (published by Healthnotes Inc.). This book has an eclectic array of authors from various types of conventional and alternative/integrated medicine, including two M.D.s. According to this source, valerian is just as effective as traditional drugs prescribed for insomnia or anxiety. Further, valerian, unlike synthetic drugs, does not induce a hangover; it does not impair the ability to drive or operate machinery, and it does not lead to addiction or dependence.

I commend Gregg's Pharmacy for reminding us that sometimes health consumers have kinder, gentler options beyond — and occasionally even in conjunction with — conventional choices. Especially since Ernie could probably have made more money promoting Valium. Yup, this is an honest pharmacist. Please give me some more reasons to write, Ernie.

SPIDER-MAN

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 2:01 - Released 5/3/02

Not being a particular fan of superhero comics, I have to admit I've never read Spider-Man and don't know much about the character. This is why I was rather surprised to see that Tobey Maguire, the quiet, slightly geeky guy whose understated performances gave Pleasantville, Wonder Boys, and The Cider House Rules their sturdy underpinning, was starring in Sam Raimi's 21st-century update of the classic Marvel Comics character. But I guess Spider-Man's alter ego, Peter Parker, created by Stan Lee and Steve Ditko and adapted for the screen by David Koepp, is a quiet, slightly geeky guy. At any rate, Maguire fits the role. He's not an action star, he's not a martial arts master, he's not a ball of muscle who blows up stuff while uttering clever one-liners...and yet, now he is. Our little Tobey has found his multimillion-dollar, sequel-making action role that will catapult him from minor prominence as a real actor into the pantheon of major commercial contracts and household word status of which real acting plays a very small part.

Spider-Man begins with a high school field trip to the Columbia University science department, where spiders, for some reason, are being cross-bred to produce "super spiders." Yeah, that's something I need around my house. When sweet-tempered doormat student Peter is bitten by an errant orb-weaver, he begins to feel a little woozy. After getting home, he tells his loving Uncle Ben and Aunt May (Cliff Robertson, Rosemary Harris) that he needs a nap, but when he wakes up, he feels better than ever. He also discovers that he can climb walls and buildings and spin webs from his wrists. Basically he does whatever a spider can. Hoping he can win some quick cash and buy a car to impress his friend and literal girl-next-door Mary Jane (Kirsten Dunst), on whom he's had a crush since 4th grade, he designs a costume and enters a wrestling competition against "Bone-Saw McGraw" (WWF/WCW wrestler Randy Poffo, a.k.a Macho Man Randy Savage—you know, the Slim Jims guy?). Peter wins the competition, but it's too late: M.J. is already dating his best friend, Harry Osborn (James Franco), whose father, Norman Osborn (Willem Dafoe), is the founder of a multi-million-dollar chemical company. You know how the chicks always go for the rich guys.

But dating soon becomes the least of Peter's problems when his uncle is shot by a thief during a police chase. As he lies dying in Peter's arms, Uncle Ben gives him a piece of wisdom which will ring in his webby ears for decades to come: "With great power comes great responsibility." I think the old man is just talking about always using a condom, but Peter interprets it in his own way, deciding to use his newfound arachnid talents to fight crime and evil. And it's just in time, too, because, as it turns out, Mr. Osborn's company has begun developing a powerful performance-enhancing drug which turns the user into a homicidal megalomaniac with the strength of 10 men, and he chooses himself as the guinea pig. Soon Spider-Man and Osborn (now dubbed The Green Goblin) must face off in a desperate power struggle between good and evil, with Mary Jane caught in the middle.

Tobey Maguire is certainly more than adequate for the scenes in which you can actually see his face or hear his voice, and ditto for Dafoe. Dunst is good at the three things for which she's required; namely, screaming, smiling, and flashing her cleavage. Also notable is J.K. Simmons as the crewcutted, tough-as-nails newspaper editor J. Jonah Jameson. Of course, most of the really amazing action stuff is done either by stunt professionals or CGI computer geeks, but Evil Dead director Raimi definitely understands what makes a blockbuster, with quick cuts, fast action, and the judicious cranking up of Danny Elfman's pounding musical score. There are some eerie moments when images of collapsing New York buildings and fleeing bystanders hit a little too close to home (apparently there was even a scene which involved the World Trade Center that was cut from the final print), but generally things are well-sanitized and kept on a light-hearted basis. Screenwriter Koepp, previously responsible for scripts like Jurassic Park, Mission: Impossible and Panic Room, successfully adapts his writing style to that of pulp comics, and director Raimi follows suit with the film's colorful and fantastic look. And if you're wondering about a sequel, don't worry—not only does the film's ending hint at the possibility, but Spider-Man 2 is already scheduled for release in November 2003.

Reeve. Reeves. Keaton. Kilmer. Clooney. And now, Maguire. Get used to it, folks. Tobey's grown up. ★★★★

LANTANA

Rated R - Running Time: 2:01 - Released 12/14/01

Lantana, the sophomore effort of Australian director Ray Lawrence, is a delightfully complex study into the nature of love, marriage, fidelity, and loneliness. Lawrence, whose only other feature was the well-received 1998 film Bliss, is quickly becoming a respected craftsman of intelligent cinema, and his work teaches us Americans not only that our friends "down under" are more than a bunch of affable Foster's ale-drinking cutups and crocodile-chasing daredevils, but what film can and should be, regardless of its country of origin.

The film starts with an aerial tracking shot of a huge lantana bush, with its beautiful tropical flowers hiding the deadly sharp thicket of thorns beneath, and then we see something even more ominous. After this, we meet Sydney police investigator Leon Zat (Anthony LaPaglia) and his wife Sonja (Kerry Armstrong), who are trying to save their stale marriage by attending latin dance classes. However, we learn that Leon is having an affair with another woman from the class, Jane O'May (Rachael Blake), whose own marriage has already begun to crumble. Meanwhile Sonja, unbeknownst to her husband, has sought counseling from well-known author/psychiatrist Dr. Valerie Somers (Barbara Hershey), confiding that she suspects Leon of infidelity, but that she's not as hurt by the possibility of his having an affair as his failure to tell her about it. "That would be the real betrayal," she says. Dr. Somers, meanwhile, is suffering her own marital problems, as she and her husband, law professor John Knox (Geoffrey Rush), have been wracked with grief over the murder of their young daughter Eleanor, about whom Valerie has written a best-selling book. Their relationship has come to an emotional standstill, and Valerie has even begun to suspect John of having an affair as well, possibly with another of her clients.

After the expository period during which we learn about these couples, one of the above characters disappears, and Leon and his partner (Leah Purcell) are assigned to the case. During the investigation, he learns of his wife's psychiatric therapy and suspicion of him. Although he has already broken his affair off with Jane, his guilt is reawakened and his emotional state begins to suffer. Meanwhile, Jane witnesses something related to the case, and this brings her back in contact with Leon.

Apart from American actress Hershey, this is pretty much an all-Australian production, with well-respected actors like Rush, LaPaglia, Armstrong, and Blake bringing exquisitely to life the characters and relationships in writer Andrew Bovell's story (based on his play Speaking In Tongues) against the backdrop of suburban Sydney. Upon its world premiere in summer 2001, it garnered a virtual sweep of the Australian Film Institute, Critic's Circle, and Independent Film Awards, but its initial U.S. showing in September may have been hurt by the events of international importance that were unfolding at the time. Regardless of bad timing, however, this film deserves all its accolades, as director Lawrence uses all his talent and that of his excellent cast to show us the many sides of marriage and sex, grief and betrayal, and Bovell's script, not content to simply present a collection of couples and their problems, wraps the whole story up in an intriguing murder mystery. Just as the lantana bush is used as a metaphor for the intricate and sometimes deceptive nature of the human psyche, so is it an indication of the harsh and twisting reality of a complex murder investigation, where things do not always turn out to be as simple as they appear. ★★★★½

THE SHIPPING NEWS

Rated R - Running Time: 1:51 - Released 12/25/01

From Cider House Rules director Lasse Hallstrom comes The Shipping News, a complex and morose story too complex and morose for its own good. I have no doubt that the novel, by E. Annie Proulx, is a textured and fascinating tale, but Robert Nelson Jacobs's screenplay is forced to cut so many corners, we feel like we're watching the outline of a story instead of the story. Still, under Hallström's capable hand, and with actors like Kevin Spacey, Judi Dench, and Julianne Moore, the film barely succeeds, simply on the basis of talent.

Spacey plays Quoyle (we never learn his first name), a newspaper inksetter from Poughkeepsie, New York, who has been convinced he's a loser ever since boyhood, when his cruel father threw him into the lake and he failed to swim. "I'm not a water person," he says several times throughout the movie. However, Quolye's life changes when he meets a fiery woman called Petal Bear (Cate Blanchett). Petal is not interested in more than one wild night of sex, but their coupling results in 1) his undying love for her, and 2) a daughter named Bunny. After several years of rearing Bunny almost single-handedly and rewarding Petal's crass and open infidelity with sincere devotion, Quoyle learns she has been killed in a car crash, and at the same time, that his own parents, bored with a stale life and a loveless marriage, have committed a double suicide. Into his misery comes Agnis

Since 1993 volunteers have hauled over 15 tons of trash out of this section of the river, and more than 5 tons of trash have been picked off the river's banks in Friendsville itself. The trash has included appliances, tires, car parts, bottles, and cans.

Roger and Nancy Zbel of Precision Rafting of Friendsville are managing the on-the-water effort this year. Precision Rafting has been part of the cleanup for most of the event's 10-year existence, and has taken a lead role with other guide companies to ensure safety and proper dumping at pickup sites.

Lohr Distributors and Friendsville Discount Liquors are now 10-year sponsors of the cleanup, and Friendsville's S&S Market is a sponsor as well. "We also want to thank the staff of Reliant Energy's Deep Creek hydro-electric facility for providing a water release from the dam, and the rangers and staff of the Deep Creek Lake Recreation Area for support in picking up cleanup trash at designated spots along the river," said Welch.

Crashes Ensue

The next two accidents took place Tuesday morning along Friendsville Road, just over an hour apart. The first crash occurred at 6:57 a.m. when Mimi Joyce Thompson, 20, Friendsville, nodded off as she was driving northbound just north of Gap Run Road (two miles north of Garrett Highway). Thompson's 1995 Chevrolet Cavalier crossed the center double line and struck an oncoming 1993 Chevy Cavalier operated by Rodney Don Frazee, 36, Friendsville. Frazee's vehicle struck a telephone pole before coming to rest in the southbound lane.

Thompson was transported by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released. Personnel from the Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company and the Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene. State troopers charged Thompson with failure to give full time and attention to her driving.

The morning's second crash took place at approximately 8 a.m. north of Friendsville at the intersection of Friendsville and Frazee Ridge roads, just inside the Pennsylvania state line. A 1996 Oldsmobile 88 operated by Glenna Reese, 67, Friendsville, went out of control along the southbound roadway when she fell asleep. Reese's car traveled across the oncoming lane, struck a guardrail, and went over an embankment before coming to rest.

The Northern Rescue Squad transported Reese to Garrett Memorial, where she was treated and released. No charges were filed by state troopers who investigated the single-vehicle accident.

Present Budget

The total debt service for this year constitutes 2.28 percent of the total operating and capital budget, which is below recommended debt service affordability limits. Beitzel added that when the current board of commissioners took office the debt service was 6.9 percent.

Beitzel also noted that the commissioners reduced the personal property tax for businesses by 25 percent last year and 25 percent again this year. The decrease will result in a $500,000 loss in revenue to the county.

Gregg said, however, that the county will actually benefit because owners will now be able to use that money to invest in their businesses, which in turn will help the county's economic growth. Beitzel said the commissioners would like to eventually reduce the rate to zero.

The county property tax rate will remain at $1.036 per $100 of assessed value. Gregg noted that the rate has remained the same since 1997. Because of a tax differential, rates for Oakland residents will be decreased to $.961, while Mtn. Lake's rates will be $.988.

The commissioners' allotment to the Garrett County Arts Council is the same as last year's — $4,000. The Garrett County Historical Society will also receive $4,000.

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce has been allotted $475,000, which is $25,000 more than FY 2003. The chamber, however, had requested $600,000 from the commissioners for this year.

Also allocated in this year's budget is a 2 percent cost of living adjustment of all authorized county employees, as mandated by law, which will be effective Jan. 1, 2003.

Commissioner Fred Holliday thanked the department heads for keeping their budget requests reasonable and for cooperating with the finance office. "We're grateful to the finance staff," added Gregg. He noted that the members had to deal with numerous pages and accommodate several changes in preparing the budget.

The county's FY 2003 budget is available for public viewing at www.garrettcounty.org.

Co-Signing is Serious Business
When you co-sign a loan, you do more than just help someone you care about: You take a risk that a professional lender wouldn't take. As co-signer you guarantee that if the borrower fails to make payments, you'll make them. In most states, if the borrower misses a payment, the lender can immediately collect the debt from the co-signer without first trying to collect from the borrower. If you don't repay, the lender may sue you for payment.
Although you may feel like a third party to this transaction, that's not the case: You are the borrower. Should the primary borrower default, your credit record could be damaged and any property designated as collateral, collected. Don't forget that even if the borrower makes timely payments, the fact that you're liable for the active loan could hinder your chances of being approved for other credit because it will be included on your list of debts.
If, after careful consideration, you decide to co-sign, stay in touch with the borrower to make sure he or she makes timely payments. Get copies of important papers such as the loan contract, the Truth in Lending Disclosure Statement, and warranties. Find out if there are any additional co-signer rights in your state. The people at First Peoples can answer any questions and concerns you have about co-signing.

Steve Turley To Make Return To Pleasant View

The Pleasant View Baptist Church will again host the ministry of renowned classical guitarist Steve Turley on Sunday, May 19. He will be ministering at the church at 10:15 a.m. during morning worship and then will present a full concert at 6 p.m. The public is invited and there is no charge.

Turley has appeared on Pat Robertson's 700 Club, and Worship Leader Magazine called his debut CD, Soli Deo Gloria, an "excellent recording of praise and worship music with the classical guitar."

Turley's latest recording, "From Glory To Glory," tells the story of the God of the Bible, "who creates the world to display the fullness of his glory in the eternal joy of his people," a spokesperson said.

His technique and artistry have created "a singular playing style which should go far in establishing him as one of classical guitar's most promising stylists," wrote another critic.

The musician is the author of two books, Praise Guitar Made Easy and Praise And Worship Guitar (Hope Publishing, Carol Stream, Ill.). He is the founder and director of Fretboard Fellowship, a Christian ministry that teaches people to play guitar for praise and worship.

A graduate of the Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore, Turley studied under the internationally renowned Manuel Barrueco. He won a number of prizes and awards, including first prize in the 1994 Philadelphia Classical Guitar Competition, first prize in the Baltimore Music Competition, and the Hos Award in Guitar for Outstanding Achievement. In 1991, at the age of 22, Turley made his European debut at the Nicolo Paganini International Guitar Competition held in Moneglia, Italy, where he received a Certificate of Merit.

He has been a featured performer for the Jonathan Edwards Institute, Association of Christian Schools International, the Gendai Guitar Salon in Tokyo Japan, and countless churches, colleges, and schools throughout the U.S.

He is currently pursuing a graduate degree at the Reformed Theological Seminary. He is on the music faculty of Eastern College in Pennsylvania, teaching classical and praise guitar.

Steve and his wife Akiko currently reside near Philadelphia with their two daughters.

Pleasant View Baptist Church is located two miles south of Oakland along U.S. Route 219. For more information, persons may call 301-334-8515.

The entry fee is $15 per band, and there will be a $3 cover charge per person. No drugs or alcohol will be permitted.

The audience will be the judge of the performances, with a $1 charge for each vote cast.

Tickets Still Available For Feldon, Eve

Tickets are being reserved at a brisk pace for Starry Starry Night, An Evening of Songs and Readings, a show at Our Town Theatre starring Barbara Feldon, best known as "Agent 99" on the television series Get Smart, and actress and singer Lenora Eve.

The shows will be held on this Friday and Saturday, May 10 and 11, at 8 p.m. While Friday night's performance is nearly sold out, many tickets remain for Saturday. Persons are encouraged to make reservations by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640 and following the instructions on the answering machine. Guests may also buy tickets at the door if any are available at show time.

The two women will present a program of poetry and song, both comic and reflective, with accompaniment by Art Weiss on the piano. The show is a production of the Friedman and Friends series, in cooperation with Our Town Theatre.

Feldon most recently appeared live on television's NBC 75th Anniversary Special, aired Monday night.

Garrett College Pipes & Drums To Host Open House

The Garrett College Pipes and Drums will hold a special practice session for the graduation ceremony and is inviting the public to attend an open house at the same time.

The events will be held on Wednesday, May 15. The open house will begin at 5:45 p.m. when the bagpipe students meet with their instructors. The full band will begin their practice at 7 p.m. Band members will be dressed in various styles of Scottish attire, and light refreshments will be served.

"This is something the band wanted to do prior to the Highland Festival, and we felt this would be a good time to do it," said Pipe Major Jerry McGee.

The band, an affiliate program of the college, holds occasional practices at the college in preparation for such events as graduation. Normally the band practices at St. John's Episcopal Church in Deer Park.

Band members will be wearing their individual tartans and kilts, along with other traditional items of attire.

"This will be a good opportunity for interested folks to view the pipes and drums up close and to observe how the band works," McGee said. "It is also an opportunity to see how pipers begin their study on the practice chanter. Those interested in drumming will see the band's bass, snare, and tenor drums."

"Having the pipes and drums lead the procession at commencement and playing just before and after the program makes the college's graduation ceremony very unique," said college president Stephen Herman.

The college sponsors the bagpipe band, and lessons are available to students.

The band will host the 15th annual Highland Festival on Saturday, June 1, at the Garrett County Fairgrounds. Four other bands from Pittsburgh and Frederick will also be performing and joining together for two massed band events.

More information on the festival is available on the web site www.highlandfest.info. For more information regarding the open house, persons may call McGee at 301-387-6315.

Southern High Theatre Dept. To Offer Keepsakes

The Southern High School Department of Theatre will present Keepsakes VIII next week at Our Town Theatre. Performed by the high school's theatre students, Keepsakes is a series of monologues based on historic people of Garrett County.

The production has become a tradition of the theatre classes, headed up by teacher and director Jane Avery.

The production dates for Keepsakes VIII are Wednesday, May 15, and Thursday, May 16, with both shows beginning at 7:30 p.m. These two shows are not the same, Avery noted. They will each feature seven of the total 14 participating students. Some of the young actors will be portraying their own ancestors.

The cast and the characters being portrayed are as follows: Brian Howell as William Armstrong, Anthony Oliverio as Philip H. Bray, Matt Frederick as Melvin Weimer, Nicole Ray as Sarah Ashby, Nicole Raynovich as Rachel Harvey, Brandi Arnett as Mary Alderson, Jessie Woods as Olia Mattingly, Allen Brady as Ebenezer Kitzmiller, Eileen Mouyard as Elizabeth Hoye, Willie Davis as Pete Chisolm, Nick Betz as Jacob Kitzmiller, Ashley Van Meter as Elizabeth Friend, Michelle Tasker as Sophia McHenry, and Kenny Noland as George Marley.

The admission fee is $3 per person, with all proceeds going to the Southern High School Relay for Life team. The public is invited to attend the programs. For more information, persons may call the theatre at 301-334-5640.

OTT To Present Bergman Play Social Security

The next presentation of Our Town Theatre will be the play Social Security, written by Andrew Bergman. The two-act comedy has a six-member cast directed by Jane Avery.

The production dates for Social Security are May 22-25 at 8 p.m. and May 26 at 2 p.m. Tickets for the show are $5, and persons are strongly encouraged to make ticket reservations by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640. An answering machine will record reservation requests, and a theatre staff member will confirm those requests.

The play takes place in a New York City apartment where the lives of Barbara and David Kahn, two married art dealers, are disrupted when other family members descend upon them with a sudden and disturbing request. Comic sparks fly when Barbara's elderly mother hits it off with a famous artist, much to the dismay of Barbara's neurotic sister and brother-in-law.

Avery said the show is for those over 18 years of age.

"The play is a hoot," said Avery, "but there are some situations and some language that parents might not want younger children to experience."

The players in order of appearance are: David Tuel as David Kahn, Susan Rushing Bell as Barbara Kahn, Mary Sincell McEwen as Trudy Heyman, Lane Duda as Martin Heyman, Deirdre Kildow as Sophie Greengrass, and Fred Jacoby as Maurice Koenig.

Serving as the stage manager is Venessa Stacy. John Wildesen is the set designer, and Erin White is the lighting designer.

Book Club To Discuss Mother-Daughter Bonds

The Ruth Enlow Library Adult Book Club has set a special discussion meeting later this month that will focus on the bonds between mothers and daughters, as featured in the best-selling novels of Amy Tan, author of The Joy Luck Club and The Bonesetter's Daughter. The gathering will get under way at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, May 20, at the Oakland library.

"May is a time to think of mothers, those wonderful, complicated people that play a huge role in one's life," club spokesperson Venessa Stacy said. "The mother-daughter bond can be one of the most powerful relationships in a woman's life.

"Tan's books often focus on the lives of Chinese-American women, their relationships, and how those relationships are affected by their cultural history. The daughter of immigrants from China, Tan pulls from her own experiences and stories from her mother's life to create believable characters."

In addition to the novels The Joy Luck Club and The Bonesetter's Daughter, Tan co-wrote the screenplay for the critically acclaimed movie The Joy Luck Club, and two children's books, The Moon Lady and The Chinese Siamese Cat.

All discussion meetings of the Adult Book Club are open to the public, and participation is encouraged but not required. Copies of Amy Tan's books, audio books, and a video based on The Joy Luck Club are available for borrowing from the Oakland library. Persons may call the library at 301-334-3996 or consult its web site at www.relib.net for more information.

The Adult Book Club is funded in part by the Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library.

The announcement marks the second straight year the Ram senior has been named to the Area's First Team and her second WMIL Player of the Year honor.

Joining Liller on this year's All-Area First team are Erika Kykendall of Petersburg, Alicia Sanders of East Hardy, Karen Knight of Bishop Walsh, and Julie Cessna of Frankfort. Three Garrett County players merited All-Area Honorable Mention status: senior forward Jennifer Bosley and sophomore forward Becca Flanagan, both of Southern; and junior forward Amanda Frantz of Northern High.

Garrett County was also well represented on the WMIL list. In addition to Liller, the First Team squad included NHS's Frantz and SHS's Flanagan and sophomore guard Robbin Gregg, along with Bosley and Husky senior forward Bridget Frazee on the Second Team, plus Honorable Mention recipient Justine Pagenhardt, a sophomore Southern guard. Rounding out the WMIL First Team were Fort Hill's Becky Vance, Westmar's Natalie Sloan, and Beall's Angie Johnson.

The Area honor recognizes Liller as the best player in a pool of approximately 200 eligible players from 19 schools across a nine-county swath of western Maryland and nearby West Virginia and Pennsylvania, while the WMIL kudo singled her out as the best player on the six public school teams that compete in Garrett and Allegany counties.

Liller closed out her four-year starting career this campaign by scoring a school-record 550 points, and she paced all Area scorers by netting a 22.0 average in leading SHS to a school-best 24-1 record and the Area and WMIL crowns. She hit 46.9 percent of her field goal attempts from two-point range, and 42.8 percent of her three-pointer attempts, and was fourth in foul shooting percentage at 76.3 Opponents showed their respect for the fleet-footed guard by sending her to the foul line an area-high 173 times, where she connected for 132 points.

Liller led the Rams in assists with 130 for a 5.2 average per game, and steals with 85 for a 3.4 average. Working the off-side of the opposition basket to perfection, the 5-7 guard positioned herself to snag 160 rebounds (6.4 per game), second-best on the Ram squad. Those rebounds were key to Southern's high point production on the other end of the floor, as Liller was able to spark a number of fast breaks that resulted in runaway lay-ups for her and her teamates.

"Ashley was an excellent leader for us on and off the court," Southern coach Don Stemple commented. "She is a student of the game and understands what you have to do. It was like having another coach in the game when she was on the floor. She was also a very unselfish player who was always encouraging her teammates and was the kind of player who made those around her better."

Liller's overall basketball career at Southern is one of the best any player, in any sport, has put together in the red and white. She was named the Rams' Most Valuable Player for a record four straight years, and led the squad in scoring in each of her four seasons — a span that saw SHS net a superb 72-27 record and go 62-14 over the last three years. Her #21 jersey was retired at SHS Winter Sports banquet, a well-deserved honor in light of her leadership skills both on and off the court.

Liller is at or near the top of a number of SHS career categories: No. 2 in scoring with 1,625 points; No. 1 in assists at 479; No. 1 in steals at 377; and No. 4 in rebounds at 443.

"Ashley created all kinds of problems for opponents because of her versatility," Stemple said. "She was a top inside and outside player, and a great passer, shooter, and defender. Other players wanted to be like her and respected her work ethic and demeanor. She is the complete package of what a student-athlete should be," the Southern coach said of Liller, who is carrying a 3.76 grade point average into her last few weeks of high school.

Liller is the daughter of Sue and Kevin Liller of Oakland.

Frantz earned her All-Area Honorable Mention and WMIL First Team recognition in part by recording the league's second-highest scoring average, a 15.0 tally. Although the Huskies turned in a disappointing 8-15 season (2-8 WMIL), a bright spot in their program was Frantz's aggressive play on both ends of the court. The junior was runner-up in the WMIL's foul shooting category with .765, and her trio of three-point goals was good for fifth in the league. She averaged five rebounds and three steals per contest.

Flanagan and Bosley, also Honorable Mention recipients at the Area level, teamed up with Liller and the other Rams to pace the Southern squad to its first unbeaten regular season (22-0), the area championship, and second straight league title as SHS defeated its opponents by an average of 28 points per game.

Flanagan was a favorite target for Liller, as the forward displayed a knack for getting open for the close shot. Her 10.8 scoring average was good for seventh in the league, and she hauled down a team-high eight rebounds per contest, averaged 2.3 steals, and recorded a .682 free throw percentage in WMIL play.

Bosley's 8.4 per-game scoring average was down from last year as the Rams switched offensive gears, but her many contributions on both ends of the floor did not go unnoticed by area coaches. She sacrificed her body again and again by either setting bone-jarring picks for a teammate or fighting through a defender's pick to keep the nearly impenetrable SHS defense intact. Like several other Rams, including Flanagan, Bosley played in pain for a large portion of the season.

Gregg's WMIL First Team honors were due in part to her 12.3 scoring average, good for fourth in the WMIL and second in the Rams' line-up. She averaged 2.7 steals and 4.9 assists, and has already moved into seventh place on the all-time SHS career assists list with 217. The 5-4 player has earned a reputation as one of the league's top perimeter defenders, and is noted for her quickness, shooting range, and ability to penetrate an opponent's defense before dishing the ball off to an open teammate underneath the basket.

Pagenhardt rounded out Garrett County's post-season accolades by garnering WMIL Honorable Mention status. The sophomore, a leader of a superb 2000-01 junior varsity Ram unit, stepped up into the next level of competition by establishing herself as one of the three starting backcourt players in Stemple's fearsome three-guard offense. Her speed helped SHS move the ball up the floor before opposing defenders had time to get into position, often forcing them to foul. When sent to the charity stripe herself, Pagenhardt proved to have ice water in her veins as she coolly connected on 83.3 of her free throw attempts, second best in the area, and a WMIL-leading 80.7 percentage.

Christian Men's Softball League Begins Season

The 2002 season for the Garrett County Area Men's Christian Softball League opened with three doubleheaders this past week. The remaining teams in the league are scheduled to play their first games today and Saturday.

Mt. View Mennonite swept Crellin Assembly of God, 17-10 and 18-3, behind the pitching of Gerald Tice in both games. Merl Beachy, Kevin Yoder, and Loren Yoder all hit home runs for Mt. View, and Jonathan Lease smacked three round-trippers for Crellin.

Oak Park Church of the Brethren was hammered twice by Crellin United Methodist, 19-4 and 26-8, with Mike Fazenbaker the winning pitcher in both. There were only two home runs in the game, both hit by Jeff Martin of Crellin UM.

The third twinbill of the week saw Oakland Church of the Nazarene defeat Cherry Glade Mennonite II in a slugfest, 28-21, and the second game was knotted at 12-12 after five innings when it was called because of darkness. Brian Ashby hammered four home runs, while Tim Upton, Steve Shaffer, and Nathan Murphy each hit one for Nazarene. Equaling Ashby's four-homer night was Tony Bender of Cherry Glade II.

Mt. View and Crellin UM are currently tied for first place in the league with 2-0 records, Nazarene is in second place with a 1-0 mark, and Crellin AG and Oak Park are in third place, each at 0-2.

Rams Leave No Doubt About First-Place Spot

The varsity baseball team of Southern High School has left absolutely no doubt that the Rams are the team to beat in the 1A West Region championships, as they continued to dismantle opponents again this past week. Coach Jim Bosley's team crushed host Beall on Friday, 17-5, in a Western Maryland Interscholastic League contest, blanked Northern, 10-0, in Accident Saturday morning, shut out visiting Keyser, 10-0, Saturday afternoon, and finally rolled over WMIL opponent Fort Hill on Monday, 9-0, also in Oakland. Three of the four games were called after five innings.

The Rams were scheduled to play Bishop Walsh at home on Tuesday and travel to Fort Hill yesterday, but both of those games were rained out. They will make up the game against Bishop Walsh this Friday; however, there will not be time to play Fort Hill, as regional playoff action will also begin tomorrow.

In Friday's win over Beall, which assured the Rams of another WMIL title, the Rams took the lead for good by recording five runs in the first inning, but led by only three, 8-5, after four complete innings. However, it was in the top of the fifth that they erupted for nine runs to seal the victory.

Leading the Rams' 14-hit performance were Brad Palmer with a two-run homer and two singles, Kevin Goralski with a solo home run in the fourth inning and a run-producing single, and Tobi Stoner with a double and a single for four RBI.

Pacing the Mountaineers, who dropped to 6-10 with the loss, was Chris McCormick with a solo home run and a single. Nathan Shipe and Ryan Harper each provided a pair of singles.

Stoner gave up only one hit in going the five-inning distance against Northern Saturday morning, and aided his own cause by recording four RBI with a double and a single. He fanned nine Huskies and walked only two in upping his personal record to 5-0.

Also getting a double and a single in the Rams' 10-hit effort was Ricky Reams, and Chad Panther provided two singles.

Chad Carr had Northern's only hit, a lead-off single in the second inning.

The loss evened the Huskies' record at 9-9.

Bryson Meyers allowed only two hits later that afternoon pitching against Keyser, while the offense generated seven hits and took advantage of four errors by the Golden Tornadoes.

Southern once again took control of the momentum and the scoreboard in the first inning, as Kevin Goralski ripped a three-run homer. The next 2½ innings went scoreless, but the Rams put six more runs on the board in the bottom of the fourth to make it 9-0. One more run in the fifth ended the contest because of the 10-run rule.

Stoner hit a double and a single for a pair of RBI.

Meyers, who improved his mark to 6-0, struck out eight batters and walked only one. He had a no-hitter going until the top of the fifth.

It was Dennis Tressler's turn to perform well on the mound for the Rams Monday at home against Fort Hill, and he did so, as he allowed just four hits in seven innings.

The Rams scored two runs in the first, one in the second, and five in the third to put the game away.

Reams had two of Southern's 10 hits, a double and a single for two RBI. Getting two singles apiece were Goralski and Palmer.

Tressler struck out nine and walked just one to earn the win over Jake Crites. Four different Sentinels each hit a single.

The loss dropped Fort Hill to 5-10 overall and 1-5 in WMIL games.

The top-seeded Rams have a bye in the first round of the playoffs, and will play the winner of Friday's Northern-Allegany game on Monday. See separate story for the playoff schedule.

Rams, Huskies Set To Enter Region Playoffs

The Northern High School varsity baseball team, seeded ninth in the Maryland 1A West Region pairings, will begin its quest for a state championship this Friday by facing eighth-seeded Allegany on the Campers' diamond.

Meanwhile, the top-seeded and undefeated Southern High Rams, who will be playing a make-up game at home against Bishop Walsh at about the same time on Friday, drew a bye in the first round of the playoffs and will host the winner of the Northern-Allegany game on Monday.

Also gaining byes in the first round are the second through fifth seeds — Clear Spring, Boonsboro, Smithsburg, and Hancock — while sixth-seeded Beall will entertain 11th-seeded Williamsport, and seventh-seeded Westmar will host the 10th seed, South Hagerstown, on Friday.

After Monday's quarterfinals, the regional semifinal games will be played next Wednesday, and the championship game will be played Friday, May 17. The state tournament will be the following week.

Softball Post-Season Slate Opens Tomorrow

The high school girls' varsity softball playoffs open tomorrow as the Maryland Class 1A West Region tournament gets under way with the bottom six seeds of the 11-team field squaring off against each other in the opening round.

Local Round One action will be confined to Northern High's Huskies, as NHS opens against Westmar. Other battles of the day will pit Williamsport vs. Clear Spring, and Boonesboro vs. Smithsburg. Should Northern defeat Westmar tomorrow, the Huskies will face third-seeded Hancock on Monday in Round Two.

Top seed Southern High makes its playoff debut Monday, as the Rams take either Boonesboro at home at 4:30 p.m. or Smithsburg on the road. The winner of that Round Two battle advances to a Wednesday showdown against fourth-seeded Allegany; if Southern is still in competition, the Rams are slated to host the Campers at 4:30 p.m. that afternoon.

The regional finals follow on Friday, May 17. The Maryland Championship Tournament gets under way with semifinal play on Tuesday, May 21, and the final battle for the Class 1A state crown is set for Thursday, May 24.

Fur Flies As SHS Rips Wildcats; Possible Playoff Preview Ahead

The Southern High School girls' varsity softball team skinned the visiting Wildcats by 23 runs Monday afternoon as the Rams walloped Westmar 25-2. The game was SHS's only outing of the week, as the rain and mud wreaked havoc on the schedule.

SHS carries a 15-1 mark into today's regular season finale, a 4:30 p.m. home contest with 9-6 Allegany (raindate tomorrow). Southern coach Dave Bosley feels the Campers may be the toughest competition the Rams could face in next week's Maryland 1A West Region playoff tourney.

SHS sprinted out to a 5-0 first-inning lead against Westmar Monday and never looked back. The Rams scored 10 runs in the second stanza and four in the third before the Wildcats got on the board with a lone run in the fourth. Southern added six more runs in the bottom of that stanza to go up 25-1 before the guests closed out the contest with their second run in the top of the fifth.

The 21-hit Southern slugfest was a superbly balanced team effort, as 12 of the Rams' 14 batters recorded at least one hit. Shortstop Ashley Liller paced the attack with a 3-for-3 tally that included a triple and two RBI. Gina Reeves doubled, singled, and drove in three runs, Megan Bernard went 3-for-4 with three singles and a pair of RBI, Amber Bernard drove home two runs on two hits, and Erica Green had one RBI as she and Bosley both went 2-for-3.

Junior Rachel Friend tossed a fine game for the Rams, going the five-inning distance for the win. She struck out three Wildcats, issued three walks, and gave up seven hits and two earned runs.

Following today's season-ending battle with Alco, the top-seeded Rams will sit out tomorrow's first round of the West Region playoffs before squaring off Monday against the winner of the Smithsburg (8-10) vs. Boonesboro (3-15) contest. If favored Smithsburg wins, Monday's game will be at Smithsburg; if Boonesboro pulls off an upset, SHS will host that contest.

Looking forward to this afternoon, and the possibility of a subsequent playoff match-up with the Campers, coach Bosley commented "Allegany hits the ball pretty good. They are the only team to get any earned runs off Jennifer Bosley, all three of which came in one game, during which they hit her pretty well compared to the rest of the teams she's faced this year."

The Rams won the April 9 match-up the coach was referring to by a 13-3 tally, a seven-inning complete game victory for his ace pitcher who struck out 12 batters and issued two walks, but gave up an unheard of (for her) seven hits and three earned runs.

Alco hurler Jen Cook had an off day during that contest as well. Normally one of the area's better pitchers, Cook gave up an uncharacteristic 21 hits as Autumn Uphold rocked her by going 5-for-5, and Liller and Bosley both went 4-for-5.

"We can't look ahead past this afternoon, or our Monday playoff opener either," Coach Bosley warned, "but the girls are looking forward to a chance at facing the Campers again in the playoffs. If we can win Monday's game and then get past Allegany, we could go a long way — one game at a time." The Region Championship contest is slated for next Friday, May 17, at a site yet to be determined.

Lakers On Brink Of Being Eliminated From XX Tourney

Teetering on the brink of elimination in the Region XX Tournament are the Garrett Community College Lakers, who concluded their regular season with a 4-2 victory over host Essex CC on Friday. However, they are currently trailing, 13-8, in a suspended tournament play-in game against Hagerstown CC that began yesterday afternoon on the Lakers' diamond, but had to be called after seven innings because of rain. The game will be concluded at 9 a.m. Friday.

Matt Pryor went the distance on the mound for the Lakers in their victory over Essex, giving up seven hits, striking out eight, and walking three.

After three scoreless innings, the Lakers took a 3-0 lead in the top of the fourth, as Kurk Skacik reached on a two-out single, P.J. Ross followed with a walk, and Jeremy Shaffer brought both of them home with a double. Josh Bosley then connected for a single to plate Shaffer.

After Essex responded with a single run in the bottom of the fourth, the Lakers added an unearned insurance run in the fifth when Ryan Wetzel led off with a single, stole second, went to third on a failed pick-off attempt, and scored on a passed ball.

Essex rallied for one run in the bottom of the seventh, but could get no closer.

The win gave the Lakers an 11-21 record for the regular season.

The winner of the GCC-Hagerstown Region XX game to be concluded tomorrow will play top-seeded Potomac State College at 12:30 Friday, also at Garrett. Second-seeded Allegany College will then play sixth-seeded Essex, which eliminated third-seeded Anne Arundel from the tourney on Tuesday.

However, the Hawks began to connect off Berry in the middle innings, and currently hold a 13-8 lead, as the contest was suspended by rain after seven innings. Above right, coming out to talk to Berry after the score was knotted at 5-5, were assistant coach Seth Hansen and catcher Dean Altavilla. Below, relief pitcher Matt Pryor attempts to complete with first baseman Jeremy Shaffer a successful pickoff of a Hagerstown baserunner. The game, which was a play-in contest of the Region XX tournament, will be completed tomorrow morning. Photos by John McEwen.

Youth Soccer Registration Now Under Way

The Mountaintop Soccer Association (MSA) is now conducting registration for the fall 2002 soccer season. According to MSA president Ron Petrella, players may register one of two ways. An on-site registration will be conducted Saturday, May 18, from 10 a.m. to noon at the Social Hall of St. Peter's Catholic Church located along Fourth Street in Oakland.

"The on-site registration is done primarily for newer players and parents who want to register in person, ask questions about the program or to meet directly with a MSA representative," said Petrella, who added that anyone is welcome to register on that day.

As in past years, players may also register by mail. "We mailed applications for the fall season and the summer camp, along with a newsletter to all players who participated in the league last year," said Petrella. Those applications were mailed last Thursday. The mail-in registration deadline is June 15. Applications received/postmarked after that date require a $5 late fee, and players will also be placed on a waiting list and added to a team if an opening occurs.

If a player from last year did not receive an application by mail or for those who want to register by mail, anyone may pick up an application at any branch of the Ruth Enlow Library. The application along with a check made payable to MSA should be sent to the address noted on the form.

"It is important to register on time to ensure that your child is placed on a team," said Petrella. "We are also addressing special requests differently this year. The number of special requests has grown so much that we are unable to honor them all, and it has caused problems in formulating teams. With over 500 kids in the league now, special requests will be granted for extenuating circumstances only. We want to make parents aware of this ahead of time and ask for their cooperation."

Because the league continues to grow every year, Petrella said that MSA can always use help from parents to coach, referee, serve as a contact person, etc. MSA sponsored an E license coaching clinic this past February in which 31 people participated. This summer the association will conduct a referee certification course. "We are short referees and encourage people to take the course," Petrella said.

Anyone with questions or wanting to assist MSA this year may contact Petrella at 301-334-1174.

Arsenal Girls Blank Potomac, Tie With Ice

The under-18 girls' team of Arsenal Football Associates recorded a 4-0 victory over Potomac Highlands Sunday afternoon, as Sabrina Scheffel finished with a hat trick and rookie Sarah Mullenax scored her first goal ever in the league.

Megan Burner and Scheffel were each credited with an assist. Arsenal keepers Alasha Rush and Kailee Craig did not see much action, as Craig had two saves.

Arsenal then took a two-goal lead over the Northern Ice team, with Scheffel and Burner each scoring. But Brittany Milbourne capitalized on a penalty kick and Megan Shaffer scored a goal for Ice to knot the match at 2-2, which is how it ended. Rush had 14 saves for Arsenal. Karie Kamp recorded four saves and Susan Kolb was credited for three for Northern Ice.

The under-12 Arsenal boys played at home Sunday, and came up on the short end of a 4-2 score against Spikes Chimney Sweeps of Reedsville, W.Va. Alec Holloway and Andrew McCreery each scored a goal for Arsenal, with Michael Rosecky and McCreery each getting an assist. Royce Warnick and Rett Rhodes combined for 11 saves in goal.

Area Speedway Review

by Cheryl Baker-Stasiak

The West Virginia State Championship Series got off to a great start with 29 late models signing in the pits and Tim Hitt winning the first leg of the race sponsored by Kendle. Bobby Hill and Butch McGill led the field to the green. Gary Dalton led the first lap, but could not hold off Paul Wilmoth Jr. Wilmoth led until lap 30, when Tim Hitt methodically picked off cars after starting 11th and took the lead in lap traffic. Hitt then pulled away and picked up the win.

Mike Balzano, Wilmoth, Steve Casebolt, and Robbie Scott rounded out the top five. Heats went to Balzano, Chuck Harper, and Nolan Dalton. The dash was won by Bobby Hill, and Wilmoth was fast qualifier with a 15.146.

Mark Banal held off the competition to win the B-Main. Steve Casebolt was the Timberwolf Hard Charger.

Pennsboro, W.Va.'s, M.T. Hall is looking to defend his 2001 point title, and moved closer to his goal by picking up the Semi Late Feature on Friday night. He started on the pole, quickly pulled to the lead, and never looked back. L.C. Powers, Jeff Kesling, Stanley Spooner, and Donnie Dotson filled out the top five. Heats went to Hall and Powers.

Vic Vandergrift made it two in a row in the AMRA Modifieds, as he led the race wire to wire. Dave Defibaugh, Ron Parrish, Clifton Cochran, and Shawn Davis finished in positions 2 through 5. Heat winners were Cochran, Vandergrift, and Brent Trimble. The consolation winner was Doug Thompson.

The big winner in the Pure Stocks was Chuck Bloom, after leading the entire event. Last week's winner, John Redshaw, picked off several cars to finish third. Jim Byers and Jay Martin were fourth and fifth. Heats went to Bloom, Hamrick, and Byers. The consolation went to Kristopher Southern.

Golf Coupons Available As BBBS Benefit

Garrett County Big Brothers Big Sisters is sponsoring "Play Seven for Fun," its annual golf fund-raising campaign. The Garrett County agency has a limited number of golf coupons available for sale at its Second Street office in downtown Oakland, located in the Professional Building above the Historical Society, and at Deep Creek Pharmacy in McHenry. The booklets, valued at more than $300 apiece, are selling for $60 each on a first-come, first-serve basis.

The coupon booklets are good for two rounds of 18 holes at each of seven area golf courses — Alpine Lake Resort, Canaan Valley Resort, Lakeview Course at Cheat Lake, Mountainview Course at Cheat Lake, Oakland Golf Club, Preston Country Club, and Tygart Valley Golf Course. Cart rental is not included and reservations are required. "We would like to thank each of the participating golf courses for making this possible," local BBBS coordinator Joan Johnson said. "This is a great way to have loads of fun, while at the same time providing funding to help ensure BBBS programs continue."

All proceeds from the coupon sales benefit Garrett County BBBS, a mentoring agency that strives to match at-risk children from single-parent homes with quality adult volunteers. The non-profit organization, which receives no government assistance, helps ease the transition to adulthood for many area children. Individuals interested in BBBS programming or purchasing golf coupons can contact Johnson at 301-334-3591 or 800-400-0735.

Oakland Little League Opens Season With Pomp, Ceremony

A pair of special ceremonies at the Broadford Park Little League baseball fields marked the opening of the 2002 season of the league on Saturday, April 20, with the dedication and naming of the field as the Carl DelSignore Memorial Field, and the honoring of local elected officials, military personnel, law enforcement officials, and volunteer emergency service workers.

League president Jane Roberson led the dedication ceremony honoring the memory of Carl DelSignore for a major donation from the DelSignore Foundation. The monies were used for improvements at the park, including lights for both the Little League and junior/senior league fields, and replacement of the infield grass on the junior/senior league field. Donald Cussins represented the DelSignore Foundation.

The second ceremony revolved around the theme, "Honoring Our Hometown Heroes.' Among those recognized for their support of the Oakland Little League were Delegate George Edwards, Garrett County Commissioners Fred Holliday, Ernie Gregg, and Wendell Beitzel, and Mayor Asa McCain of Oakland, all of whom assisted in securing a grant which was also used to fund the lighting project.

The ceremony began with a moment of silence in memory of Frank Sweitzer, former league president, who also served as a board member, coach, and umpire. The Broadford Gospel Quartet (Dave Martin, Tim Miller, and Carl and Jeff Fike) sang the national anthem.

Certificates of appreciation were presented to representatives of various public safety agencies, including the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, Maryland State Police, Oakland City Police, Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, and the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

Special certificates were presented to three individuals who represented the U.S. armed services, past and present. Christine Fischetti was recognized for her service as a U.S. Navy WAVE during World War II as an aviation machinist mate, 2nd class. She is believed to be the oldest female veteran of WWII in the state of Maryland.

Dick Friend, a Vietnam veteran who served as a combat engineer, was also recognized. During his tour he received the Purple Heart and the Distinguished Silver Cross for Valor, as his heroic actions saved the lives of several other soldiers. Friend, who threw out the first pitch of the season, is an alumnus of the Oakland Little League, having played in the league nearly 50 years ago in its inaugural seasons.

A third individual recognized for his current service was Jeremy Hayhurst, son of Tom and Martha Hayhurst, and a 2001 graduate of Southern High School. He was not present for the ceremony because he is currently serving in Afghanistan with the 187th Division, 2nd Battalion, U.S. Army. Jeffrey Stem, a current Little Leaguer and a cousin of Jeremy, accepted the certificate in his stead.

The ceremony concluded with a fly-over by the Maryland State Police helicopter, Trooper 5, a 21-gun salute by the local VFW Post firing squad, and presentation of the Maryland and U.S. flags by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office color guard.

OPENING DAY for the Oakland Little League was unlike any other this year at the Broadford Park fields, as two special ceremonies were held, one to name the park in memory of Carl DelSignore and the other to recognize various community leaders, armed services and law enforcement personnel, and emergency services volunteers. Above left is the U.S. flag being displayed atop the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department's ladder truck. Above center, the Broadford Gospel Quartet, consisting of (from left) Tim Miller, Dave Martin, Carl Fike, and Jeff Fike, sings the national anthem. Presenting the colors was the Garrett County Sheriff's Office color guard unit, above right. Providing a 21-gun salute was the firing squad of VFW Post 10077, Deer Park, pictured below left. Throwing the first pitch of the season, and one of the military service persons honored, was Dick Friend, pictured below right, second from left. The decorated veteran of the Vietnam War is also an alumnus of the Oakland Little League. Also in the photo, from left, are Brad Frantz, league board member; Ryan Fitzwater, catcher for the Allegheny Welding team; and Chuck Fitzwater, umpire. See story for details.

From the Family of Naomi Deborah Hardesty "Debbie"

We would like to say "Thank You" and express our deep appreciation to our family, friends and neighbors for their prayers, visits, flowers, food donations, and card during the recent illness and death of our wife and mother.

It was nice to know how many people cared in a time of need. We would also like to send a special thanks to Steve, Cathy, Lynn, Anna, Mom (Granny), Rev. Billy Foster, the McClung family, Dr. Robert Goralski, and anyone who said or did anything in any way during our time of sadness.

The Garrett County Humane Society and the Garrett County Animal Shelter would like to extend our sincere Thanks to all the businesses and individuals who contributed to our 2nd Annual Spay/Neuter Awareness Month. With your help we were able to raise $4,275.00, which spayed/neutered 171 animals within Garrett County. We would also like to thank the citizens who took the time to have their pets spayed or neutered. We feel this is a great step toward decreasing pet over-population.

New Interpretation of Insecticide Labels for Mixed Hays (IMPORTANT, PLEASE TAKE TIME TO READ)

Because farmers were spraying grass hay crops last year for armyworm with products labeled for alfalfa, when only a little alfalfa was present in the field, a new legal interpretation has come down from the EPA. Products for alfalfa pest control cannot be used in a mixed hay field unless the label states specificly that it is legal for use in mixed hays. Therefore, a farmer who has an alfalfa/grass hay mix cannot use Warrior, Bathroid, Pounce, Ambush, Lorsban, or Dimethoate. Products that are labeled include: Carbaryl, Methoxychlor, Malathion, Methomyl, and Methyl Parathion. For a product to be used on a crop it must have tolerance established of each component in the mix (timothy, ordchardgrass, perennial rye, red clover, etc.). It is very important that farmers follow the label when making insecticide use decisions for controlling a pest. Last year over $250,000 in fines was given out in Vermont because of violations. According to the ruling, fields initially planted as pure alfalfa can use the range of products labeled for alfalfa.

How to Improve the Effectiveness of Burndown Herbicides

Environmental conditions are usually not optimal when burndown herbicides are applied, thus reducing activity and weed control. Even though the daytime temperatures are increasing, at night it is still in the 30s, which impacts active weed growth and herbicide uptake and activity. Also, larger annual weeds and perennials that have overwintered tend to be more difficult to control under cold conditions. In general, herbicides such as glyphosate (Roundup, Touchdown, etc.) and 2,4-D provide the best control when annual weeds are 6 inches tall or less and still in the vegetative stage of growth.

Below are a few suggestions to help improve burndown herbicide activity.

* Wait until a few days of warm, sunny weather have occurred before applying herbicides. Herbicides work slower under cool conditions.
* Use ester formulations of 2,4-D, instead of the amine. Esters are usually more effective under cool conditions and on perennial weeds. Also, esters usually penetrate the waxy leaf surface (cuticle) better than amines.
* Adding ammonium sulfate (AMS) to glyphosate is helpful under cold conditions.
* Increasing the rate of herbicide may be necessary if weeds are stressed by cold or are larger in size.

Home Vegetable Gardening Tips

"Don't cultivate your garden." This may sound like very poor advice, but the truth is, cultivating and deep hoeing cause considerable damage to the shallow roots of flowers and vegetables. Also, every time you cultivate, you stir the soil and bring weed seeds to the surface where they can germinate. A 2-inch layer of mulch will stop annual weeds; otherwise, cut off weeds at the surface of the soil with a sharp scuffle hoe, so in a week or 10 days, you won't have another batch to destroy. If you do not have a scuffle hoe, pull the weeds by hand. If you start early in the season and keep them pulled regularly, it is not too big a job in a small- to medium-sized garden.

Many carrots are available, from round and blunt forms to the long, tapering types. The half-long varieties, such as Nantes or Danvers and their hybrids, are best for most home gardens. Blunt types such as Chantenay are best for heavy, compact soils. Long, pointed varieties, such as Imperator, are not recommended for home production unless the soil is very deep and loose. Soil compaction will cause forked, irregular roots, as will the use of fresh manure.

Be on the lookout for a green vegetable called parcel. It looks like parsley, but tastes like celery.

Root crops must be thinned, no matter how ruthless this practice seems. Thin carrots, beets, parsnips and onions so you can get three fingers between individual plants.

When the spring is very wet and the soil is too muddy to work, try planting your seed potatoes on top of the ground. Lay the cut seed flat on top of the wet earth with the eye up, spaced in rows 24 inches apart and 12 inches apart in the row. Then cover them with 6 inches of oak leaves and water the leaves heavily enough to pack them so they won't blow off. This method saves digging a planting furrow, hilling, and digging up the potatoes. Just pull back the leaves and there they are, nice and clean and not sunburned.

Plastic jugs make inexpensive and easy-to-use "hot caps" for your vegetable seedlings. Remove the bottom inch of a plastic jug so that the sides are straight. Then cut around the jug below the handle, leaving a half-inch uncut piece under the handle as a hinge. Place the jug over a seedling, pushing it deep into the soil with the handle toward the prevailing wind. This reduces the chance of it blowing open. The jug serves as a "hot cap" to guard against frost, a translucent shield to prevent sun-scald, and a wind barrier. When the plant is well established, the top can be folded back during the day and flipped into place when needed at night. When all danger of frost is past, cut off the top at the hinge, leaving the bottom to provide a reservoir for watering.

Reduce club root problems in your cabbage family crops by setting aside one section of the garden and liming it to a pH of 7.2 (based on soil test results). It won't eliminate the disease, but it will improve your yields of cabbage, broccoli, collards, cauliflower and kale.

When weather is wet or cold, allow about twice the germination time listed on the seed packet. If there is no sign of growth after this time, dig around a little to check for sprouted seeds. If you find no signs of life, the seed has probably rotted, and you will need to replant.

Because of to a very thin seed coat and high sugar content, super sweet corn varieties are very susceptible to cold soil conditions. Early plantings, when soil temperatures are below 65 degrees F, will not come up as consistently as regular sweet corn. They are also susceptible to corn root maggots and may require a pre-planting, soil insecticide treatment.

Plant a bush-type, winter squash like Table Ace or Gold Nugget if your garden is small and you do not have adequate space for the long-vine varieties.

Swiss chard is a soft-textured, mild-flavored green. It will give repeated harvests all summer because it does not bolt and go to seed in hot weather like spinach. Swiss chard, especially the red cultivars like "Rhubarb Chard," look beautiful and hold up well in flower arrangements.

Harden transplants of flowers and vegetables by decreasing water, fertilizer and growing temperatures. Transplant on a shady day in late afternoon or in early evening to reduce transplant shock. Water with a half-strength fertilizer solution. For a few days after transplanting, protect the plants from wind and sun by placing a piece of newspaper or cardboard on their south sides or by covering with jugs, baskets or flower pots. Water the plants once or twice during the next week.

When transplanting seedlings in peat pots to your garden, be careful not to allow the rim of the peat pot to protrude above the soil level. If the rim is above the soil level, it will act as a wick and draw moisture away from the transplant. To prevent this from happening, break away the uppermost rim of the pot before planting and make sure the pot is completely covered with soil.

Farming On The Mountaintop

Applications For LEAD Maryland Being Accepted

LEAD Maryland, a non-profit organization dedicated to developing leadership for agriculture and rural communities, is accepting applications for its third class, which begins in February 2003. The application deadline for LEAD Maryland fellowships is October 1, 2002. Finalists will be interviewed, and a class of up to 25 fellows will be named by the end of 2002.

"LEAD Maryland is an extremely valuable program for developing the next generation of rural leaders," said Bradley H. Powers, deputy secretary of the Maryland Department of Agriculture and LEAD Maryland board member. "In addition to learning from nationally and internationally recognized experts, each fellow brings experiences and perspectives to the class that enhance the strength and breadth of the program."

Farmers, government managers, and representatives of private companies and nonprofit organizations all benefit from enrolling in the two-year program. Besides a series of eight three-day seminars, fellows participate in a study tour to Washington, D.C., and to an international location to help the leaders-in-training compare and contrast political, economic, social, and cultural issues. Class I traveled to Belgium and the Netherlands, and Class II plans to travel to Cuba in January.

Candace Lohr, a member of Class II whose family owns and operates a fruit and vegetable operation in Harford County, signed up for the program because it seemed to be a "great opportunity" to meet more people in production agriculture and to expand on her agriculture knowledge. "I am working with 22 other great people involved in agriculture," she said. "It's given me a more rounded look on agriculture."

The LEAD acronym stands for Leadership, Education, Action, and Development — all qualities that are taught in the class. Successful candidates will have demonstrated emerging leadership abilities, as well as a genuine interest in agricultural and societal issues. Fellows learn through lecture, discussion, self-assessment, group activities, and by completing a leadership project. Graduates go on to serve their industry, community, and organizations, and to serve through public office.

The five founding organizations are the Maryland Department of Agriculture, Maryland Farm Bureau, Maryland Agricultural Education Foundation, Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board, and the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension. Past and current fellows are from Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Caroline, Carroll, Cecil, Charles, Frederick, Harford, Kent, Montgomery, Queen Anne's, St. Mary's, Talbot, Wicomico, and Worcester counties.

For further information about the program, persons may contact Susan Harrison, executive director of LEAD Maryland, at 410-827-8056. ext. 136, or sh194@umail.umd.edu.

Corn Planting Running Ahead Of Schedule

Despite periods of rain last week, Maryland farmers had an average of 4.6 days suitable for field work, which they used for activities such as planting corn. Consequently, 52 percent of the corn crop is planted, 12 percent ahead of the previous week, 15 percent ahead of the previous year, and 15 percent ahead of the five-year average. Corn is 20 percent emerged, 15 percent ahead of the previous week, 10 percent ahead of last year, and 15 percent ahead of the average.

Some vegetables are also well ahead of the average planting schedule. Sweet corn is 50 percent planted, 5 percent ahead of last year, and 11 percent ahead of average. Snap beans are 19 percent planted, 8 percent ahead of last year, and 6 percent of the five-year average. Green peas and lima beans are 2 and 3 percent ahead of schedule, respectively.

Small grains are in mostly good to excellent condition, with winter wheat rated 32 percent excellent, 42 percent good, 20 percent fair, and 6 percent poor. Barley is rated 31 percent in excellent condition, 49 percent good, 18 percent fair, and 2 percent poor.

Garrett and Allegany counties have been approved for the Emergency Conservation Program (ECP) because of the drought conditions experienced in some parts of the region. Farmers who had adequate livestock watering facilities but are now experiencing a water shortage may be eligible for cost-sharing to establish or develop a water supply.

Practices include deepening springs and wells, drilling new welsl, or developing new watering sources.

This is eligible only for livestock on grazing land where animals do not have access to water because of drought conditions. ECP cost-shares up to 50% of the cost.

Sign-up ends June 28. Persons wanting more information may call 301-334-6954 or 1-866-723-6407.

sions were claimed by Jim Bendishaw Jr., Mike Hay, Mike Lewis, and Ike McCleary.

Bob Neratka sat on the pole for the Fayette Tire Late Model feature. As the green dropped, Nolan Dalton split the front row from his third starting spot, leading the first 18 while holding off the challenges of Neratka and Scott Miles. Meanwhile, Gary Dalton, working the outside, thrilled the crowd as he took one position after another. Dalton of Morgantown, W.Va., started 11th on the grid and took over the second spot from Miles on the 18th circuit. He swept past Nolan for the point on the 19th trip around the mountain top oval. Over the last seven, the duelin' Daltons battled on the raceway, but Gary made it stick and took the win, with Nolan in hot pursuit. Jeff Ferguson, Scott Miles, and Chad McDougal rounded out the top five. Jesse Guseman, Gary Tonkery, Billy Fash, Chuck Clise, and Frankie Buzzo finished sixth through tenth. Heat wins went to Ferguson, Miles, and McDougal.

Jim Bendishaw Jr. of Uniontown, Pa., battled his way to the front to score the win in the Caney Valley Sport and Marine Hot Stocks. Defending champ John Redshaw and Jim Byers, along with Bendishaw, put on quite a show. Redshaw showed the way over the first 11, withstanding the persistent Byers over the first six and Bendishaw the next five. On lap 12, Bendishaw found the opening he needed and darted to the front for good, followed to the stripe by Redshaw, Scott Spade, Byers, and Steve Huggins. Heats went to Bendishaw, Chuck Bloom, and Randy Butler.

Somerset, Pa.'s, Mike Hay is not resting on his laurels after his 2001 championship run. Eighth starting Hay took the lead on the second circuit and sped to the win. Danny Hageman, Eric Hay, Lynn Knepper, and Matt Hay completed the VitaLink-QCOL Classic Lites top five. Eric Hay and Mike Hay scored the heat wins.

The Fort Necessity Garage Modified 4 Cylinders saw Mike Lewis of Oakland take the lead on lap 3 and go on to the win. Lewis was followed to the stripe by Jason Boncoski, Floyd Leonard, Frank Spade, and Bob Moore. Lewis took the heat race.

Ike McCleary of Bruceton Mills, W.Va., took the win in the Fort Necessity Garage Stock 4 Cylinders. Second through fifth went to Marty Spade, Dane Burnworth, Aaron Lucy, and Ed Leonard. McCleary took the heat win.

Roaring Knob Raceway will be back in action this Saturday, May 11. In addition to the big 5-division show, the annual Mother's Day Ladies' Powder Puff racing will be on the card.

Roaring Knob Raceway Park is located two miles west of the Youghiogheny Lake, just off Route 40 along Fearer Road. The gates open at 5 p.m., warm-ups go trackside at 7 p.m., and racing action begins at 7:30 p.m. For more information, please call the raceway office at 724-329-0306 or 724-329-8196, or visit www.roaringknob.com on the Web.

legislation will increase the personal needs allowance for nursing home residents who are recipients of medical assistance from $40 a month to $50, beginning July 1, 2003. Beginning July 1, 2004, the allowance will increase to $60 and will be adjusted annually beginning in 2005.

House Bill 218 was also recently signed by Glendening. Honorably discharged Korean War-era veterans who withdrew during their senior year in high school to enlist in the armed forces may apply for their high school diplomas. The legislation was sponsored by Edwards, Kelly, and Taylor.

The governor's last bill-signing ceremony will be held next Thursday, May 16.

date data about the use the lake can safely bear.

The carrying capacity study, projected to last two years at an estimated cost of $100,000, still has to clear the procurement process before it gets under way. Bids should be coming in early this summer, Durham said.

Water quality concerns also sparked a discussion of stormwater issues, and the board recommended to the Department of Natural Resources that the agency consider adding additional restrictions on stormwater discharge applications and easements. The board expressed a strong desire that DNR take a more proactive approach to protecting water quality, and asked the agency to consider setting higher standards beyond what the state already requires to approve a stormwater discharge application. Durham said that DNR was in agreement with the board's stance.

An extended discussion revolved around board member Greig Johnson's proposal to create additional regulations and restrictions on rental boats on the lake. Most in attendance agreed with Johnson's main concern that a problem could develop if marinas were to dedicate rental boats for the exclusive use of developers; however, a number of speakers downplayed the need for additional regulations and expressed their preference for a re-examination of the proposal. The item will be taken up again during the PRB's next meeting.

The board approved a change proposed by DNR that updates the lake regulations dealing with appeals of lake manager decisions. The change was requested in order to make the regulations consistent with current law, Durham said.

The next meeting of the DCL Policy and Review Board is set for 7 p.m. Monday, July 15, at the Deep Creek Lake State Park Discovery Center. Persons interested in more information about the meeting may contact Durham at 301-387-4111.

Hamm (Dench), Quoyle's aunt whom he has never met. She says she's coming to pay last respects to her brother, but upon learning of the situation she invites Quoyle to come with her to Newfoundland, Canada, to the home where she grew up and where their family originated.

So the two adults and Bunny (played by triplets Alyssa, Kaitlyn, and Lauren Gainer) pack up and head north, finally arriving at a small, grey, fishing town, and there, standing proudly on a rocky hill by the sea is the ancient Quoyle homestead where Agnis grew up. The place is falling apart, but they move in and begin to make repairs, and Quoyle gets a job at the local newspaper. Although he tells his boss, editor Jack Buggit (Scott Glenn) and co-workers, Tert Card (Pete Postlethwaite), Beaufield Nutbeem (Rhys Ifans), and Billy Pretty (Gordon Pinsent), that he's not a reporter, Buggit gives him some sparse instruction on how to write the news of the ships that come and go in the local harbor, and he reluctantly accepts the challenge. While Bunny suffers from nightmares in the creepy old house and Agnis seems obsessed by some past tragedy, Quoyle's job allows him to learn of the bloody nature of his forefathers and the evil things that went on in and around that house. He also meets a pretty local woman named Wavey Prowse (Moore), whose own past keeps her from being totally open with him even as they begin to become close.

Although this film has its moments, the story seems overcomplicated and therefore underdeveloped, as if screenwriter Jacobs (or director Hallstrom) was unable to decide what to cut. There are too many story threads with too little detail; it's like listening to someone with Attention Deficit Disorder. Moreover, possibly because the lighter scenes were the first to hit the cutting room floor, the film has a depressing feel, emphasized by the overall greyness of the setting. Every character seems to have suffered some horrible tragedy in the past, and the entire town is living in a kind of omnipresent gloom. Even the comparatively upbeat ending is anticlimactic. But the unquestionable talent of these actors makes it a watchable, if not overly enjoyable, diversion. ★★★½

NINETEEN STUDENTS WERE INDUCTED into the National Honor Society at Northern High School recently. The ceremony, held at Point View Inn Restaurant, was was attended by students, families, administrators, and faculty. The national criterion for acceptance is an 85% grade point average, but NHS policy requires that its members maintain an average of 88%. In addition to high scholarship, each candidate must demonstrate good character, strong leadership skills, and service in the school and community. The faculty of the school nominates potential new members each year, and a five-member faculty council selects students based on an activity information form and other qualifications. Todd Foley, current Honor Society president, led the ceremony, under the direction of co-advisers Julie Brenneman and Gayle Grimm. New inductees are shown above. In the front row, from the left, are Amanda Geisler, Holly Hare, Ashley Robinson, Megan Zimmerman, and Dallas Miller. ## Garrett County's "Most Beautiful Person" Sought

The Maryland You Are Beautiful Program, in conjunction with the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development and the governor's office, is now accepting nominations for the 16th annual Maryland's Most Beautiful People Volunteer Awards. This year's theme is "The Power of One," which celebrates the impact that one volunteer can have on an organization or group. The deadline for nominations is August 13.

"There are many heroes in our state, but often those 'unsung heroes' — our many volunteers — don't get the recognition they deserve," said Floraine Applefeld, director of the MYAB program. "With the many demands placed on people's time, it's wonderful to see that many individuals still volunteer to serve Maryland, its citizens, and its visitors."

Individuals or groups may be nominated. Persons may not nominate themselves. Past local nominees have included fire fighters, EMTs, librarians, law enforcement officers, teachers, and retirees who, in addition to their regular jobs, have logged hundreds of hours of volunteer service to help others. Jack Smouse, Grantsville, was Garrett County's "Most Beautiful Person" last year. Other recipients include Jane Avery, Charles Strauss, and Heather Butler.

Maryland's Most Beautiful People nomination forms are available at www.garrettcounty.org, in issues of The Republican, and at some county post offices, the courthouse, and all branches of the Ruth Enlow Library.

Carol Riley, Garrett County MYBP coordinator, stressed that the more information that is provided, the better informed the judges will be about the nominees.

"The judges are only allowed to go by what is submitted by the nominator," she said, "even if the judges know that a nominee has done more than has been written on the nomination form." Riley encourages nominators to attach additional comments to the form, which shows only four lines on which to write.

All nominees will be honored at local award ceremonies. The award for Garrett County's "Most Beautiful Person" will be presented by the county commissioners on Tuesday, Oct. 1, in their meeting room. One nominee from each county and Baltimore City will be chosen to represent the many nominees from his or her area at a statewide awards ceremony in Annapolis. The event, hosted by Gov. Parris Glendening, Lt. Gov. Kathleen Kennedy Townsend, and other dignitaries, will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 13.

"Unique to Maryland and the nation, The Maryland You Are Beautiful program generates enormous state pride by recognizing thousands of unsung heroes who make Maryland a better place to live, work, and visit," said Glendening. "This is truly an example of how one person's dedication of time and energy really makes a difference to a particular cause or organization."

For more information about the program, persons may contact Riley at 301-334-8970 or MYAB Internet address — www.dbr.state.md.us/myab.

Area Students Participate In Math Contest

Students from Southern and Northern high schools recently competed in Allegany College of Maryland's 17th annual Mathematics Scholarship Contest. The contest invites tri-state area high school juniors to test their math knowledge and vie for recognition and ACM scholarships. Seventy-six students from nine schools competed this year.

A team award was presented to the school with the highest point total of its top-three individual scores. The top three scorers from Southern High earned the school third place in the team category.

Receiving honorable mention for their individual scores were Jordan Halsig of Northern, who tied for 11th place, and Nathan Rodeheaver of Southern, who placed 18th in the competition.

Finishers in the top 10 places were recognized at a recent awards ceremony attended by parents, teachers, and other school representatives on ACM's Cumberland campus. Scholarships sponsored by the LaVale Lions Club were awarded to the top 10 individual finishers.

Competition results were based on individual student performance on a one-hour algebra- and geometry-based test that was compiled and scored by faculty members in ACM's mathematics department.

What changes with electric choice and what doesn't?

A. You'll get to choose your electricity supplier, while delivery over poles and wires remains the same.

In the past, your entire electric service was provided by your local electric utility. With electric competition, the three main parts of electric service – generation, transmission and distribution – are separated. As the market develops, you will be able to choose the company that provides the generation of your electricity. This company is called an electricity supplier. Transmission and distribution services include the actual delivery of electricity over poles and wires and will continue to be provided by your local utility. Your utility is now called your electric company. They are the ones to call if the power goes out, just as you always have. Got questions about electric competition? # TriState Relief Sale Accepting Auction Items

Organizers of the annual TriState Relief Sale, set for Friday and Saturday, July 19-20, at the Garrett County Fairgrounds, are currently accepting items for the charity auction event. The sale, one of 46 such events in the U.S. and Canada, is sponsored by area Mennonite churches. Proceeds go to the Mennonite Central Committee (MCC), which supports relief efforts in areas around the world stricken by poverty, conflict, oppression and natural disasters. In addition to the Relief Sales, the MCC distributes comforters that are made by Mennonite congregations throughout the U.S. and Canada. Last year the organization distributed over 40,000 comforters.

The TriState Relief Sale will get under way with a large silent auction Friday evening that will feature over 100 items. The main auction will take place the following day. Featured items will include over 50 quilts, one-of-a-kind artwork designed exclusively for the sale, handmade furniture, and vacation packages. The family-oriented weekend will also include food, a market place, and music programs over both evenings.

RELIEF SALE SEEKS CONTRIBUTIONS — The TriState Relief Sale, which will take place in July in McHenry, is accepting contributions of sale items for the annual charity auction. New items are welcome from any business, organization, or individual in the community. Simon Pearce retail store manager Ginny Fillen, left, is pictured as she presents a hand-blown vase to event chairman Douglas Berg. The vase will be one of the items to be sold at the benefit auction, set for Friday and Saturday, July 19-20, at the Garrett County Fairgrounds. Some of the other items that will be featured at the sale include a bentwood hickory rocker on display at the Penn Alps Restaurant in Grantsville, and a quilt and cherry Shaker hall table which can be viewed in the Casselman Ventures building, across the street from the Casselman Restaurant in Grantsville. For information on the TriState Relief Sale, which benefits the relief efforts of the Mennonite Central Committee, persons may call Berg at: 814-445-6945.

Area men and women gather together in the fall and the spring to work together quilting and creating woodwork items to be sold at the auction. Also many area volunteers gather together throughout the year to can beef and other foods to be sent where needed as a result of famine or war. For further information about the TriState Relief Sale, persons may contact Douglas or Harriet Berg at 814-445-6945.

State, County Employment Up During March

Maryland's unemployment rate was a full percentage point below the national level of 6.1 percent. Employment levels reached record-setting levels in March, rising to an all-time high for the month of 2,756,005 people.

"Maryland's healthy economy is reflected in significant employment indicators like job growth and the unemployment rate remaining considerably lower than the national level," said John P. O'Connor, secretary of Labor, Licensing, and Regulation. "It is good news also that many Marylanders who entered the labor force in March were able to find jobs."

Rising employment helped to either stabilize or lower unemployment rates in 19 local jurisdictions. Some of the largest declines in local unemployment rates were reported in the shore area and the western region. The lowest unemployment rates were 3.1 percent in Howard and Montgomery counties, 3.2 percent in Calvert and Charles, and 3.4 percent in St. Mary's County.

Garrett County's jobless rate also dropped, from 11.1 percent in February to 9.5 percent in March. The rate for March of last year was 10.2 percent.

During March, more than 21,300 job seekers entered the labor market, pushing the labor force above the 2.9 million mark for the first time ever since record keeping began in 1978. A stronger than anticipated surge in the labor force caused unemployment to inch up slightly from 5.0 percent in February to 5.1 percent in March. Employment growth increased, but fell short of labor force expansion.

Education and manufacturing recalls, coupled with hiring in several other business sectors, helped to uplift Maryland's labor market in March. Services was the top industry performer, with upturns in agricultural services, amusements, hotels, and health services. Job gains were also reported in retail trade, particularly in restaurants and building material/garden supply stores, and in construction.

Linda Sanders Recognized For Woodmen Sales

Linda S. Sanders, field representative for Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Society, has qualified for membership in the President's Cabinet, President and CEO James L. Mounce has announced. Sanders' membership in the Multi-Millionaire Section of the President's Cabinet is in recognition of outstanding insurance sales production and professionalism during the past year. Members of the cabinet will be guests of President Mounce during a trip to Seattle and on an Alaskan cruise in July.

Mounce complimented the members of the clubs for their accomplishments and their contributions to the success of the society. He also noted the important role they play in providing America's families with the financial protection that life insurance provides.

Woodmen of the World, founded in 1890, is one of the largest fraternal benefit societies in the nation, offering insurance protection with member benefits. The society's 830,000 members, who hold nearly 1 million insurance and annuity certificates, belong to 2,500 lodges throughout the United States. Woodmen lodges across the country conduct fraternal projects of benefit to people and their communities.

Sanders and her husband Dennis live in Mtn. Lake Park, and her Woodmen office is located at Bayberry Castle adjacent to Southern High School.

Three Natural Ways to Control High Blood Cholesterol

Prescription medicines are available to help persons reduce high cholesterol levels. These medicines are especially important to those individuals who have inherited the trait to overproduce cholesterol. Even with use of these medicines it is important to limit intake of foods containing large amounts of cholesterol (e.g., eggs, liver) and foods that contain saturated fat (e.g., any animal fat, including chicken and turkey skin, pork, beef). Therefore, one "natural" way to reduce cholesterol is through attention to diet.

Another natural approach to cholesterol control involves the daily use of the fiber supplement psyllium. This fiber, which some people use to prevent constipation, can reduce cholesterol by as much as 20%. Psyllium apparently interferes with absorption of fats into the bloodstream from the intestine. Another natural approach involves eating foods that contain garlic or using garlic extracts in supplement form. Many studies have shown a significant drop in cholesterol among garlic extract users.

Planting Seeds in Little Souls

How fitting that Mother's Day comes in the spring when we often find mothers [and fathers too] sowing tiny seeds that will produce fragrant flowers and fresh vegetables as they mature. It can be a satisfying and rewarding project.

Have you ever thought of your child's young soul as the most fertile soil? Luke 8:11 says, "The seed is the word of God." A mother has the rewarding opportunity to plant the seed of God's Word in her youngsters' heart and mind as she shows them kindness and prayer, and reads aloud stories of God's love.

A mother also has the opportunity to attend regular worship with her children so that seed will continue to mature as the child grows. Worship with your family on this Mother's Day. Plant a seed. Reach a child. Watch him or her grow.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

ALL IN THE FAMILY

Background Scripture:
Galatians 3 through 4.
Devotional Reading:
Galatians 4.17-22..

Thomas Carlyle tells of an impoverished widow who appealed to her neighbors for help when she became ill. But they turned deaf ears to her entreaties: what happened to her, they reasoned, was no affair of theirs. But they were wrong, because the widow was the victim of typhus which eventually infected the whole village and seventeen of them died along with her. Carlyle comments: "She proved her sisterhood. Her typhus fever killed them. They were brothers even though they denied it."

Some years ago I was reading a book about Egypt and was dismayed to learn that the reason Islam almost totally displaced Christianity there was that the Christianity practiced by the Greeks who had brought it there was afflicted with race and class barriers. Islam, by contrast, offered a brotherhood. How often Christianity has been presented a faith that keeps many as outsiders.

This is a time of great turmoil in Galatia. There are terrible disputes between the Jewish Christians and the Greek Christians. Instead of a fellowship the situation was similar to that of the Hatfields and McCoys. Down through Christian history there is a sad and embarrassing stream of indemnity between Christians of various persuasions.

Once, while taking a group through Romania, we stopped at an Orthodox Church and watched a wedding in progress. We were followers of the same Christ but none of us felt or exhibited any sense of family relationship. I reminded our group: "Their ways of worship are so unlike our own, but we need to remember that their Christian ritual and way of life are a lot closer to original Christianity than ours is."

Paul sayest: "For as many of you were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male nor female; for you are all one in Christ Jesus" (3:28). Today, Paul would add that there is neither Roman Catholic nor Protestant, Fundamentalists nor Liberals. It may appear that there are many different families of Christian faith, but that is an illusion. There is only one family and there is no use denying it.

The original family started with Abraham. In his time there were no Hebrew people, no Israelite tribes. Those whom we think of as the early Hebrews came together from many different sources and cultures. Because Abraham believed in God, he became the founder of a family that later became a nation and eventually a mighty movement. It was the covenant of God that made them one people. Through Christ this family of faith was opened to the Gentiles, the non-Jews.

As different as we may worship, live out our lives, and verbalize our beliefs, there is one thing that we all have in common: something leads each of us to recognize God as our Father. "God has sent the Spirit of his Son into our hearts crying, "Abba, Father!" (4:6). It is this recognition that we are his children that leads us to acknowledge that we are brothers and sisters to all of his children, not just some. Ethnic, cult

Roswell scribe hopes to reward loyal fans

By Taylor Michaels
©Tribune Media Services

Shiri Appleby

Q: Whatever happened to Roswell on UPN? My sister says it has been canceled, but I thought it was going to finish this season. Is that true? –Trish Derlet, Carmichael, Calif.

A: Roswell has its series finale on Tuesday, May 14. Since its move last fall to United Paramount Network after The WB Network canceled it, the show's already-feeble ratings have plummeted, thus making its cancellation a virtual certainty. However, fans should send bouquets and heartfelt thanks to Roswell executive producer Jason Katims for seeing the handwriting on the wall and doing right by the cult of viewers who have stuck with the show from the start back in the fall of 1999.

"In writing this episode, I had very much the audience in mind, particularly the loyal fans," Katims says. "I wanted to write something that I felt would be a satisfying ending for people who have been with the show since the beginning.

"There's definitely closure for Max and Liz (Jason Behr, Shiri Appleby). At the end, there's a sense of them going off as a group, leaving Roswell but being together. I like the image of that ending, because it gives you the sense that these characters are still out there together somewhere."

Q: Please help me remember a show from my childhood that featured a family of robots who fought evil. The man was made of gold and called Goldar; the woman was made of silver and called Silvar. –Mark Pearce, Fortson, Ga.

A: That was Space Giants, a crudely animated Japanese series that got major U.S. exposure via cable superstation TBS starting in the '70s.

Q: Will 100 Centre Street return to A&E? –M. Glandon, Odessa, Texas.

A: Sadly, no. The show was canceled after losing a huge chunk of its audience this season.

Q: On an earlier episode of Six Feet Under, Mary Gross (Saturday Night Live) played the instructor of a floral class. I was amazed at the resemblance between her and Rachel Griffiths, who plays Brenda on the HBO series. Are they related? –Connie Sparks, N.M.

A: Actually, Australian native Griffiths says that she has been mistaken far more frequently for actress Juliette Lewis, but she is related neither to Lewis nor Gross.

For her part, Gross has a well-known brother, Michael, who starred in the long-running NBC sitcom Family Ties. Ron Masak, who played Sheriff Mort Metzger on Murder, She Wrote, is their cousin.

Pathways Leads To Information For Families

The Pathways program, offered by the Alzheimer's Association, Western Maryland Chapter, is a three-hour educational program for families and friends of individuals with suspected or recently diagnosed memory disorders, including Alzheimer's disease. Pathways will be held on Monday, May 20, from 5:30 until 8:30 p.m. at the Garrett County Health Department, 1025 Memorial Drive, Oakland.

Pathways provides basic information about Alzheimer's disease and related disorders: definitions, the diagnostic process, causes, age, and incidence. In addition, family concerns such as communication tips, caregiver stress, community resources available at the local level, and ways to prevent or manage difficult behaviors will be addressed.

Instructing the program is Donna McClintock, LCSW-C of the Garrett County Adult Evaluation and Review Service. Advance registration is requested. To register, persons may call 1-800-696-6830.

More information about Alzheimer's disease and related disorders and other services of the Alzheimer's Association is available at www.alzwmd.org.

NAMED VOLUNTEER OF THE YEAR — Cathy Higgs was recently named the Garrett County Community Action Committee Volunteer of the Year. She was cited for her work, which was instrumental to the Overlook Head Start classroom. Duane Yoder, president of GCCAC, is shown above with Higgs. Yoder said that Higgs donated many hours, but what she added to the classroom is more than the hours she gave. Higgs is an Overlook's Policy Council representative and has not missed a meeting.

Q. I have an Atwater sewing machine, which has been in my family for at least a century. It is hand-cranked with a floral design executed in gold leaf. I have often wondered how much it might be worth. — *Audrey, Portsmouth, Ohio

A. Your Atwater machine was patented in 1857 and is worth about $1,200, according to Antique Sewing Machines, a value and identification guide published by James W. Slaten.

According to Slaten, the first sewing machine was the creation of Thomas Saint, an English cabinetmaker. The earliest machine was a crude hand-cranked model introduced in about 1790. Isaac Singer, an American inventor, took the original design, made several important improvements, including a foot treadle, and began manufacturing his machines during the 1850s.

Jan Sabin is an appraiser who specializes in older sewing machines and can help establish values of the older models. His postal and e-mail addresses are: 1359 Crest View Drive, Camano Island, WA 98282; stefnjan@camano.net. To order a copy of the excellent price guide by Slaten, you can contact the author at the Antique Sewing Machine Museum, 3400 Park Blvd., Oakland, CA 94610. Q. I have a 3-year-old female Doberman that recently has started to flip her dry dog food onto the floor before she eats it. She eats it all, even the ones that land in her water dish. She flips it out with her nose almost as if it is a game. Is there a reason for this? — *Linda C., via e-mail

A. Personal preference, most likely. Observe most house pets' feeding habits, and you'll find that each has a distinct way of getting at his or her food. Birds nibble and roll seeds between tongue and beak. Cats often lift one piece of kibble from their dish and place it on the floor before eating it.

Then there are a pet's individual traits: her preferences, habits and hobbies, developed through a lifetime of experiences, good and bad.

Without going too deeply into your dog's psyche, I'd say she just enjoys it. I've known several large dogs (and some not-so-large ones) that flip their bowls over in this manner.

On another level, this is a play for attention. She flips the dish, and you come running to clean up and scold her. Hooray! "Mom" is here, she thinks. Mission accomplished. Ignoring her actions won't stop her.

However, you can't keep picking kibble out of the corners of the kitchen. To end this flip-flop situation, replace her light plastic or metal food dish with a weighted bowl. This item can be found at most pet supply stores, as well as at their online sites.

Make sure her food and water dishes are clean; try washing them out after every feeding for a couple of weeks to see if this makes a difference.

If she continues to flip her food out, supervise her feeding times. Anytime she starts to nudge the bottom of the bowl, growl a "no!" at her. Avoid physical punishment, and don't drag her away from the feeding area if she tips the bowl over. Follow up a flip-free dinner with an extra treat, so your dog associates food in the bowl with a reward.

Johnson Named Garrett BBBS Coordinator

Joan L. Johnson has been named coordinator of Garrett County Big Brothers Big Sisters by the organization's board of management. "Johnson brings 25 years of professional administrative experience to the position," a BBBS board spokesperson said.

"I look forward to the challenges and opportunities afforded me to serve the at-risk children of Garrett County through this nationally recognized mentoring program," stated Johnson. "It will be exciting to work with community-based case manager Rae Ellen Finn and school-based case manager Betsy Herpel as we strive to enhance and expand these two mentoring programs, which provide one-to-one relationships between caring adult volunteers and at-risk children."

Johnson recently moved to Garrett County from Annapolis after retiring from the Maryland Higher Education Commission, where she served as a program manager in the State Scholarship Administration. She was responsible for the general administration of 13 of the state's 20 financial aid programs, including the Distinguished Scholar program.

Among her civic contributions downstate, Johnson coordinated the annual Distinguished Scholar Talent-in-the-Arts Competition held at the Community College of Baltimore County Catonsville Campus and the Distinguished Scholar Recognition Day, which honors Maryland's brightest and best students.

Johnson earned an associate of arts degree from Anne Arundel Community College, and graduated magna cum laude with a bachelor of science degree in business and management from the University of Maryland University College in 1991.

Johnson completed her first major assignment with BBBS this spring during the annual Bowl for Kids' Sake benefit, the agency's major fund-raiser. The event raised over $23,000 through the efforts of pledge bowlers and businesses from across the region. "I am impressed with the generosity and support of the community for Big Brothers Big Sisters," Johnson commented.

Johnson and her husband Offutt reside in Oakland. The couple's daughter Jennifer and her husband Larry reside in Harvest, Ala.

GCMH HONORS VOLUNTEERS — Garrett County Memorial Hospital recently joined a nationwide celebration in honor of volunteers during National Volunteer Week, held April 21 through April 27. The theme for the event was "Volunteers — A Gift to the Community!" The hospital honored its 162 volunteers at the annual volunteer recognition reception at Larry's House of Blues, Deep Creek Lake. Each volunteer received a small gift as a token of the hospital's appreciation. Shown above at the reception, clockwise, are Troy Gnegy, Scott Atwill, Wayne Johnson, Henriette Lease, Jackie Johnson, and Frances Gnegy. GCMH volunteers contribute in various capacities. For example, the gift shop is operated entirely by volunteer members of the Loar Auxiliary, and all proceeds are donated back to GCMH. The Volunteers in Various Areas (VIVA) staff the information desk, staff an office providing clerical services, and serve as liaisons between physicians and patient families during surgery. The Chaplain of the Day program provides patients with access to a chaplain seven days a week. The Foundation Board promotes the public's awareness of the capital needs of the hospital, as well as facilitate funding; and major hospital policy decisions are addressed by the volunteers on the board of governors. "The volunteers at GCHM are a vital part of our overall hospital operations," said Donald Battista, president/CEO. "Our volunteers truly are a gift to our community."

Accident Man Pleads Guilty To Endangerment

An Accident area man entered guilty pleas during a Garrett County District Court hearing last week to charges that he used his vehicle to endanger the safety of his wife and two other persons during the course of a November domestic incident.

Duane Curtis Patton, 32, was convicted on three counts of reckless endangerment and one count of reckless driving, and was handed an 18-month suspended sentence, fined $455, placed on one year of unsupervised probation, and ordered to complete 60 hours of community service by Judge Ralph Burnett.

Patton's arrest by the Maryland State Police occurred in the wake of a domestic altercation at his home, located just south of Keyser's Ridge. When his wife fled the scene in a vehicle with a family member, and another family member followed behind in his car to escort the women away from the home, Patton reportedly took up a chase in his truck.

The police charged that as the two cars which had left the home were traveling on southbound Garrett Highway near the Cove overlook, Patton tried to run both of them off the road at different points.

In other District Court news, Craig J. Marple, 35, Oakland pleaded guilty to misdemeanor malicious destruction of property and was handed a 60-day suspended sentence, fined $355, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 60 hours of community service.

Marple's February arrest by state troopers stemmed from a late-night incident that took place after he had been drinking at an area tavern. On his way home he drove off Boy Scout Road into a field, ran over a posted "No Trespassing" sign, then continued on to crush over 30 pine saplings planted in a straight line.

Marple fled the scene, but one of his license plates was found at the scene of the damage, and troopers checking his truck at his residence discovered mud and pine saplings stuck to his front bumper and the bottom of the vehicle. Additional charges of felony malicious destruction of property and trespassing were not prosecuted.

Donald Ray Park, 41, Oakland, pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct, and was handed a 60-day suspended sentence and was placed on one year of supervised probation. Oakland police of-

STUDENTS WORK TO KEEP TOBACCO OUT OF WRONG HANDS — The scourge of underage tobacco use is as much an issue of supply as it is of demand, and these local high school students have been working to address both ends of the problem through the Student Tobacco Elimination Among Minors (STEAM) program of the Garrett County Health Department. Among the program's efforts over the past school year was a joint project with the Health Department and the Maryland State Police that monitored compliance with Maryland law banning tobacco sales to persons under the age of 18. These students visited 45 local stores to try to purchase tobacco, and found seven merchants willing to sell to a minor — a violation that could draw a $300 fine. The Northern High STEAM team is shown above at the Grantsville Foodland: from the left are Bridget Frazee, Amy Umbel, and Carla Buckel, store employees Gloria Wilhelm and Holly Wilhelm, and Shaina Custer, Micah Plevyak, and Ashley Robinson. Pictured below are the Southern High STEAM members: Terry Tasker, Lacey Glotfelty, Arden Paugh, and Tammy Hall.

Students Help Agencies Monitor Tobacco Sales

A group of local high school students recently completed a joint project with the Garrett County Health Department and the Maryland State Police of monitoring local merchants' compliance with laws regulating the sale of tobacco products to minors. Maryland law makes it illegal for merchants to distribute or sell tobacco to persons under the age of 18, and violators are subject to penalties ranging up to a fine of $300.

The Northern and Southern High students, members of the Student Tobacco Elimination Among Minors (STEAM) program, began visiting merchants last fall in a series of compliance checks and educational activities. Posing as potential tobacco purchasers, the STEAM members visited 45 Garrett County merchants, seven of whom indicated a willingness to sell tobacco products to an underage customer.

The students, along with Health Department staff, also provided educational material to each of the merchants they visited. The Maryland State Police also contacted managers of each of the seven stores that indicated a willingness to sell tobacco to a minor to provide additional detailed information about the law and potential penalties.

"Although a few merchants would have sold a tobacco product to our STEAM participants, we were pleased to find a majority of the merchants requested an ID before selling," said Brenda Frazee, an outreach worker with the Health Department.

"We feel the compliance education visits are a valuable proactive tool for educating merchants about the law and possibly preventing illegal tobacco sales to our children," commented Mike Wilburn, community health educator with the Health Department.

Connie Burdock gave the thanksgiving prayer for the event and the meal. Carolyn Ganoe presented President Bowen a "Sing a New Song" pin, which was part of the UMW Assembly, held recently in Philadelphia. ## Pleads Guilty ficers jailed Park in March after he argued with the staff of a residential human services facility where he was staying. He repeatedly used foul language and made threats during the incident.

Bailey Ray McElhiney, 68, Oakland, was deemed not guilty of a second degree assault charge when his alleged victim refused to testify against him. The charge had stemmed from a domestic incident at his Royal Charlotte Road residence, which led to his arrest when the victim displayed evidence of wounds to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Steven William Clay, 50, Athens, Ohio, was handed stet rulings on charges of second degree assault and resisting arrest. His September arrest by state troopers followed a traffic stop along Interstate 68. Clay's refusal to sign a speeding citation warranted an automatic arrest on the scene, and when the trooper tried to place handcuffs on him he physically resisted.

Matthew Michael Garland, 29, and his wife Jennifer Marie Garland, 25, both of Confluence, Pa., were handed stet rulings in connection with charges of violating an ex parte order each defendant faced. The couple were arrested in March by state troopers who had stopped the vehicle they were riding in together along Maryland Highway. A computer check revealed an existing court order banning Matthew Garland from having contact with his wife, leading to his arrest, and Jennifer Garland was jailed for permitting the contact without coercion.

Charges of possession of marijuana, drug paraphernalia, and a concealed deadly weapon were not prosecuted against David Lee Owens, 41, Florence, Ky. State troopers arrested Owens in April of last year after the odor of suspected burnt marijuana was detected during a routine truck inspection. A subsequent search uncovered a bag of suspected marijuana and a roach clip hidden in the truck, and a switchblade knife in his pocket.

Michael Anthony Cyphers, 39, Brooklyn, was not prosecuted on a misdemeanor theft charge that stemmed from his October arrest by state police after he was found sleeping in his vehicle along Meyersdale Road in the Grantsville area. A computer check had indicated that the license plate on the car had been stolen.

DUI Hearings

Several persons appeared in court on driving while under the influence (DUI) and driving while intoxicated (DWI) charges this week.

Roger Harold Jarrell Jr., 33, W.Va., was sentenced after being convicted of DWI and violating his existing DWI probation agreement. He was handed a total sentence of 120 days, all but eight of which were suspended, fined $455, and placed on one year of supervised probation.

Gregory Brent Robinette, 24, W.Va., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a 60-day sentence, all but eight days of which was suspended, fined $455, and placed on two years of supervised probation.

Robert James Harbaugh, 50, Pa., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a 60-day sentence, all but seven days of which was suspended, fined $200, and placed on two years of supervised probation.

Richard Francis Garber, 26, Md., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ), along with a 30-day suspended sentence, a $355 fine, one year of supervised probation, and 40 hours of community service.

Mark Henry Dunn, 38, Pa., pleaded guilty to driving while impaired and was handed a PBJ, as well as a 30-day suspended sentence, a $355 fine, one year of supervised probation, and 40 hours of community service.

Schoolbus Violation

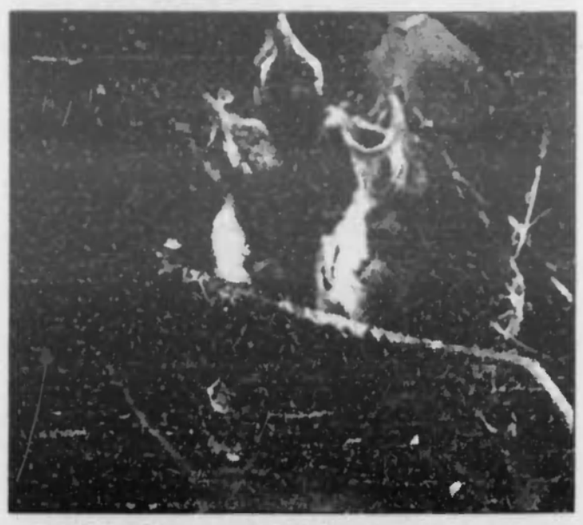
One individual, Ferris S. Owen, 83, Ohio, was handed a PBJ in connection with a charge of illegally passing a stopped schoolbus operating its flashing red lights.



"COUNT ME!" "NO, COUNT ME!" — These red-eyed vireo nestlings will be among the dozens of bird species clamoring to be counted during the annual May Bird Count this coming Saturday, May 11. Volunteers may count birds during any part of the 24-hour counting period and in any part of Garrett County, according to local coordinator Fran Pope. "Feeder watchers" are welcome, along with those who may wish to count birds at a favorite spot, and counters are asked to let the count coordinator know by tomorrow evening (Friday) where they will be counting on Saturday in order to beat season county coverage and avoid duplication. As this year's project includes a new focus on breeding status, count forms that detail specific behaviors to watch for need to be obtained prior to counting. Volunteers are asked to contact Pope at 301-334-4908 or via e-mail at fpope@gcnetmail.net no later than tomorrow evening for forms and more detailed information. Photo by Fran Pope.

MY NOTES

Yesterday I encountered an unexpected crisis. As I was drinking my coffee, I saw a couple of very annoyed little hummingbirds outside my living room window. No wonder they were a little mad, as after all, they just completed a long trip from South America, and when they reached their destination they found no flowers with nectar and no feeders filled with sweet water. They do need plenty of fuel to keep their little engines on high. Just think, if you had to flap your arms a hundred times per minute, your heartbeat would probably really go fast too. Once I caught a little hummer when it got trapped on our back porch. I never felt anything with that kind of energy. The closest thing to that feeling was grabbing hold of an electric fence, but of course, more pleasant than that. But it seemed to me it was very early to see any hummingbirds in Bittinger, as most years they wait until close to Memorial Day to return.

At the Mother-Daughter Banquet at the Bittinger fire hall last Friday evening, a lot of women talked about this spring season as being a little strange. Both Cindy Stanton and Ethel Buckel thought this year's flower season started late and ended fast. I think I agree with them. We should have some blossoming daffodils left, but they are already dead. I looked for some live daffodils to finish a doll I was working on, and the only still nice blossoming bed was at Patty and Steve Diehlman's house, where the old bed that was planted by Marian Stephen many years ago was still going strong. However, I did see some excellent beds of tulips in downtown Bittinger. One was at the home of Thelma Emery and another at one of the homes among the Bender complex.

My one lone yellow tulip last week drooped, so I sacrificed it to make a dress for a doll. I trimmed her outfit with some tiny yellow feathers that I salvaged from a poor little dead goldfinch. I spotted it on Mosser Road last week.

Claire presented me with a big chunk of broken light blue egg shells that she found in our lane on the way home from school yesterday. It is a little bigger and more pale then robin eggs. It also has some speckled tan on it. I don't know what kind of egg it is, but possibly cedar waxwings or morning dove, which are two larger species that hang around our line of big pine trees west from the house. I will use it with a few of my transplanted blue bells that now are in bloom under my maple tree with a few other wildflowers that I transplanted from the woods, including violets and bluets. I know you are not supposed to take wild flowers from their natural habitat, but since I can't go into the woods to commune with them, I sometimes bring a few of them to my yard.

But back to my original subject of my hummingbirds. Even though I did not really feel like running to get another feeding station, I had no other choice, as mine always get broken by hitting against my picture window during our many high wind storms. Where could I find one right away without having to travel very far? Could I also do some other pressing errands I need to do? I need a new five-pound bag of sugar to make their food without burning too much gas or using too much of my very limited energy. I was also crazy to get a fresh supply of Elmer's glue because I was frantically trying to fix those tiny yellow feathers with just a few dried drops of glue.

Last evening was 4-H night in Bittinger, and I could enjoy my girls for dinner and spend a rare school night with them, so I needed a few grocery items for them. They can really go through a lot of yogurt.

The Bittinger 4-H Club decided to repeat last year's trip to Hershey Park for their annual big field trip this year. I am sad to report that Vicki Teets has decided to quit as their leader. The burning question is, "Who can we get to replace Vicki?" It is a hard position to fill since it requires some free time, plenty of energy, someone the kids like and respect, and someone who can get along with all the parents, plus have some experience with the 4-H program. My girls reported to me after the meeting that probably Maggie Hockman will join with Jenny Marple as co-leaders. Of course, we also have Jenny's grandfather, Don Sealing, to help them.

Getting back again to my hummingbird crisis, I decided my best bet for a one-stop shopping trip was McHenry, as I was pretty sure I could get my grocery shopping at Foodland Fresh and if lucky, they might have a feeder. But alas, even though they have a good supply of bird seed, they did not have any feeders. However, I did get my sugar and my glue along with my grocery needs there. I also found a nice lilac bed in the parking lot.

Next stop was just a few miles north on Rt. 219 at Fratz True Value Hardware. Mike Fratz was glad to know that the hummers were back because they did not have their feeders up yet. He was delighted to supply with me a new and bigger feeder than I have ever had, with six stations, which will stop some of the fighting for a place to drink when a half dozen little fellows want to dine at the same time. So if you do not have your feeder up, you had better do it, and you can get a new one at Fratz if yours is misplaced or broken.

I don't want to drive up to Wal-Mart for everything I need, as I believe in buying close to home. You can get lots of things at our two little old-fashioned general stores in Bittinger, but after calling Buckel's Store and Brenneman's Store also for some needed fly strips, they were both out, as there must be a pressing need for those since the most pesky house flies are back.

On a recent trip to Brenneman's Store to pick up a pizza, I asked Susan Brenneman is she had any fly swatters. Although she had none for sale, she gave me an extra one she had for her own use in the store.

It is great to have fast food in Bittinger, and the pizza from Brenneman's Store is as good as any around. The gas prices at Buckel's Store are as low as those of the bigger service stations around the tri-state area, plus you can't beat the service there. Gary will pump the gas for you. Even though they were out of the fly strips and had no hummingbird feeders, what they always have for me is friendly, personal service, and it is great to have soft ice cream too.

The flies are so bad already this year and pop in as soon as a door or window is opened. I don't know where my screens are. I can't afford a whole bunch of new screens, and who would put them in for me? My brother's and sister's families are busy with their own seasonal chores. I might get lucky and find some at a local yard sale.

DEMOCRATS SPONSOR LEARNING TRIP — The Garrett County Democratic Club recently made a donation to help fund the upcoming student ambassador trip of David Goldsborough Jr. The Southern Middle School eighth grader has been selected to be part of the People to People delegation to Australia this summer. The People to People program was founded in 1956 by President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who said he believed that if people could come together in peace and friendship, eventually so would countries. G.C. Democratic Club treasurer Jackie Brady of Kitzmiller is shown presenting the check to Goldsborough.

Discovery Might End Heartburn Forever

WASHINGTON — According to recent research, upper gastrointestinal (GI) problems like acid reflux, heartburn and ulcers may be eliminated with a new type of chewable tablet. Scientists say that GI problems are not the result of excess acid, but the body's inability to deal with it. The new tablet called Pepstat 380™ contains an extract from the Glycyrrhiza glabra plant or DGL that strengthens the body's natural defenses against acid.

Pepstat 380 goes to work immediately on stomach acid while addressing the underlying cause of GI problems. Scientists suggest that the DGL in Pepstat 380 improves the body's protective substances, increases the lifespan of digestive tract cells, improves blood supply to the area and has no known side effects. Comparative studies have appeared in publications like the British medical journal The Lancet showing DGL to be superior to Zantac®, Tagamet® and/or antacids. This new type of formula may make these drugs obsolete.

The problem with antacids which neutralize stomach acid and acid blockers which reduces acid secretions is that they can interrupt the body's normal digestive process. Pepstat 380 is a natural alternative to antacids and H2 receptor antagonists more commonly known as "acid blockers." Pepstat 380 is available at pharmacies without a prescription or call 1-800-729-8446. ©2001 HCD Sales

Valley HealthCare Managing TA Treatment Center

The board of directors of Valley HealthCare System has assumed management of the substance abuse treatment center located on the grounds of Hopemont State Hospital, Terra Alta, W.Va.

Shawnee Hills, a comprehensive mental health center in Charleston, had operated the program since the mid-1980s. Recently, however, the center has been consolidating its operations and asked Valley HealthCare to assume the program.

The Valley HealthCare System Addictions Recovery Unit will provide several level of care for those addicted to alcohol and other drugs. Many referrals come through the court and from voluntary commitments throughout the state, as well as those not able to be served within their area of residence, according to George W. Lilley Jr., chief executive officer.

"Valley's board deeply appreciates the high quality of the existing program and the staff," said O. Richard Bowyer, Valley board president. "We expect to continue the highest quality of care within the resources provided."

According to Lilley, acute detoxification, short-term residential care, and long-term residency are already being provided by current staff members. Up to 45 patients receive around-the-clock medical and supportive therapy care in a "homelike" environment. Residents are involved in daily therapy and education groups, coupled with dietary and recreational activities. Anonymous fellowship meetings, both on-site and in the community, are also scheduled regularly.

"Valley has operated several programs in the Terra Alta community and has experienced excellent cooperation with Hopemont State Hospital personnel, citizens, and businesses in the community," said Lilley.

Miss Reall, Mr. Mellot Marry In June Ceremony

Angela Dawn Reall and Alex Bartholomew Mellott were united in marriage on June 16, 2001, at Mt. Top Christian Assembly in Oakland, with Pastor Edsel Calhoun Jr., cousin of the bride, Shippensburg, Pa., officiating.

The bride is the daughter of George and Pat Reall, Mtn. Lake Park. She is a 1986 graduate of Southern High School and is employed as the jewelry department manager at Wal-Mart in Oakland. The groom is the son of Paul and Carolyn Mellott, Battle Creek, Mich., formerly of Oakland. He is a 1993 graduate of Melody Manor Christian High School and is employed as a draftsman at Beitzel Corporation, Grantsville. He also serves as a member of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown with a V-neckline, illusioned sleeves, and a bodice decorated with floral lace appliqués and bridal pearls. The keyhole back was draped with pearl strands that embellished the back bodice. Venice lace adorned the front skirt that swept into an eight-foot train with appliqués cascading down the back. Imported lace encircled the hemline. The bride carried a round bouquet of red roses and white lilies with cascading flowers and pearls.

The matron of honor was Betty Reall, sister-in-law of the bride, Frederick. The bridesmaids were Heather Reed, Frederick, and Heidi Reall, Braddock Heights, nieces of the bride. The flower girl was Vashti Gregory, niece of the groom, Battle Creek.

The bridesmaids wore spaghetti-strapped red gowns with black sheer overlay. They each carried three red long-stemmed roses tied with a white bow. The flower girl was dressed in a tea-length dress with beads and sequins and carried a red basket trimmed with white roses, filled with red roses petals. All the flowers were arranged by Autumn Gregory of Battle Creek, sister of the groom.

Friend of the groom Scott Frazee, Oakland, served as best man. The groomsmen were Jason Snyder, cousin of the groom, and Joe Metheny, friend of the groom, both of Oakland. The ring bearer was Daniel Reall Jr., nephew of the bride, Frederick. The ushers were Richard Reall, brother of the bride, Cranesville, W.Va., Daniel Reall, brother of the bride, Frederick, and William Reall, brother of the bride, Braddock Heights.

The groom wore a black tuxedo with tails and a white vest and tie. The groomsmen wore black tuxedos with black vests. The ring bearer was dressed in a black tuxedo with tails and a black vest and tie.

Both mothers were given roses from the bride and groom as a token of their love and respect. Special music for the ceremony included "Can't Help Falling in Love" by Elvis Presley and "Love of My Life" by Sammy Kershaw. The pianist was Peggy Lambert, friend of the bride's family, Oakland. The video technician was Rick Brenneman, friend of the groom, Accident. The photographer was Ida Meyers, Oakland. The guest book attendant was Kathy Kisner, friend of the bride, Cranesville.

The bride and groom were driven in a 1993 E-one Quint fire truck by Tom Swiger, Oakland Volunteer Fire Department member, to the reception, which was held at the Oakland fire hall. The decoration theme of the event included fire apparatus.

Mark Stevens was the DJ. The meal was catered by Kat Willsey, sister of the groom, Cumberland. The two-tiered fountain cake with connecting side cakes was made by Shirley Roy, mother of the matron of honor, Oakland.

The father of the bride danced with his daughter to the song "I Wish I Could" by Colin Raye. The mother of the groom danced with her son to the song "Through the Years" by Kenny Rogers. The couple's first dance was to the song "When I Said I Do" by Clint Black and Lisa Hartman Black.

The couple honeymooned in Williamsburg, Va. They currently reside in Oakland.

Chamber's Antique Shopping Guide To Be Reissued

With over 40,000 copies already distributed, The Antique Guide for Garrett County & the Deep Creek Lake Region will be reissued this spring. Compiled and published by the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, this full color brochure features shops offering antiques of all types. Supplementing the listings is a business locator map.

The brochure will be distributed at locations throughout Garrett County and at the Maryland welcome centers at Yough Overlook in Friendsville and Sidling Hill.

Conceived as part of the chamber's program to encourage visitors to patronize businesses countywide, the antique brochure brings together dealers throughout the county in a common marketing effort, chamber president Ken Wishnick explained.

"Antique enthusiasts are very passionate about their interests, and knowing of the selection here may be enough to encourage a long-distance trip to visit," he said.

For information about inclusion in the brochure or about chamber membership, persons may call Deb Clatterbuck at 301-387-4386.

BITTINGER

Last weekend I did not intend to go to any yard sale, but I happened to see a sign for one at the end of Foy Road, and since I have several friends on that road I just had to see where it was. I didn't know the owner of the house where it was located. But I trusted my instinct about the trustworthiness of people and took a chance by buying a used microwave, which was one of my most pressing needs. It does work excellently and I got it for a much smaller price than one would get at Wal-Mart. I got a few nice clear glasses that are perfect for cases for my dolls, and I even got a few new mats for my car floor at just 25 cents per mat.

Emma Bass and my Meredith celebrated their first communion at the Sunday morning service at Emmanuel Lutheran Church. Bishop Ralph Dunkin was on hand for that, as well as installing Lottie Brenneman, Leora Yaste, Connie Beachy, and Meredith Vagnetti as deacons. Their job is to assist our pastor in visitations, etc.

Many fond memories were told at the Mother-Daughter Banquet. I believe the funniest was my sister, Carol Bass, telling the story about when she had her learning permit to drive and, along with our mother, Ruth DiPaolo, was driving up Sidling Hill and as she tried to pass a car Ruth said, "Step on it!" Mother never seems to let any "grass grow under her feet."

A few Bittinger teenagers have just turned 16, one being my nephew, Robbie Glotfelty, who had his birthday yesterday, May 6. It will not be long until Brent Housley and Torrey Poholsky and my Claire will be behind wheels. Next year they will be joined by Blakely Glotfelty and Matthew Bass.

Several local kids will graduate from high school this June. Karla Buckel, Trey Brenneman, and Greg Whittemore will reach that big day, which will be the same day that Greg's grandfather, Bob King, will celebrate his 50th anniversary of his graduation from Oakland High School. Luckily his reunion will be held later in the day than Greg's graduation, so Bob can make both.

Greg's little sister Maddy had a busy weekend, as she had a reception for her group from Brenda's Body Shop at Northern High School on Friday evening, so Lesa and Maddy were unable to attend her favorite dinner, our Mother-Daughter Banquet. Among winners of prizes at the dinner was the oldest mother present, who was Ferne Beachy, the youngest mother, Charlene Moon, and a prize I donated, which was a pair of handpainted greeting cards, to Thelma Emory for the one traveling the closest distance, which was only a few steps. The prize for the one traveling the farthest distance was the former Judith Buckel (Perkins), who traveled about 1,100 miles. She won one of my dolls in a glass case. I was sorry that I did not select the one that I made from her mother's tulips, but it was not really finished. One hotly contested prize was for the most total years of age for a mother and her female decendents. The prize was won by Doris Knox, daughters and granddaughter.

Getting back to Maddy's big weekend, she was joined by my Meredith and Emma Bass to perform a specialty rhythm instrument number for the joint worship service of Bittinger Lutheran Parish held at Emmanuel on Sunday.

Robbie and Blakely Glotfelty and Claire and Caitlin Sussman attended a leadership training workshop held at the 4-H Camp at Pleasant Valley over the weekend. The hot issue was a state edict proclaiming that the Maryland 4-H Club should stop using the traditional Indian theme at their camps. They heard a Native American woman explain why they object to it. But the tribe leaders did not buy her argument that it is disrespectful. The kids asked what they could use to replace the Indian tribes, maybe crime Mafia families or gangs! Claire thinks they should do the Indian theme better and spend a day learning about their tribe's history, traditions, etc. Even without that, when I was a camper, I felt bonded with my "tribe" and always noticed mention of it in a book or in the news. I felt kin with the real Shawnees, etc., of which I am slightly a member of that tribe anyway (1/16th). I felt lucky to be in that tribe at camp.

Just when I thought I had my news organized I heard a thunder roll, and I remembered I had to let the dogs inside and still had to go to the mailbox to send some important bills (are any kinds of bills not important?) I am almost afraid to open my mailbox after the recent news about pipe bombs planted in some rural mailboxes in the Midwest. Of course, we always follow the midwest weather a few days after they get severe thunderstorms. Hopefully, we are not in for the same thing here in Bittinger. So far we are lucky in rarely getting tornados or domestic terrorists. Knock on wood!

I can't forget the one item Audrey Brenneman gave me at church. She wished to announce that the annual meeting of the lot owners of the Bittinger Cemetery will be held Monday, May 27, at the Bittinger fire hall at 11:30 a.m., which is Memorial Day. Can it really be Memorial Day already!? I guess so, as we are already half finished with May and I still have not planted many vegetable seeds. I am not among those Bittinger gardeners who believe it is not time to start their gardens until Memorial Day. I already have missed the one important deadline of planting peas, onions, and spinach, while the ground is still cold.

Earlier today, I had not seen any hummers at the feeders which I had filled, but to my surprise I just looked out the corner of my eyes and saw a zooming hummingbird buzzing my feeders, so I guess I am not too late to catch them. If you are not ready for them they will move on to another house. I talked to Sheila Southerly and she told me that her hummingbirds also appeared yesterday. She also saw a few around the feeder today at her Aunt Beulah Moon's while Sheila was seeing off her other aunt, JoEllen Graham, from St. Albans, W.Va., who has been visiting with Beulah for several days. Sheila also updated me about the Bittinger baseball boys. The varsity baseball team from Northern High School will face Allegany High School in their first playoff game this weekend.

I tell myself I will not start another item, but I do like to include some news from the wider world in case anyone thinks that we in Bittinger do not know what is going on in the rest of the world. But as interesting as my wildbirds and house pests are, I happened to hear a story on ESPN that today, exactly 25 years ago, after he won his Kentucky Derby, Seattle Slew died at the age of 28 years.

Last Saturday I received a phone call from Ellen Housley asking me whether I was watching the Derby. I was very grateful for that call because I had completely forgotten. I don't think I missed one since I was a horse-crazed girl. Even when I lived the "big city life in the big apple," I still tuned in the Derby even when I was involved in a theater deadline. I remember one year when I was about 12 or so years old and I was on my hands and knees scrubbing the kitchen floor. I desperately tried to finish in time to watch the Derby. Ellen was right when she said, "They are so beautiful!" It is true that even now when a young thoroughbred is at its prime it is one of the most beautiful things in the world.

But I should note that my horse, even when he was 31, and after living a long hard competitive life and living his retirement days getting fatter and less fit, he was still as beautiful when he was "over the hill" as when he was in his prime. It is too bad we humans don't fare as well as horses.

I am pretty much finished with this week's column in somewhat good order. I might not follow a carefully planned outline, but at least I was able to tie up some theme I began with. That is one rule of good writing that I used to preach to my GCC students. Sometimes I imagine they are reading this column and shaking their heads saying, "How come she does not follow her own rules?" I certainly do not have a chance to proofread or do any revisions. The best thing I can do is to spend one week noticing and collecting a few items in my mind and let them arrange in some pattern in my mind while I live my life in Bittinger.

Society, Shelter Release Results Of March Event

The Garrett County Humane Society in cooperation with the Garrett County Animal Shelter recently held its second annual Spay/Neuter Awareness Month. During the month of March, the two organizations collected donated funds from many businesses and individuals throughout the county. The Humane Society and Animal Shelter collected $4,275, which paid for the spaying/neutering of 171 animals in Garrett County.

"This is a great accomplishment for us," said Candy Virts, spokesperson for the Animal Shelter. "We hope to do even better next year."

In addition to this event, each year the Humane Society solicits the Garrett County commissioners for monies to fund the county's spay/neuter cause. Last year the commissioners gave the Humane Society $2,500 for spay/neuter assistance, which it distributes to county residents in the form of a $25 certificate that can be applied to a spay or neuter with participating local veterinarians. With this money, 100 animals throughout the county will be spayed or neutered.

In the past year, the Humane Society spayed or neutered 268 animals, paid for 80 animals' vaccinations, paid for 19 animals to be boarded while waiting for rescue, rescued 3 sick puppies with parvo, and rescued 2 dogs with broken legs. Many more animals have been helped by the Humane Society over the past two decades.

"We will do our best to help care for all animals in need throughout the county until the Humane Society is no longer needed," said Bernadine Friend, spokesperson for the organization. "Unfortunately, this most likely will never be the case."

Local Student On Engineering Team At WVU

Near 500 college students from the eastern United States, Canada, and Mexico will converge on Morgantown, W.Va., today when West Virginia University will host a three-day, all-terrain vehicle competition. One of the members of the WVU team in the competition is Jesse Ashby, son of Jim and Joanne Ashby, Oak Park.

About 50 schools will participate in the Mini Baja East at Chaplin Hill Anker Fields in Morgantown. This is the fourth time WVU has been the host for the competition, which is sponsored by the Society of Automotive Engineers.

Mini Bajas are intercollegiate competitions involving prototypes of four-wheel, off-road recreational vehicles. Student teams design, build, and race the vehicles, which run on 8-horsepower engines. Participants compete in events ranging from land and water maneuverability to a four-hour endurance race. WVU has won the event four times since the early 1980s, and usually finishes among the top 10.

Jesse Ashby, a 1997 graduate of Southern High School, is a senior engineering major at WVU. He is one of 10 members of the WVU team.

Local Educator Honored For Work, Foresight

The National Youth Leadership Forum (NYLF), in commemoration of National Teacher Appreciation Week (May 5 through 11), recognized David Mayfield, math and physics teacher at Southern High School, for encouraging students to pursue their career interests.

Mayfield has shown commitment to enhancing the educational experience by nominating Southern High School students to explore NYLF programs in law, medicine, and/or defense, intelligence, and diplomacy, according to the NYLF.

Mayfield has taught math and physics and has been the student council adviser at SHS for 30 years.

"As we celebrate our tenth anniversary this year, the National Youth Leadership Forum is proud of educators like Dave Mayfield because they demonstrate the concern and knowledge necessary to help their students get to where they want to go," said Donna Weldin, executive director of NYLF. "Students who participate in NYLF programs get a jump start in figuring out if a career in medicine, law, or national defense are, in fact, what they wish to pursue prior to college, thereby saving time, energy, and ultimately, college tuition."

Students are nominated to participate in NYLF programs based on demonstrated academic achievement and an interest in one of the three core fields of study on which NYLF focuses.

Mayfield recently nominated Brian Crabtree and Brittany Naylor, who traveled to Washington, D.C., earlier this year to participate in a six-day forum for more than 350 high school students from across the nation.

Crabtree is the incoming president for Southern High School's student council, and plans to pursue an engineering degree in college.

Naylor is a senior member of the student council, and plans to earn a degree in architecture.

Zimmerman Seeks Re-Election To Orphans' Court

George Zimmerman, retired farmer, is seeking re-election to the office of judge of the Orphans' Court of Garrett County.

Zimmerman, a Republican, is a lifetime resident of Garrett County. He graduated from Oakland High School and then immediately entered the U.S. Army, for which he served in the South Pacific during World War II.

The candidate is an active member of VFW Post 10077 and American Legion Post 71, assisting with many activities which include military funerals. He is also a member of the Maryland Farm Bureau, the Garrett County Chapter of Gideons International (which distributes Bibles to motels, hospitals, etc.), an associate member of Fraternal Order of Police, and an active member of the Maryland Association of the Judges of the Orphans' Court, with which he attended seminars twice yearly in Annapolis.

Zimmerman served as an emergency medical technician (EMT) with the Southern Rescue Squad for 10 years. George and his wife Ellen reside near Hutton and have four children, 12 grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren. They are both active members in the Crellin Assembly of God Church.

"Since I have served in this office, many people have asked me what is the orphans' court and what does a judge do?" George said. "In the Maryland's Orphans' Court, a panel of three judges oversees the probate process for many, but not all, estates. Only part of the orphans' court duties actually pertain to 'orphans.'

"For an example, if an inheritance is left to a minor child, the court may appoint a guardian of the property, and the guardian is then required to report to the court on a regular basis until the child comes of age," Zimmerman explained. "The court conducts judicial probate, directs the conduct of personal representatives, secures the rights of minors, and rules on fees for attorneys and personal representatives. It is the responsibility of the orphans' court to ensure that the provisions of a will are followed and the rights of heirs are protected in the absence of a will, that creditors' rights are preserved, and that the personal representative fulfills his/her duties.

"The orphans' court also settles disputes over estates, and many rule on such matters as testamentary capacity, fraud, undue influence, and the live execution of a will," he continued. "The three judges function as a team, they are a part of the local community, and they merge their different perspectives and experiences in their decision-making processes for the good of the people they serve. They are elected by the people and are accountable to the people.

"Having served one term, if I am re-elected, I will serve the people of Garrett County with the utmost integrity," Zimmerman concluded.

Robert F. Rodeheaver is serving as the candidate's campaign treasurer.

Townsend Throws Hat In Ring For Governor's Race

Maryland Lt. Governor Kathleen Kennedy Townsend officially declared her candidacy for the office of state governor this week during a campaign kickoff rally in front of the State House in Annapolis. Townsend made the announcement surrounded by her husband David, two of the couple's four children, many dignitaries and state officials, and Ethel Kennedy, the candidate's mother and widow of the late Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

In her remarks, Townsend stated that she was "proud of the progress that has been made in the past eight years in Maryland" during the two Glendening/Townsend administrations. Citing statistics that show Maryland has substantially improved its ranking in the areas of education, economic development, child health care and crime fighting, Townsend pledged to improve on those accomplishments if she is elected the next governor.

Several Garrett County members of the Democratic Party were on hand for the Annapolis event, including Sandy Bello of the G.C. Democratic Central Committee and secretary of the county's Democratic Club; her husband, Michael Bello, chairman for the 2002 Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner; Linda and Thomas Bratten, who is president of the G.C. Democratic Central Committee and director of Veterans Affairs for the state of Maryland; and Oakland mayor Asa McCain.

How To Buy An Outdoor Furnace

1. Read the warranty. Will the dealer give you a copy to look at? Know what you're buying.
2. Look in a new furnace, not a used one. See what you're buying. Is it designed well to save on wood and coal?
3. How many years has the furnace been manufactured?
4. 20 year warranty? What does it cover?
5. Shop the internet for furnaces and warranties. If warranty isn't listed, they don't want you to know. Look Out!

MATII PLACEMENT TEST

A representative from Frostburg State University will be at NHS on Wednesday, May 15, to give the college's math placement test. The test will be given from 3:30 until 4:30 p.m. that day. Students with questions about the testing should see Mrs. Deem. This is an excellent way to jump-start your college career.

DRESS CODE

With the advent of warmer weather, the dilemma of what to wear has been interpreted by some students as "very little." Courts have given the discretion to schools in setting the dress code as part of their need to enforce good discipline and create a positive learning environment. Although some school systems have adopted uniforms, our dress code is not nearly that restrictive. In essence, brief and revealing clothing is not allowed. Our code specifically bans certain item-tank tops, see-through items, clothes that bare the midriff, and shorts and skirts that do not go below the fingertips but leave the "brief and revealing" decision to administrators. Each staff member will refer students to the office if he/she feels that the clothing is questionable. This whole process can be made much easier if students cooperate. Many students, if they are honest with themselves, know that what they are wearing is either not appropriate or pushes the limit of the school code. Please read over our code and dress accordingly.

White Marsh Man Found Guilty Of Disturbing Peace

A Garrett County Circuit Court jury last week found a 52-year old White Marsh man guilty of disturbing the peace. The jury, however, found Lomas Keith Hubbard not guilty of first- and second-degree assault and reckless endangerment. Judge Jim Sherbin imposed a suspended 60-day sentence and placed Hubbard on one year of probation.

Hubbard was arrested in Oct. 2001 after a resident of the Backbone Ridge Subdivision alleged that a neighbor, Hubbard, had caused a public disturbance by yelling and making threats to him and his wife, before briefly leaving the scene and returning to threaten them again, this time with a handgun. Deputies who responded to the scene confirmed that alcohol was involved in the incident, according to Lisa Thayer Welch, Garrett County state's attorney.

Fire Consumes New House At Deep Creek Lake

A blaze believed to have been caused by an electrical power surge, possibly from a lightning strike, destroyed a new house overlooking Deep Creek Lake Tuesday evening. The one-story log home with a loft, valued at $350,000, was scheduled to be completed and ready for touring by Memorial Day weekend.

Volunteers from the Deep Creek, Oakland, Accident, Grantsville, Deer Park, and Bittinger fire departments were summoned to 189 Mountainview Court in the Mountainside development just off U.S. Rt. 219 at 8:16 p.m. Upon their arrival the house, built and owned by Adrian Enterprises, Fort Ashby, W.Va., was engulfed in flames. Construction on the house was not quite complete, and there was no furniture inside.

According to a report from the office of the Maryland state fire marshal, the 911 call for assistance was made by a Department of Natural Resources officer who happened to be passing through the area and saw the flames. A lack of water and the remoteness of the area complicated firefighting efforts. The fire was brought under control in

Oakland Man Dies When Hit On Interstate

An Oakland man was killed this past Thursday, May 9, in Allegany County when he stepped into the path of a vehicle along Interstate 68 just east of the Garrett County line, according to the LaVale barrack of the Maryland State Police.

Larry Fredlock Schenk, 54, of Sand Flat Road, was struck at approximately 9:25 p.m. just west of the Frostburg exit to northbound Route 36. Schenk had apparently gotten out of a pickup truck he was riding in to retrieve a package of paper towels that had been blown out of the truck's bed. The truck's driver was Oakland resident Robert James, age not available.

Schenk was struck when he allegedly walked into the path of a 1995 GMC Jimmy operated by David Wayne Jupin, 49, Germantown. Jupin, who did have his headlights on at the time of the incident, and his wife Judy Lynn Jupin, 49, were transported by the Frostburg Area Ambulance Service to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released. Personnel from the Frostburg and Shaft volunteer fire departments also responded to the scene.

The lead trooper, Tfc. R.T. Wilson of the LaVale barrack, and accident reconstruction specialist Sgt. R.S. Farrell investigated the accident, and Wilson stated this morning that no charges will be filed.

Governor Vetoes Del. Edwards's Natural Gas Rights Bill, Again

Governor Parris Glendening vetoed 30 bills on Tuesday from the 2002 General Assembly session, citing "fundamental flaws and potential unintended consequences that negatively impact the lives of Marylanders." Among those that were vetoed was Del. George Edwards's natural gas rights bill. Glendening rejected two other agriculture bills as well.

House Bill 567 would have made it easier for area farmers to join the state's Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation. It would have removed restrictions prohibiting the foundation from requiring that natural gas companies give up mineral rights on farm land before the land owners may join the foundation.

The governor rejected the same legislation last year. Glendening said, at that time, he vetoed the bill because it "could lead to destructive and extended disputes between the foundation and land owners on one hand, and those who would seek to spoil the land with mining or gas extraction."

This year, the governor said the bill would have undercut the foundation's requirements on natural gas rights. "House Bill 567 is another in a continuing series of bills that have been introduced in the past few years to weaken easement restrictions purchased by the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation," said Glendening. "I believe it would be a bad precedent to begin eroding the agricultural land preservation program by carving out and creating a special exception to the Foundation's policy of requiring the subordination of other interests in preserved property."

Garrett and Allegany counties have more natural resources, such as coal and natural gas, than other parts of the state, and therefore, farmers in this area are at a disadvantage if they wish to join the foundation, said Edwards.

More than 20 Garrett County farmers are interested in joining the foundation, but cannot because of the mineral rights restrictions, according Commissioner Fred Holliday. He and John Nelson, director of Planning and Zoning, testified in Annapolis in February before the House Appropriations Committee on behalf of the bill.

The legislation passed this year in the General Assembly 47 to 0 in the Senate and 137 to 1 in the House.

The governor also vetoed another bill pertaining to the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation. The legislature requested that the foundation release one acre to a landowner who originally sold an easement in Carroll

Gov. Vetoes Sunday Deer Hunting Bill

Gov. Parris Glendening this week vetoed legislation that would have allowed deer hunting in the state on Sundays. The bill would have expanded the season from 13 days to at least 21, including one Sunday each year in parts of the state.

"Currently, Sunday is the only day of the week during hunting season when outdoor recreation, such as hiking, picnicking, birdwatching, horseback riding, and other non-hunting activities, can occur in [illegible] state's natural areas without the fear of nearby hunting," said Glendening.

The governor said he had received numerous letters from residents across the state opposing the bill "because they lose the certainty of having one weekend day during hunting season when their families and children can safely enjoy the outdoors."

The bill had been amended during legislative debate in the Senate so that it only would have applied to western and southern Maryland and Dorchester County.

Supporters of the bill, including House Speaker Casper Taylor, viewed the bill as means of providing an economic boost for rural areas with depressed economies.

Had the bill passed, it would have been the first time hunting would have been permitted in the state on Sundays since Colonial days.

Anonymous Call Leads To Arrest Of Oakland Man

An anonymous phone call to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office Sunday led to the arrest of an Oakland man wanted by the sheriff's office for several offenses.

The caller alerted police that Gary Allen Ferguson was traveling eastbound along Hutton Road in a 1988 Ford Escort with stolen West Virginia plates. Deputies and Oakland City Police responded to Hutton Road, and deputies attempted to make a traffic stop of the vehicle, but Ferguson refused to stop.

A pursuit was initiated on Dilly Road, led to Old Crellin Road, and then down Underwood Road. The vehicle then went down Mansfield Road, where Ferguson jumped out of the ve-

Train Death Suit Settled By CSX, Victim's Family

A Bloomington family that lost a member two years ago when their Savage River Road residence was struck by a derailed CSX coal train has settled its lawsuit against the railroad company for $4.7 million. "We take responsibility for the accident and believe this is the right thing to do," CSX spokesperson Kathy Burns said of the settlement, which was approved this week in Fairfax County, Va., Circuit Court.

Eddie Lee Rogers was killed as he was sleeping on a living room couch in his home on Jan. 30, 2000, when the 80-car coal train derailed while traveling at a speed of more than 60 miles per hour. Each car contained over 100 tons of coal, and fire and rescue crews from across a wide region responded in an attempt to rescue the 15-year-old Westmar High School student, who suffocated under the weight of the coal.

CSX reportedly took responsibility for the derailment from the start, and paid the family's medical expenses immediately after the accident. A report is

Local After-School Programs Set To Receive $142,000

Garrett County will receive $142,000 in grant funds from the Department of Human Resources awarded by the Maryland After-School Opportunity Fund Advisory Board. Funds totaling $9.4 million are being distributed across the state to fund a variety of programs mostly directed to middle school-age youth.

"Quality after-school programs help our students make good choices, and put them on the path to success. These programs provide academic support, recreational opportunities, and a solid foundation to build positive relationships, both with adults and other youths," said Lt. Governor Kathleen Kennedy-Townsend, chair of the Maryland After-School Advisory Board. "After-school programs add critical support to the educational achievement, character development, and skills for success

Deer Park Mayor Re-Elected In Close Town Race

Donald Dawson was re-elected as Deer Park mayor with 38 votes in Tuesday's town election, receiving only eight more votes than challenger Gary Hinebaugh.

Donna Collins and Stephanie Ervin, with 40 and 35 votes, respectively, were elected to the town council. Anthony Dale Hinebaugh received 28 votes and Rodney Bird received 23.

Only 69 of the town's 154 registered voters participated in the election.

Dawson said he hopes the town can grow again once the water and sewerage system situation is completed.

ONE MIGHTY BLAST of lightning blew this pine tree into toothpicks Sunday evening during one of the many electrical storms the county has experienced over the past week. This scene is at the intersection of Swallow Falls and Oakland-Sang Run roads. Fortunately the tree did not fall across the street, but instead ended up alongside the roadway in the ditch. Pieces of it were blown in all directions, however, and one spindly, barkless stick was left of the trunk. Violent storms with high winds have been almost a daily occurrence of late, with yesterday, Wednesday, being one of the first pleasant days all spring.

Frostburg Man Acquitted Of Assault Charge

A Frostburg (Garrett County) man was deemed not guilty of a second degree assault charge in Garrett County District Court last week.

Roger Dale McKenzie, 50, had been jailed by Maryland state troopers in March following the report of a domestic altercation at his home. His wife, Donna McKenzie, and two alleged witnesses claimed that McKenzie had grabbed the woman by the throat and thrown her into a chair, threatening to kill her if she contacted the police.

After considering the respective arguments of the prosecution and the defense, Judge Ralph Burnett handed down the not guilty verdict.

MSP Sets Youth-Oriented Traffic Safety Campaign

The Maryland State Police Barrack W at McHenry will be one of countless law enforcement agencies across the nation participating in the upcoming America Buckles Up Children campaign, set for Monday through Monday, May 20-27 (Memorial Day). The weeklong event, part of the annual Operation ABC Mobilization effort, will be the largest nationwide crackdown on drivers who don't buckle up their children or themselves.

This year's campaign will place a special emphasis on youth motorists and passengers. "When violence hits our schools and children die, we hear a national outcry," commented barrack commander Lt. Randy Resh. "It's time that our nation expresses similar outrage about the more than 4,000 teens who die in traffic crashes each year. Fatality rates for teens are twice that of older drivers, and the risk of crashes for teens is four times that of older drivers. Clearly our teens are at risk."

During the enforcement campaign, officers will be conducting checkpoints and saturation patrols, and will be ticketing drivers who violate seat belt and child passenger safety laws. "We participate in these crackdowns because they work," Resh said. "According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, motor vehicle crashes are still the leading cause of death for 15- to 20-year-olds. Since Operation ABM Mobilization was instituted three years ago, national safety belt use is at an all-time high of 73 percent."

Persons interested in further information on the campaign or traffic safety laws may contact the McHenry barrack at 301-387-1101 or 301-895-1101.

Crellin Man Sentenced For Endangerment

A Clarksville/Crellin man was sentenced in Garrett County Circuit Court last week for two counts of reckless endangerment. For each count, Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Howard Walter Janoske, 57, to one year in the Garrett County Jail, to run concurrently. Sherbin then suspended that sentence and placed Janoske on one-year supervised probation, with special conditions of not possessing firearms and not hunting. The defendant had pleaded guilty to the charges in February.

According to state's attorney Lisa Thayer Welch, Janoske was charged last July by officers with the Garrett Bureau of Investigation after two men reported shots had been fired over their heads in the late night hours of June 30, 2001, while they were training coon dogs on state property adjacent to Janoske's property.

BOE Approves Appointments, Retirements

The Garrett County Board of Education approved several new employees and retirements for the upcoming school year at the recent monthly board meeting.

New employees will be Denise Hartman, special education at Southern High School; Duane Salisbury, music teacher at Yough Glades Elementary; and Gina Thayer, special education at Dennett Road Elementary.

The board approved several retirements which will be effective this summer. Those retiring are Carl Booth, teacher at Southern High; Dorothy Lowdermilk, instructional assistant at Friendsville Elementary; Carolyn Thorne, secretary at Broad Ford Elementary; and Esther Trautwein, instructional assistant at Broad Ford.

Frostburg Men Sentenced In GC Circuit Court

Christopher O'Neil Hendrickson, Frostburg, was sentenced to six months in the Department of Corrections for second-degree assault and two years for reckless endangerment. The sentences are to run concurrently. Judge Sherbin suspended all but one year of the sentence. Following his release from the Garrett County Jail, the defendant will be placed on one year of supervised probation, with conditions including paying restitution to the victim for medical bills. Hendrickson, 20, had pleaded guilty to the counts in February.

He was arrested by officers with the Garrett Bureau of Investigation in July 2001, who determined that he had assaulted a Cumberland man by striking him in the head with a rock. The men were attending a party in a field near Finzel Road in Garrett County. After the victim fell to the ground and Hendrickson continued to strike him, a female at the scene attempted to come to the victim's assistance and was also assaulted by Hendrickson. Police officers were called to investigate after the male victim was treated for injuries to his head and eye at Cumberland Memorial Hospital.

In another unrelated Circuit Court case, a Frostburg (Garrett County) man pleaded guilty to one count of first-degree burglary. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Austin Huffman Gardner III, 25, to three years in the Department of Corrections, suspending all but one year. Following his release from the Garrett County Jail, Gardner will be on supervised probation for one year. Based on the defendant's guilty plea, a second count of theft over $500 was not prosecuted.

Gardner was charged by Chief John Sines of Oakland City Police on July 3, 2001. According to Sines's report, between Dec. 2000 and June 13, 2001, Gardner entered a dwelling on Coolridge Ave., Oakland, and removed a TV and a TV-VCR combination. Gardner later reportedly sold the TV for $75 and attempted to sell the TV/VCR combination. Based on information from the buyer and potential buyer, Sines recovered the items, which were identified by the homeowner.

RECOGNIZING AN EDUCATOR AWARD NOMINEE — Jennifer Rankin, technology resource teacher at Northern Middle School, was recognized at a recent board of education meeting for being nominated for the MICCA 2002 Outstanding Technology-Using Educator Award. Rankin represented Garrett County for this award which recognized outstanding K-12 classroom teachers who have made exemplary contributions to instructional computing practices in Maryland schools. Her name will be added to the plaque in the board room recognizing her as an outstanding teacher. Pictured, from the left, are Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent; Chuck Trautwein, resource center director; Rankin; Bill Carlson, principal at NMS; and Camilla Rawe, president of the board.

Special BOE Meeting Set

The Garrett County Board of Education will hold a special meeting today, Thursday, May 16, at 6 p.m. in the board room of the board of education building.

The board will review plans for the renovation of Route 40 Elementary School and construction of a planetarium facility, and take action regarding the contract award for the school's renovation project.

The public is invited to attend.

Passenger Injured In Vehicle Mishap, Charges Pending

Sheriff's deputies are investigating a single-vehicle mishap which sent the juvenile passenger to the hospital for treatment of injuries around 4 a.m. Saturday.

The driver, a local juvenile, failed to slow for a sharp curve in Shady Dell Road, police said. The driver was not injured when the 1997 Acura struck a ditch, went airborne, and sheared off a tree, before coming to rest in the front yard of a local resident.

The passenger was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment.

Charges are pending, police said. Oakland firefighters and Southern Garrett Rescue also responded to the scene.

In another incident, Julia Yoder was charged by deputies for following too closely after her vehicle struck the rear end of a vehicle operated by Karen Michaels.

The Michaels vehicle was stopped along Route 135 and Youghiogheny Drive for a turning vehicle when it was hit.

No injuries were reported in the noon incident Saturday.

In other police news, Joyce Ann Sharpless, 51, Frostburg, was treated for injuries after her vehicle traveled off the road and into a field Tuesday night.

Sharpless was located at nearby house, where the resident was calling in the accident. Deer Park firefighters and Southern Rescue Squad also responded to the incident along Upperman Road near Boiling Springs Road.

Girl Receives Minor Injuries In Bus Mishap

A juvenile sustained minor injuries after she ran into the front side of a bus as school was dismissing Wednesday, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

According to the report, Malia Upole, 12, ran from the Southern High School's parking lot into Oakland Drive. Kenneth Meyers, the driver of a westbound bus, saw the pedestrian approaching the road and not paying attention, police said. The driver slowed to a stop when the pedestrian ran into the front side of the bus.

Upole was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released.

No charges were filed in the 3:30 p.m. incident.

DUI/DWI ARRESTS

Two individuals were arrested and charged with drunk driving charges this week by sheriff's deputies. They were: Jason Todd Putnam, 28, Ireland, W.Va., driving while impaired (DWI), driving under the influence (DUI), and failure to drive right of center; and Robert Haywood, New Creek, W.Va., DUI, DWI, driving on a suspended license, negligent driving, and failing to drive right of center.

Holliday Files For Re-Election As Commissioner

Frederick A. Holliday, Grantsville, recently announced that he will seek a second term for the office of Garrett County commissioner. Holliday, a Republican, was first elected in 1998 and represents Commission District 2. Prior to being elected, Holliday owned and operated the H&H Hardware Store in Grantsville. He also served as mayor of Grantsville for 15 years.

"I am very proud of the direction our county has taken in the past four years, and there are several projects currently being developed that I hope to see through to fruition," said Holliday. "I also want to continue my efforts to make this Garrett County, not just north or south Garrett County."

His other goals include the continued improvements to the county's educational system; the support of existing businesses within the county, while simultaneously working to attract new employment opportunities for county residents; working to preserve agricultural land throughout the county; and increasing the recycling effort at the private and public levels.

Other accomplishments that Holliday cites for his four-year term are development of a three-year road maintenance schedule, developing "in-house" bridge and black-topping crews within the Garrett County Roads Department, a significant drop in the county's unemployment rate, and the consolidation of county health offices into one facility.

During his term as county commissioner, Holliday served as a member of the Maryland Association of Counties (MACO), and serves as an alternate to MACO's Legislative Committee. He is a board member of the Forum for Rural Maryland, an advocacy group for rural Maryland counties. He is also a member of the local hospital board, the forestry board, the Health Planning Commission, and the Department of Social Services Board.

Holliday is past president of the Grantsville Lions Club, of which he has been a member of for 19 years. He was also charter president of the Grantsville Area Jaycees and is a member of the Greater Grantsville Business Association, Casselman Valley Sportsman's Club, Grantsville Cemetery Committee, and the Garrett County Economic Development Corporation.

He also helped found the Grantsville Days Celebration, which is now in its 25th year. Holliday served three years in the U.S. Army and is an active member of St. Paul's Methodist Church. He and his wife Joan have been married for 33 years and have three children and five grandchildren.

Deer Jumps Into EMS Vehicle's Path On I-68

The driver of a Valley Transport Ambulance escaped serious injury last night when he was able to bring the vehicle to a safe stop after striking a deer on Interstate 68 in Garrett County, according to the Mellemy barrack of the Maryland State Police.

The accident occurred at 8:36 p.m. on westbound I-68 west of Old Morgantown Road exit at the 7-mile marker, located three miles east of Friendsville, when a deer jumped from the median into the side of the ambulance. The impact shattered the driver's side window and part of the windshield, and the driver, Robert Clinton Sines, 22, Oakland, was struck in the eyes by bits of flying glass. A patient who was being transported was not injured in the incident.

Sines was able to stop the vehicle along the shoulder, and the patient was transferred to another Valley Transport Ambulance to complete the trip to Ruby Memorial Hospital in Morgantown. Sines was transported by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released. The Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the scene, and no charges were filed by state police.

In other MSP accident investigations, a Washington man suffered apparent minor injuries when he swerved to miss a deer and his vehicle struck a tractor-trailer rig along I-68 near Finzel.

Richard Allen Mitchell, 20, was traveling eastbound at the time of the 9:26 a.m. accident. His vehicle struck a rig operated by Elmer Wagers, 70, Combs, Ky. Police said that the impact ran the tractor-trailer into the median, while Mitchell was able to regain control of his vehicle.

Mitchell reportedly sustained some cuts to the back of his head, but refused medical treatment. Wagers was not injured. No charges have been filed by Tfc. K. Stakem.

Three single-vehicle accidents resulted in minor injuries and one arrest Sunday, according to state police.

The first accident took place along Accident Bittinger Road just south of Fratz Road at 1:19 a.m. when Cynthia Sweitzer, 28, Oakland, failed to negotiate a curve and drove into a ditch. She escaped injury, but her passenger, Noel Smith, 23, Swanton, required transport by the Northern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Sweitzer was arrested and charged with driving under the influence, and was released from police custody later that morning. Both occupants were wearing their seatbelts at the time of the mishap.

Later that same hour, along Deep Creek Drive south of Mellenry, Nicholas Jerry Hepp, 27, Mellenry, was slightly injured after he lost control of his Nissan Xterra. The 1:57 a.m. mishap unfolded as Hepp's mini-SUV struck a guardrail, overturned, rolled down an embankment, and came to rest in a pond.

Hepp was able to free himself from the vehicle, and was transported by Northern Rescue to Garrett Memorial, where he was treated and released. The Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company also responded to the scene. Hepp was charged with failure to give full time and attention to his driving.

A Pennsylvania woman was slightly injured at 4:50 p.m. when she lost control of her car along a rain-soaked stretch of eastbound I-68 near Lower New Germany Road. Police said that a vehicle operated by Miklane Fredowich, 25, Moontown, hydroplaned into the median, struck a culvert, and overturned.

The vehicle's air bag deployed and Fredowich, who was wearing her seatbelt, was transported to Sacred Heart Hospital as a precaution by the Northern Rescue Squad. No charges were filed. The Grantsville VFD assisted at the scene.

RECOVERED WEAPONS — Garratt Bureau of Investigation, along with the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, recently recovered 59 long guns and pistols which were stolen from several residences in Oakland, Allegany County, West Virginia, and Pennsylvania. Of the 59 guns, 39 have been identified, returned to their rightful owners, and valued at approximately $20,000. Pictured above, from the left, are Detective Clark Warnick, Sheriff Dick Sanders, and Detective Jeff Murphy.

MSP Arrest Pa. Driver On Drug Charges

Maryland State Police arrested a Mercersburg, Pa., man late Saturday night and charged him with drug and alcohol charges.

Kelley Douglas Keefer, 23, was stopped for a traffic violation, and a search revealed that Keefer was carrying a controlled dangerous substance. He was charged with possession of CDS, possession of CDS paraphernalia, and driving while impaired.

He was released from the Garrett County Jail after posting $500 bond, police said.

In another incident, a Waynesboro, Pa., man escaped injury in a single-vehicle accident Saturday night, and faces drunk driving charges, police said.

Karl Steven Leary, 43, had allegedly fallen asleep at the wheel of his 1989 Ford Mustang. The vehicle became stuck in a ditch after leaving the roadway.

After an investigation by state troopers, Leary was arrested for driving under the influence (DUI), driving while suspended, negligent driving, and consuming an alcoholic beverage while driving, police said.

Leary was released from jail after posting $3,000 bond.

Not the Answer...

Finding someone else to blame for our shortcomings and thus rejecting the idea of taking responsibility for our own actions is a common practice in our society today. Many legal defenses are based on this notion of trying to find others to blame for the illegal actions of defendants. "It wasn't my fault. So and so made me do it. Blame my parents for the way they reared me."

We also live in a highly litigious society, as lawsuits and the idea that lots of money will fix everything are rampant.

So it is no wonder that there is a move afoot to obtain reparations for the black citizens of America, most of whom are descendants of slaves from the 19th century. Proponents subscribe to both of the aforementioned notions — that most of the problems blacks have in their lives today can be blamed on the people who enslaved their ancestors, and that their problems would be greatly lessened if they were awarded some money.

To the defense of those in favor of such reparations, it is probable that if slavery of blacks never existed in the history of this nation, life for blacks in the United States today would be different. While slavery ended in a legal sense with the Civil War, bigotry certainly has remained alive and well through the generations since then. Fruition of equal opportunity for blacks in education, employment, and government has been a slow process, and while great strides have been made, there are still a number of areas of inequality.

However, outright reparation payments for the actions of and actions toward people who have been dead for decades are not only difficult to justify, but more importantly, they also would not be the solution to matters of unequal opportunity. How would receiving, say, $500 or $1,000 in reparation do anything, in the long run, to raise the quality of life for a black citizen?

There are numerous programs already in place designed to level the playing field, such as scores of scholarship programs specifically for minority students. There is affirmative action. Segregation in schools, restaurants, and the workplace is a thing of the past.

There is also the psychological effect that reparation might have on blacks, well stated by Joe Hicks (who happens to be black), executive director of the Center for the Study of Popular Culture. He said reparations would be "an insult to hardworking blacks... to insist they need some kind of government aid because of something that happened over a century ago."

The only thing that will ultimately and totally wipe out all forms of racial inequality is a change in attitude fostered in each and every household in America, where children should be taught to value and treat others, all others, regardless of skin color, as they would like to be valued and treated.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Can somebody please, honestly explain why the commissioners are taking millions of our tax dollars to pay for the adventure foolishness on top of Wisp Mountain? We have good men as commissioners, and I find it hard to believe that they would so openly line the pockets of a few developers. There must be another explanation, but how would I know since everything concerning this project was done in secrecy without public meetings.

I recently learned that there is a committee that has been working on the project for many years, and it is being led by Delegate George Edwards. Who else is on this committee and why aren't their meetings open to reporters and others so we can all learn what is really going on?

Something smells very rotten here, but I hope I am wrong.

Duane Brenneman

To the Editor:

The lump in my throat was a long time going away as I watched the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department's Old #1 Engine carry Dave Turney's body to its final resting place.

The hands of fellow firemen Tom Swiger and Randy Shaffer rested gently on top of the casket during the entire travel from Pleasant View Baptist Church to the Oakland Cemetery. Sadness that was expressed on the other pallbearers' faces. Mike Saunders, Carroll Deem, Kenny DeWitt, and Dennis Murray, truly reminded everyone that his death was much too hard to realize.

He gave so much to our community and to his "beloved" Mtn. Lake Park, it was only deserving to give him the best tribute, and the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, the Southern Rescue Squad, and Emergency Management truly gave him one.

Bea Crosco

To the Editor:

With tears in our eyes, pain in our heart, and mental anguish, we endured on September 11. Where is God?

God made us the most powerful nation on earth, and has our leadership in place at our time of need. He gives us the wisdom to deal with this, without persecuting the innocent with the wrath of terrorists. We will prevail on all fronts. God is with us as we go about our normal lives, doing our duty for God and country.

The American Legion is doing many great things from coast to coast for our country. Not only are we proud to be Americans, we are proud to be American Legion members. Let us work together to support our God and country through our communities.

Let our fellow Americans know what we are really about. Get the light of the American Legion out from under the basket and let it shine.

Many of our comrades have paid the supreme sacrifice, and many others have suffered along with these families. They paid to keep us free.

We care, we endure, we achieve, and we will prevail!

To the Editor:

This week is designated as National Nursing Home Week across the country. Nationally, the American Health Care Association has declared the week as "Celebrating the Seasons of Life."

Heartland of Preston County is proud to take this opportunity to thank every staff member for the care and rehabilitation they provide to literally thousands of patients and residents each day.

National Nursing Home Week is an opportunity for staff, families, volunteers, residents, and members of the community to understand and acknowledge the important role they play in providing an environment that truly celebrates life.

In this time of health care complexity, and compromised and compressed state and federal reimbursement, skilled nursing and rehabilitation centers face enormous challenges in providing quality care in caring environments. We welcome all community members in assisting us in improving the quality of life for those in need of post-hospital care and treatment or who may need longer term assistance. Help us by volunteering your time to visit with these seniors and by contacting your state and federal legislators about the proposed health care budget cuts which will surely compromise access to care for the frail and elderly, who need it most.

We can all 'Celebrate the Seasons of Life" only if we join together to protect the interests of our seniors.

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to several misunderstandings Mr. George Falter had in his criticism of funding of our Garrett County Recreational Trails Plan in your May 2nd edition. This $35,000 grant is funded by federal TEA-21 legislation. This legislation mandates a small portion of transportation dollars be set aside for alternative transportation projects such as cycling or walking. In Maryland, this money is distributed by the Maryland Department of Transportation, which selected our project as one meeting the legislative objectives Congress established.

So you see, this money if not spent here will be spent somewhere else. It cannot, however, be spent on the projects you mentioned: "recreational opportunities for the youth in this county, upgrading the libraries, assistance for the elderly, and a myriads of other needs currently not being met." Indirectly, however, it will be spent on providing recreational opportunities for the youth and citizens of all ages in this county.

Our first section is small in terms of the overall project, but will be the easiest one to get us started. Eventually we will have sections that are longer and will extend in both directions, connecting almost the entire county.

There are several great parts of this project, providing a recreational benefit at a low cost to the users of all ages, Garrett Countians and visitors alike, no user fees, connecting a vast amount of unconnected state lands in our county, providing health and recreational benefits for all users, physically providing connections for tourists to get out of Deep Creek Lake and visit (read spend money) Oakland, Friendsville, and Grantsville, and providing an all-seasons activity market for tourists, not just in summer and winter.

Yes, I stand to benefit (read here, trying to stay out of Mr. Falter's future letters). It will provide trails for visitors who are my customers, as well those of local motels, local rental property owners, and campgrounds, whose clientele currently go to Ohiopyle, Allegany, or Somerset counties to ride. I can tell a tourist with a station wagon full of bikes here is a good place to take his 7 year old biking. I can also take my own kids biking, as you can take your grandchildren, in a safe area which, for the most, is now located in another county or state.

I am not a member of any secret clubs. The last special handshake I learned was in the Boy Scouts.

If you need more info on what we are doing, please call me at 301-387-4199 or attend our first public meeting on June 17 at 7 p.m. at Garrett Community College. We hope many will attend along with you.

Sincerely,
Steve Green
Chairperson
Garrett County Trails Task Force

The idea that there is a link between animal cruelty and other forms of human violence is not a new one. It has only been during the last few decades, however, that the scientific community has focused attention on this issue. The research data that has been gathered to substantiate the connection is compelling.

While animal abuse can be a common denominator in a variety of violent offenses (school shootings, serial killing, etc.) it has a special connection to family violence. Over 70% of the households in America own pets and consider them to be a part of the family unit. Studies show that in violent homes, where children and women are being abused, abusing or even killing the family pet is often the perpetrator's means of hurting, terrorizing, threatening, and controlling their human victims. In a 1997 study of 50 of the largest women's shelters in the United States, fully 88% of women and 63% of the children polled reported that pets in those households were also being abused.

FAMILY MEALS

A friend was invited to lead a women's retreat. She is the wife of a retired pastor and the mother of three adult children, the grandmother of a half-dozen grandchildren. I am sure that she talked about Bible study and prayer, but that is not the part of the retreat which she shared with me.

She told the gathered women, most of them wives and mothers, that one of the most important things in family life is to eat family meals and how that time is used to build and strengthen family structures. She asked the women how many of them had regular family meals. Not one woman raised her hand. Dumbfounded, she thought they had misunderstood her. She asked again. The answer was the same. Not one of the women had family meals.

When she came home she shared this experience with various people, as she did with me. One woman in her acquaintance took it to heart. This woman is divorced, with a daughter in her early teens. The pattern for supper is that the mother fixes a plate of food. The daughter takes it into the living room, sprawls on the floor in front of the television, and — at the same time — talks on the telephone.

This mother wanted to apply the advice about an evening meal with her daughter. She knew that she would not get the daughter to change her habits, so the mother changed her own habits. She now goes into the living room, and sprawls on the floor beside her daughter. In between her daughter's phone calls, she manages snippets of conversation. That isn't much, but it is more than before — a step in the right direction.

I have no trouble believing any of my friend's account. The pressures and temptations in 21st century America are so varied and enormous that family members are often strangers to each other. The working assumption is that unless a person, especially children and young people, have a full calendar, they are somehow being deprived. Life is a mad dash from one thing to another.

Eating has always been important to me. To tell the truth, it is too important. I sometimes comfort myself, while going to sleep, with thoughts of that mug of fiercely strong coffee that I shall enjoy upon waking. Thinking about the next meal is just like thinking about having a good time.

Once upon a time I gratified myself with the quantity of food. People have remembered me from watching me eat fried chicken. At 46, and above the slaughter weight of a hog, I have to take my pleasure in the fineness of food, and I do.

Another fact is that I live alone. I miss living each day in concert with a wife and the hustle-bustle of a house full of children. It is no small challenge to eat family meals by one's self, but I endeavor to do so. Not that I don't eat my share of meals on the run and sandwiches in the car. 24/7 society takes its toll on me, too.

Meals eaten at home are eaten in the dining room. In the evening I eat by candlelight. I try to turn each meal into an event. That does not necessarily mean a lot of work; it does mean eating with a healthy dose of ritual. I try to eat three-course meals. For breakfast that usually entails fruit or juice, followed by a bowl of whole grain cereal and completed by polishing off one or two soft-boiled eggs.

At noon and in the evening I try to include both soup and salad with a plate of some main course in between them. Such a menu is much easier than it may sound. I make soup by the pot, so that only requires warming. The salad is usually just romaine lettuce dressed with oil and vinegar. The main course typically takes more work, but I usually make a larger than one meal quantity of that, which spreads the labor over several meals.

I begin each meal with prayer. Then while eating I read. Someone gave me a plastic book stand — actually intended for a cookbook — which stands in front of my plate. I listen to the news at breakfast and music during the other meals. The point is that I have the habit of family meals even though family members are not routinely present for the meal.

What happens or should happen at a family meal? A family meal is a meal in which the spirit is nourished as well as the body, in which relationships are strengthened by taking physical nourishment together. A family meal is a prayer of thanksgiving as I often pray, "for this day, the gift of life, and the joy of being together." A family meal is a celebration of the earth's bounty and for our Maker's presence among us.

A family meal is better together, but it is still good alone.

WHAT'S MY LINE?

by Mary Sincell McEwen

Community theatre. If you've never been involved in it, you have missed an entire world all to itself. I have been away from it for a while, at least from the actual play-rendering part of it. I've done readings and I've sung in choral productions, but it has been years since I've actually memorized lines and gone on stage. Next week, Our Town Theatre is producing Social Security, a comedy written by Andrew Bergman, and I am remembering now what it's like to get intensely nervous, as I am a member of the cast.

First let me say that it's amazing how many people I have come across lately who don't even seem to know that we have a theatre in Oakland. How can you not know? And then there are bunches of others who have never stepped foot in it, which also escapes me. However, I understand that the theatre is not a part of everyone's lives. I was sort of brought up around it. My uncle is a modern dancer, my brother Ben had me in magic shows from the time I was about 10, and my parents regularly took us to the Garrett County Playhouse. There were piano recitals, class plays, and band concerts, choral productions and musicals that we all were in at once, and impromptu dinner-table recitations of the latest Monty Python sketches. We're just sort of into it, like some families are heavily into sports. It's not surprising that I have a theatre degree, my husband does (we met in college), my brother has his master's, and now my niece and nephew have earned their bachelor's in it, too. It's all in the family.

I suppose, then, that it was a natural occurrence for me to find my way back to the stage. It was not without some arm-twisting from Susan Bell. She's a terrific actor and I'm honored to be performing with her — we have such a blast together. And she was able to convince a newcomer to the local stage, too — her boyfriend, David Tuel. Actually, he told me he decided to do it because he didn't want to be without her again for another two months. (She had just finished a 10-show run of The Man Who Came To Dinner and David was tired of competing with rehearsals — tired enough to take a lead role.) And yes, it is the surgeon, Dr. Tuel. We've been amused at the attention paid to that fact. Susan, a lifelong actor who has been on stage countless times, has learned to refer to the show as "Dr. Tuel's play" when speaking with his co-workers and friends, many of whom are coming to the theatre for the first time to see the surgeon in a different light. Literally. And he's doing a great job, by the way. Sometimes he has to leave for a bit to go to the hospital. I can honestly say that this is the very first show I've been involved with wherein one of the leads has had to leave practice for an hour to go repair a hip. It happened. Twice. Only in community theatre, folks.

The process of learning a play is arduous. I forgot how strange it all is, in fact. First you have a read-through, just sitting around reading your parts. We laughed ourselves silly at this. You read and imagine how great it will be on stage. The next step is to actually get up on the stage and start "blocking." That's theatre language for "where you go when." Jane Avery, our director, is gifted at this. It seems easy after a while, going where you're supposed to go, reading your yellow highlighted lines from your trusty little playbook. Very snug, very easy. At this point, you still feel in control and you continue to visualize just how clever you're all going to be.

Then the rug is pulled out. "I would like you to be off book next time," says Jane sweetly. AGGGH! "Off book" are horrible words. That means your trusted, now somewhat tattered playbook must be left behind as you propel yourself onto the stage. At this point, one begins to wonder why anyone ever does this. Suddenly I was asea in waves of lines unknown. Oh, sure, I knew some of them pretty well, but where oh where did they go! And everyone was off book, so everyone was asea. It's hard to know when to say "You're kidding!" or "Really?" when the person feeding you another line is also dazed and confused. Oh, it's ugly, all right. I sort of had my lines all tucked into brain file folders, and when it was my turn to speak, I had to thumb through them all, trying to find the appropriate statement in there somewhere. Yuck. There are times when four of us are on stage, jockeying the conversation around like a volleyball. That is not easy. If one person gets messed up, whew-boy — it's a train just waitin' to wreck. So why do we do this?

We do it because it's a challenge, it's fun, and I know it will make people laugh, and laughter is good. We enjoy each other, the six of us, and Jane is great. We have the best stage manager around, Venessa Stacy, whose calm demeanor has a comforting way of rubbing off on the rest of us. And I have the best husband, too, who is taking care of our three bubs doubletime as I sashay off to rehearsals and have some laughs. Thanks, John.

As opening night draws closer, we are getting better. There are a few confused pauses yet, and we crack up occasionally because it's so hilarious, but we are getting there. If you want to see it, be forewarned that it is definitely for adults only, and only those adults who are not offended by big time sexual innuendo. If that doesn't faze you, come on in and join the fun. There are directions about reserving tickets on the front page under our picture. (Gad, I hate having my picture in the paper, but doesn't everyone else look great?)

Wish us luck, or broken legs, as tradition requires. We do have a doc in the house, after all.

Research shows that children who are unsupervised after school are twice as likely to use alcohol and other drugs as children who have an adult at home when they return from school. However, according to the U.S. Census data, fewer than half of all children under age 18 have parental supervision when they return from school. The peak hours for juvenile crime are 3 to 6 p.m., and the unsupervised after-school hours are the most common time for taking drugs, juvenile crime, and having sex, contributing to teen pregnancy.

County to build a house. It also would have prohibited a landowner from subdividing the house on the easement.

"While this bill applies to only to five properties in Carroll County," said Glendening, "I am concerned about the policy and precedent of House Bill 1000." The governor added that he was concerned that passage of the bill would have led to continued erosion of the foundation in future years in other counties.

The bill was sponsored by Delegates Joseph Getty and Nancy Stocksdale of District 5.

Also vetoed by the governor was the Farm Product and Research Protection Act. The bill was sponsored by Edwards and 28 other delegates. The legislation requested that "certain criminal and civil penalties for the willful and malicious damage or destruction of an agricultural operation or product" be established. Had the bill passed, persons found guilty of destroying agricultural properties or products could have been imprisoned for up to one year and/or been fined up to $5,000.

The governor vetoed a total of 35 bills this legislative session.

hicle and fled through a field. According to police, they ordered Ferguson to the ground, however, he fled on foot into a wooded area.

Maryland State Police and K-9 units arrived at the scene with Natural Resource Police. Ferguson surrendered before the K-9 units were released, police said.

He is charged with driving while impaired (DWI), driving under the influence (DUI), theft, fleeing and eluding, driving on a revoked and suspended license, two counts of failure to stop at a stop sign, failure to drive right of center, reckless and negligent driving, speed greater than reasonable, displaying registration plates issued to another vehicle, operating an unregistered vehicle, unauthorized use and display of registration plate, and driving an uninsured vehicle.

Ferguson is currently incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail on $70,000 bond, according to a jail spokesperson.

Two other arrests resulting in DUI charges were made by deputies on Sunday.

Michael Grady, 27, Swanton, was observed along Route 135 in the Deer Park area operating his vehicle at alternating speeds above and below the posted speed, police said. A deputy stopped the vehicle after he observed it cross the double yellow line.

Further investigation revealed that Grady was intoxicated, and was arrested and charged with DUI, DUI per se, DWI, and failure to drive right of center.

Grady was later released after the 12:45 a.m. incident.

Two hours later, deputies were called to the Black Bear Tavern for a complaint of trespassing and disturbance. By the time deputies arrived, the suspect had fled the area by vehicle, police said.

As the deputy was taking information, the suspect drove in and parked in front of the bar. Michael Thomas, 35, McHenry, was approached regarding the trespassing/disturbance complaint. Further investigation revealed that Thomas was intoxicated, police said.

Thomas was charged with DUI, DUI per se, DWI, failure to produce license upon demand, and violating a license restriction.

Thomas was later released after posting $1,000 bond.

tion, children in such abusive situations often become abusers themselves, with the family pet most often being their first victim. In a recent study of Utah women's shelters, one third of the women questioned reported that their children behaved violently toward the family pet. Thus the cycle of violence continues.

Fortunately, communities across the country, armed with the knowledge that research has provided, are becoming empowered to break this cycle of violence and abuse through prevention and intervention. Through programs of education, and by working together cooperatively, the public at large and local government can join professionals in the human services fields, and animal protective agencies and organizations in working toward a less violent society.

To that end the Garrett County Family Violence Coalition, the Dove Center, and Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety have joined with their counterparts in Allegany County to bring Dr. Randall Lockwood, Ph.D., and vice president of Research and Educational Outreach for the Humane Society of the United States, to our area for a one-day conference on the animal/human violence connection and strategies for community response. The event will be held Wednesday, May 22, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the conference room of the Discovery Center at Deep Creek State Park.

It is our hope that members of local government, those involved in education, law enforcement personnel, members of the legal system, the media, members of the veterinary community, and all others involved in human services and animal control and protection, as well the public, will make an effort to attend this conference. Education is the first step toward breaking this cycle of violence and creating healthier and safer communities.

To the Editor:

Congratulations on your many editorials, and the last one, "Another Stigma," was right on target! Too bad it couldn't have been handled better. It is a very serious issue, and a good foundation in our young years is the correct place to start, but seldom starts there, it seems! I have seen more "excess weight" people in Maryland and West Virginia than any place else! I'll be criticized for saying so, but I have real concern for all grossly overweight people of any age healthwise, and some of it only begins in childhood!

Most of the excessively overweight adults hopefully would, could, and should ask themselves, do I value my health and future life enough to respect my body as the Bible says and do something about it?

I always enjoy the editorial page so very much! I learn more about Garrett County, good and bad, and I am thoroughly entertained by your female writers of "Out On A Tangent" and their children's lives.

I have been very pleased to read all the letters, and I am very appreciative of all those who care enough about something to them to write about it! Many of us are interested in the same issues, etc., although we may take different sides on some issues. That is as it should be and shouldn't be cause for rancor or hate or personal attacks or disagreements.

I appreciate Atty. Watson's letter and one by Thomas Doyle recently, and all those who attempt to enlighten us. I don't take it as criticism, but trying to be helpful and to make a better world for us all. Three people bringing (Jack) John E. Hinebaugh's wonderful service to assist Garrett Countians years ago on "home rule" to the forefront do him a just compliment! He is one of the most brilliant, respectful men I have ever known. Good health, Jack!

I know Bill Welsh through our public meetings, and I met George Falter Jr. the same way, who has become a good friend, living not far away, and I respect them both very much. I am thankful for their very real interest and concern for Garrett County. I would not disrespect their opinion. They are entitled to their opinion. I don't agree with either one of them on zoning or bears, but that doesn't mean I can't respect their opinion.

I think we should welcome the freedom we have in this USA to speak our mind, and that we all would be better off if more did. We wouldn't have the very real mess we have in our country for so very long if everyone forgot their "grapevine" and spent more time trying to be open and honest in our thoughts and actions.

As a DAV, WWII ETO, ANC, handicapped for 58 years, I know from experience a few things, and at 90+ years now, I expect to keep on learning as I have from my earliest life years.

God taught us (really can teach us) how to love, cherish, respect and have compassion where it is called for, not jealousy, rancor, and hate.

I would hope to see more of those desirable traits toward our seriously and all mentally ill people here and all over the world. We are so sadly lacking here in Garrett County! So much is a disgrace. It's not multiple new buildings we need, its real, certified, psychiatric professionals to get on board and render services to our mentally ill.

This is my opinion.

Thanking you,
Mrs. Louise Harvey

STAR WARS: EPISODE II ATTACK OF THE CLONES

Rated PG - Running Time: 2:22 - Released 5/16/02

Wouldn't it be great to be George Lucas? You write a good story, hire some really good effects guys and try some new things, and all of a sudden, 25 years later, you've got people lining up around the block on opening day to buy tickets to the 5th (that is, the 2nd) episode of your story, which despite the fact that it has far outgrown its original intention and become an overly complex, bloated gas giant of its former self, still attracts people who weren't even born yet when the first (or rather, the 4th) episode arrived, people who are all perfectly willing not only to stand in line for advance tickets to a show that starts after midnight and doesn't get out until 2:30 a.m., but to spend the whole movie devoutly endeavoring to reconcile its plot line with the previous (that is to say, subsequent) episodes so that it all makes sense in the grand scheme of things. Damn, that guy's got it goin' on.

As we would expect from the penultimate installment in the great, grand Star Wars saga, we are treated to nearly 2½ hours of beautiful scenery, awe-inspiring effects work, both conventional and computer-generated, a vast, colorful array of characters (some new, some familiar) of different species and from different parts of the universe, and another step toward grasping how the story all works out. My God, how wonderful it would be if it just even pretended to not be so commercialized.

Okay, okay. I liked the movie. I think it's better than Phantom Menace. But I can't help feeling just a little overwhelmed by what an obscene amount of money it's making. And dammit, why couldn't they find a better actor for the lead role. Hayden Christensen, who stunk up the screen in Life As A House, has unfortunately been chosen to play the grown-up Anakin Skywalker, the brash but gifted Jedi knight who will eventually beget twins Luke and Leia and become the hated Darth Vader (presumably in the next and final episode). I'll tell you folks, I don't know if he's trying to match the lackluster performance of Jake Lloyd, who played young Anakin in Menace, but he's as wooden as they come and he pulls the whole production down. Fortunately, we again have the delightful Natalie Portman as Amidala, Anakin's romantic opposite, and although she's forced to deliver some stomach-churning Lucasinine dialogue, her spirited performance does a lot to counteract Christensen's ill effects. Since Queen Amidala has now stepped down to become Senator Amidala (apparently on her home planet of Naboo, queens have term limits), Portman's dropped the monotone vocal style and thick makeup and given her character a richly deserved life. And she's hot as hell.

Of course, we have the ever-reliable Ewan McGregor returning as Obi-Wan Kenobi, Anakin's teacher and mentor who is beginning to lose control over his ambitious student. I look at McGregor altogether differently since I saw his astounding performance in Moulin Rouge; he can't possibly approach that level with this part, but he's certainly admirable, and, sporting longer hair and a new beard, grows closer in appearance to the man Obi-Wan will become, played so exquisitely by Alec Guiness. Also on hand is the aging but elegant Christopher Lee (the famous Dracula of old who's suddenly a hot commodity again, between this and his contract to play the evil wizard Saruman in the Lord Of The Rings series), and Frank Oz as the voice of Yoda, who seems to be more animation than foam rubber these days, and Samuel L. Jackson and Jimmy Smits, both underused as other members of the Jedi order. And of course, I would be remiss if I didn't mention good old Kenny Baker and Anthony Daniels as R2-D2 and C-3PO, whose characterizations have not changed one iota since 1977 (although I must admit I don't really know what Baker does).

As we learn in the traditional and ever-more-annoying opening text crawl, the story of this episode involves the mounting tension in the interplanetary senate caused by the secession of many "solar systems" (this is a misnomer, but I'll leave it alone) from the governing body, about 10 years after the events of The Phantom Menace. Senator Amidala's life is threatened because of her efforts to hold the union together, so it becomes necessary for Anakin and Obi-Wan to act as her bodyguards while she's on the planet-city of Coruscant, where the senate and the Jedi are based. What she doesn't know is that her trusted friend, Supreme Chancellor Palpatine (Ian McDiarmid), the leader of the senate, is also the evil Darth Sidious, who, along with the unfortunately named Count Dooku, a.k.a. Darth Tyranus (Lee), controls the dark side of the force and plans to convert the democratic government into a dictatorship. Since it is too dangerous for Amidala to appear herself at the senate, she appoints Jar Jar Binks (voice of Ahmed Best, just as irritating but thankfully afforded much less screen time) to negotiate. Meanwhile she and Anakin fly around the galaxy and make goo-goo eyes at each other in places like her beautiful home planet, Naboo, his ugly home planet, Tattooine, and an even uglier place where Obi-Wan has been taken prisoner while trying to spy on Dooku and his soldier droid factory. Meanwhile, an immense army of men has been created to serve some dark, undisclosed purpose, all of them cloned from a sinister assassin named Jango Fett (Temuera Morrison), whose son Boba (Daniel Logan) is keen on following in his dad's footsteps. In the meantime we are treated to numerous chase scenes, light-saber battles (including one where Yoda finally gets to show his stuff), and a spectacular gladiator-style setpiece involving several truly ghastly creatures to which our heroes are thrown for dinner.

This movie not only furthers the Skywalker saga and paves the way for the final chapter, which will presumably tie up all the myriad loose ends into various neat and aesthetically pleasing bows, but it introduces yet more interesting creatures, languages, and legends. Although I can't recommend it for really small children (some of those beasties are really bad), the violence is generally kept to a bloodless and cartoonish minimum, as is in line with Lucas's intent to re-create the feel of an old-time serial. I wish I could say that I liked the leading actor more, but I can say that I like just about everyone else, especially Portman, who I expect to see giving birth to twins in the final episode. I'm glad that Lucas and his co-writer, Jonathan Hales, have chosen to add a little more levity to the dialogue, as was the spirit of the first three films but sorely lacking in Menace. As for Episode III, which is scheduled for release in 2005, I say bring it on—but figure out a way to cut down on the shameless commercialism. I mean, would it kill Lucas to donate the net profit to Save The Whales or something? ★★★★½

THE NEW GUY

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:29 - Released 5/10/02

D.J. Qualls has been playing geeky characters throughout his short movie career, from Road Trip to Big Trouble. Believing him as a geek is not the problem—he definitely looks the part. The trouble is, Ed Decter's eminently forgettable teen comedy The New Guy attempts to convert him into a suave, scary-cool funk musician who attracts the school hottie and leads the inept football team to a winning season by instilling patriotism in the student body. Qualls has charm, but it's a tall order. Acting is really not the issue, though; the movie is a rather insipid waste of time, as first-time director Decter and writer David Kendall don't seem interested in trying anything new, but choose simply to grind out another mindless high school frolic. Why Columbia Pictures decided to release this film in the middle of blockbuster season is another question; its unfortunate placement between Spider-Man and Star Wars II will prove to be box-office suicide.

Qualls plays Dizzy Harrison, an aspiring funk bassist and whipping boy at a Texas high school whose status as a "blip" (on the radar screen of life) results in his being the victim of constant humiliating pranks and abuse, along with his "blip" bandmates, Nora (Zooey Deschanel), Kirk (Jerod Mixon), and Glen (Parry Shen). After a particularly embarrassing incident gets him expelled and sent to jail for indecent exposure, he meets Luther (Eddie Griffin), an inmate who used to be similarly abused, but has learned to intimidate others primarily through the use of a scary stare and a crazy reputation. Luther convinces Dizzy to start over at a new school with a new identity, using his technique to assure his position at the top of the heap. So Diz changes his name to Gil Harris and descends upon Highland High School, where he is soon feared and/or respected by all except Connor (Ross Patterson), a bully whose disgust for Gil grows as the new guy becomes increasingly friendly with his girlfriend, head cheerleader Danielle (Eliza Dushku). But as Gil's stature grows, he is forced to choose between his new popularity and the friendship of his geeky bandmates.

Although this film has a nice funky soundtrack (always a plus) and some sexy cheerleader booty-shaking for the guys out there, it is really just a formula picture undeserving of much critical comment. Mentioning plot holes or logical discrepancies would be almost redundant; this is a case where no critic's opinion will affect the film's success or failure. There are a few strange-but-true celebrity cameos, like Ileana Douglas as the misguided school nurse, Lyle Lovett as Dizzy's loving but idiotic father, and several marginally famous musicians (Gene Simmons without his Kiss makeup, Tommy Lee, Vanilla Ice, etc.). If you're a teenager who likes to laugh at corny jokes and mindless high school romance, you'll probably enjoy it. If you're not, you won't. Enough said. ★★

Workshop For Alzheimer's Set For June 6

Ellen Young, a nationally known speaker/author, will be in Oakland on Thursday, June 6, to present the "lighter" side of caring for those struggling with Alzheimer's disease.

The "Hand in Hand: Caregiver and Community" caregiver workshop sponsored by the Garrett County Agency on Aging in partnership with the Alzheimer's Association, Western Maryland Chapter, was designed to impart practical information, tools, and resources to help meet the challenges of daily caregiving.

Young is a trained clinical social worker with 18 years of experience, and she was a devoted caregiver to her mother and aunt while they worked their way through the disease's labyrinth.

Her book, Between Two Worlds: Special Moments of Alzheimer's & Dementia, is the first book to explore, through personal accounts and vignettes, the rare moments of humor that unexpectedly arise during the caregiving of people suffering from Alzheimer's and related dementia.

During the "Hand in Hand" workshop, Young will bring the courageous experiences of care providers and relatives to life as they encounter the challenges of dealing with Alzheimer individuals. At the same time, she reveals the touching and gently humorous moments that go a long way to ease the tension and pain.

All royalties from the sale of Between Two Worlds have been donated to the Alzheimer's Association to help find a cure. Copies of the book will be available for purchase at the workshop.

Two Students Named Service Learning Stars

HONORED AS SERVICE STARS — Two Garrett County students were recently recognized as Service Stars for outstanding Service Learning at the board of education monthly meeting. Pictured above, from the left, are Camille Raws, board president; Joseph Graham, Southern High School; Karen Ray, director of Service Learning; Amanda Hahn, Northern High School; and Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent. See story for more details on these two students.

Two Garrett County students were recently honored as Service Learning Stars at the College of Notre Dame of Maryland and at the recent board of education meeting. Honored for outstanding Service Learning were Amanda Hahn of Northern High and Joseph Graham of Southern High.

Each year two students are selected from each county in Maryland to be recognized as having completed quality service projects. In order to qualify for the Service Star Award students must be enrolled in high school, exceed expectations for Service Learning in their districts, and must be role models for other students.

Hahn and Graham received plaques from Lt. Governor Kathleen Kennedy Townsend and Luke Frazier, executive director of the Maryland Student Service Alliance.

Hahn is a senior at Northern who trained as a peer counselor and peer mediator at the school. As a peer mediator, she conducted training for new mediators countywide.

Her other school activities include tutoring for the National Honor Society, of which she has been a member for two years, and mentoring for the band color guard unit, which she also leads as captain.

Her community activities range from volunteering in a soup kitchen to working with mentally challenged adults. She is an active Red Cross member, and trains others in first aid and CPR. Hahn assists with vacation Bible school at her church, and spends one week each summer at a camp in Wisconsin for physically challenged persons.

During her four years at Northern, she has accumulated 116.5 hours to date. She plans to attend Garrett Community College in the fall and then transfer to Allegany College of Maryland to study nursing. She is the daughter of Chuck and Ruth Ann Hahn, Accident.

Graham is a senior at Southern High. He is very active with the local Veterans of Foreign Wars, and has assisted with many fund-raisers and events that benefit the veterans and their families.

He participated with the local S.T.E.A.M group, which is sponsored by the health department and advocates against drug and alcohol abuse. Graham also serves as a tutor and mentor to middle school children.

From middle school until the present, he has accumulated more than 1,044 hours of service. Graham plans to attend college in the fall. He is the son of Joseph Graham Sr., Crellin, and Doris Owsiany, Morgantown, W.Va. He is the grandson of Paul and Patricia Graham, Crellin.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Just some thoughts about Mother's Day, which just happens to be today. I never saw the weekend go so fast as this one when I have the girls overnight. I only see them for a few quick minutes the rest of the days. I had so many plans for this weekend, but I only accomplished a few of them. I did pick up my free trees from Lana Roby at Coldwell Bankers Realty in McHenry. I got two birch, two tiny blue spruce, and two dogwood, but I had to give one to my (guess who) — of course, my mother.

But I couldn't get my girls to pick up the shovel and plant them for me even though they are so small and needed only small punctures in the ground. But when it comes to mowing by my daughters or my nephews (of which Marci also agrees), they opt for that and forget about the planting. Last year I lost a new young bush that Liz Gilbert planted for me. Another excuse was that they had to take a wildflower walk with their great Aunt Helen and her son Mike, who were up for a double birthday celebration for Mike, who turned 50 on Saturday, and our "Pappy" Dale, who is 72 years young on Monday.

Mike and Helen joined Courtney and their Bittinger family to both birthdays, plus Mother's Day, at Dale's house. The 10 nephews and nieces played ball outside in the yard in heavy downpours and were greeted by a lot of cars that honked their horns at them. Since Dale's mother is no longer living, his sister and Carol baked him his favorite checkerboard cake. It was the traditional cake for birthdays and special occasions.

It seems that all the kids of my generation lived close to our grandparents and we had plenty of mother figures in our lives besides our own mothers. You could act bad anywhere without our own parents finding out about it, or else you got scolded by my friends' mother, but they also taught me lots of things and patched my "boo-boos" and dried some tears.

Ferne Beachy and Mary Russell Brenneman were like extra mothers to me, plus we also got free big sisters, too. I saw one in church this morning, Mary Ellen Beachy Prescott of Rockville, and I got a big beaming smile from Cindy Stanton's daughter Lea.

Besides the Bittinger ladies, I also had plenty of aunts who had their hands in helping to raise all the younger generation. My mother and her children were very touched by a story and picture on the first page of the Living Section in the Cumberland Sunday Times, which featured my first cousin, Kim Mills, holding a picture of her mother, who was my Aunt Jane. The theme was titled "Soul Connection" about a second generation of nurses in the Cumberland area. Kim learned both nurse skills and administration skills from her mother, and maybe just high energy and the take-charge approach Kim shared with her mother. Both of them were head nurses in various departments at Cumberland Memorial Hospital.

Aunt Jane was up to the challenge of sneaking my little sister, who was too young to be allowed to visit during my mother's long hospital stay at Memorial Hospital. Even though she was a stickler at following the rules, she knew when a rule should bend a little bit, like when you have a tiny little girl who missed her mother very much. My guess was that Carol was 4 years old and walked under Aunt Jane's coat into the elevator up to my mother's room.

Well, believe it or not, my trees got planted. As we were eating the delicious Mother's Day dinner that my girls prepared for me, who showed up but my brother Barry, who willingly planted my trees. He also shared a couple of his seedlings of Chinese cabbage and a couple of sunflower plants. The girls cooked a pot roast with egg dumplings made from a recipe inherited from both of my grandmothers, Nanny Miller Buckle and my Babble Emma Glotfelty. They also made great homemade noodles, which is basically the same recipe with the exception of adding baking powder to the dumplings. They are so easy to make with just eggs, a little water, and salt and enough flour to make the dough stiff enough to roll out to dry. You can cut the noddles any length and size you desire.

My Grandmother Buckle was famous for her raisin cookies, pumpkin pie, and gingerbread. Grandmother Glotfelty always made fresh homemade doughnuts, and she loved to bake blackberry pies for my Pappy Orval. I think my mother learned many of the good traits from her mother and mother-in-law as she also was a great baker and she taught her daughters skills needed to be a good housewife and mother, even though she never was the seamstress that they were. I think that they both would have fainted if they knew I had become a professional seamstress because in earlier days I did not show any promise. My grandmother made me a skirt of strips of colorful left-over fabrics. I thought it was the most beautiful skirt in the world until my classmates saw it and called me "Raggedy Ann." I felt only contempt for them. Was it too terrible to use what you might have instead of going out to buy something?

It was typical in the poor farming communities to make use of odds and ends, as they were not rich and lived by the land. Many of the women in these communities were wonderful quilters and able to make any kind of garment their children needed. That was what my grandmother did for me, when other children had plenty of money to buy that "in style" Granny dress, she just whipped out her old treadle sewing machine and made one.

Grandma Emma also made me a new riding jacket when I grew out of my hand-me-down boy jacket. The best Christmas present ever (except when I got "Little Joe") was the year Babble made me new dresses for all my dolls. Grandma Buckle was not involved in as much quilting as Emma, but she made beautiful crochet doilies. Their hands were never idle, and I guess I get that from them, as I go crazy unless I have something to occupy my hands during leisure times. That is what my making the little dolls does for me these days. I also make do with what I have and can afford. When I stopped buying paints, brushes, paper, etc., for my art, I turned to free color and textures.

The many wonderful quilts that my grandmothers' generation created to beautify their homes and keep their family warm are in use today in my home. I still sleep under a double wedding ring quilt which was one of the last made before she died, and another log cabin quilt made by Aunt Helen and given to me as a wedding present. Babble used to make rag rugs on her big old loom in her basement. I used to help tear old fabric into strips for them. Her daughter Dorothy now keeps that tradition alive. At least she did in New Mexico, and I don't know about it now since she is living in New

FSU Professor Hurd Wins Elkins Professorship

Frostburg State University English professor Dr. Barbara Hurd, a resident of Garrett County, has been awarded the Wilson H. Elkins Professorship from the University System of Maryland. This is another accolade in a series of honors for Hurd, including critical acclaim and a place on the Los Angeles Times' Best Books of 2001 list for her book of essays, Stirring the Mud: Swamps, Bogs and Human Imagination, as well as being awarded a $20,000 fellowship from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The $80,000 that the Elkins Professorship will provide will allow Hurd more time to complete the research, writing, and revision of her next book, Three Sources of Light, a collection of essays involving caves, and to complete a proposal for another book, tentatively titled The Wrack Line, named for the line of debris left on a beach after the tide goes out.

As a requirement of the Elkins award, Hurd will present three lectures at FSU during the year of her professorship. She is planning one in the fall on the art of the essay, a second in the spring in conjunction with Dance Alloy from Pittsburgh, which is creating a dance based on her Stirring the Mud essays, and a reading from Three Sources of Light, which is due to be published in 2003.

Hurd said the idea to try for the professorship came from FSU president Catherine R. Gira. When Gira learned about it, she encouraged Hurd to write a proposal.

"I think it's a tribute to Catherine and the university's increasing support of the arts," Hurd said. "It's very gratifying. It really is."

The Wilson H. Elkins Professorship was established in 1978 as the first permanently endowed, university-wide professorship at the University of Maryland. The professorship is named in honor of Dr. Wilson H. Elkins, a former Rhodes scholar who led the University of Maryland to new levels of distinction as its president from 1954 to 1978. Under Elkins's leadership, the university grew notably in size, scope, and standing.

When the new University System of Maryland began in 1988, Elkins agreed that his professorship should extend to the entire USM family, of which FSU is a member.

DANCING IN D.C. — Grantsville's World Lighthouse Worship Center's dance team traveled to Washington, D.C., last week to participate in the National World Day of Prayer at the White House. The young dancers were part of a traveling group of about 20 local people who went to the capital city. After an opening prayer and worship song, the team danced on the West Lawn. Pictured in the front are Bethany Butler (left) and Brianna Singell. On the next step are Heather Singell and Lydia Valenta, and on the third step are Tracey Koontz and Careasa Frazee. In the back are Alyson McKenzie, Lindsay Farris, and Sarah Valenta. The team has been dancing for three years. Lisa Farris, the team's director, contacted Shirley Dobson of the national group Focus on the Family in order to arrange the girls' trip and performance.

Burner Awarded Scholarships To Attend CCAD

Matthew Burner, a senior at Southern High School, has received both a President's Award Scholarship, worth $34,000, and a National Art Honor Society Scholarship, valued at $4,000, from the Columbus (Ohio) College of Art and Design (CCAD). The President's Award was earned as a result of an art portfolio competition held at the college and judged by a team of CCAD faculty members.

Burner, who will begin his studies at CCAD this fall, is the son of Ronald W. and Brenda L. Burner, Oakland, and is a student of Sonia Pratt at Southern. His artwork has been exhibited at the State Treasury Building in Annapolis for over six months.

Burner has been named Student of the Month for art at Southern, and has been nominated for Who's Who Among American High School Students for the past four years. He is president of the National Art Honor Society chapter at Southern, and is also a member of the Foster D. Bittle Chapter of the National Honor Society.

Founded in 1879, CCAD is one of the oldest private colleges of art in the country, and has an enrollment of more than 1,600 students. The college offers a four-year program of study leading to a bachelor of fine arts degree in one of seven major areas: fine arts, illustration, industrial design, advertising and graphic design, fashion design, interior design, and media studies.

Latta Slated To Perform In May GLAF Concert

Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF) will present Greg Latta in concert on Saturday, May 25. The concert will begin at 8 p.m., and will be held in a casual, outdoor setting on the patio of Will O' the Wisp, weather permitting.

Tickets are $10 for adults, and $5 for youth 18 years and younger. A limited dessert and drink menu will be offered for an additional cost. Tickets are limited, so advance reservations are suggested by calling the GLAF office at 301-387-3082 Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Latta is a singer and performer on the hammered dulcimer, guitar, banjo, Irish bouzouki, harmonica, recorder, Appalachian dulcimer, and concertina. A hammered dulcimer virtuoso and champion, he is a three-time winner of the Mid-Eastern hammered dulcimer championships (1994, 1992, and 1990), and has twice been a runner-up in the National Hammered Dulcimer Championships held at Winfield, Kan., (1994 and 1992).

Latta plays an eclectic mix of Irish, traditional and contemporary folk, Broadway, bluegrass, and original music.

Though known mainly for his hammered dulcimer playing, Latta is also an award-winning banjo player, having won second or third place every year in the 1994-1990 banjo competitions held in Friendsville. His banjo style is a combination of traditional bluegrass, "old-timey," melodic, and contemporary styles.

GREG LATTA

Latta has played guitar longer than any other instrument, as can be seen in his driving "Travis" style of picking and varied fingerwork. He plays both 6- and 12-string guitars, specializing in open tunings on the 12-string guitar. His songs include original works, old coal mining songs, whaling songs, contemporary and traditional topical songs, and children's songs.

In addition to his stage performances and recordings, he is also the host and producer of the radio show "Just Plain Folks," which can be heard on Saturday afternoons on WFWM, the Frostburg State University public radio station. He is also a member of the Frostburg State University faculty.

The event sponsor for his performance is the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce. Season sponsors are Sprenger-Lang Foundation, Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty, and Deep Creek Mountain Resort. The program is also supported in part by a grant from the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council.

Schroeder; "All for Love," arranged by Teena Chinn; "Country is the Heart of America," arranged by Marti Lunn; "Block Buster Ballads of the '90s," arranged by Jay Althouse; and "An American Salute," by Ed Lojeski.

Requested donations for the concert are $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Clever is assisted by Duane Salisbury.

"A COUPLE HUNDRED HOURS" or "about two years" is Sam Butt's estimation of time he spent creating this award-winning carving of a red-bellied woodpecker, which captured first place in the songbird division, advanced level, of the 32nd annual Ward World Championships, held April 26-28 in Ocean City. The carving also garnered third place in the overall decorative lifesize wildfowl division for the entire show. The competition is the world's largest and most prestigious show of wildfowl wood sculpture, and includes wildfowl carving, fish carving, and painting competitions. Over $100,000 is presented in awards, and the Best in World selections become part of the permanent collection of the Ward Museum in Salisbury. Butt, a resident of Mtn. Lake Park, has been carving since 1983, having taken initial instruction from another local master, Gary Yoder, Grantsville, who has won numerous world honors in bird carving.

BITTINGER

Of course, my own mother was a terribly important influence for me. She seemed to go from one task to another without skipping a beat. She always thought she could speak her mind even if it did upset some people. She never seemed to mind making waves. But now when I do the same thing voicing my opinion at meetings or step off the trail in this column, she jumps on me and urges me to be a good little girl and not make any waves. I guess she sees a dangerous element and I might reflect badly on her. A mother does not ask more from her children than what she expects from herself. Any less reflects on her. I never expect I will be as good a mother as my mom. But it is nonstop for me to try to live up to her standards. I can't say I am successful, but I do try to be my very best, and that is one thing I did learn from my mother.

It is hard to believe that anyone still believes we are under the normal amount of rainfall after yesterday when afternoon rains came and the kids had trouble finishing even one inning without another rain delay. And guess what — We are having another drenching rain today. While we had a strong storm of hail yesterday, my daughters thought, "It would be cool if we would get a snow day now!" Today the rain is cool and almost cold. The weather is so miserable that it drove my hummingbirds to the old lilac bush by my kitchen window. It is the best place for them, as it has pretty dense foliage, plus some sweet little blossoms too. When the rain stops they do return to my feeders.

Even with their company I feel very blue and lonely today. I guess it is like that old song, "Rainy Days and Mondays Always Get Me Down."

The one person I can talk to, Pastor Pat Pittsnogle, is out of town for a regional meeting for a few days. I am not too happy where our Blessing Fund is going this quarter. I feel the fund should be going to people who do not share the blessing of life in Bittinger America. I hope to make a tiny difference in the lives of "the wretched of the world," the refugees and victims of terror like the Afghanistan violence. We are not even sure who gets hold of our money we send to the funds for victims of the terrorist attacks in America.

I know this is a radical idea, but if we would be willing to share our blessings with them I doubt if crash and thump through my door, and though I was a victim of violence, she was willing to risk her own life to help. It still surprises me that the real people who were my neighbors there did not resent people like me and my friends who were poor because we were pursuing a bright shiny dream of earning a decent living from our art. The actors and artists all chose their poverty, unlike minorities we were surrounded by. They were poor because the Americans failed them. I guess we stuck out like a "sore thumb" in that neighborhood as much as the African Americans and Hispanics would stand out in Bittinger.

Would we be as welcome to them as they were to me? Yes, people like me did threaten their lives, because when the artists moved in, the real poor people had to get out. As Greenwich Village spreads, the poor immigrants have to give up their homes as they no longer can afford the new rents. They know that when we get tired of our vow of poverty we could move uptown or into the Village or back to all the small towns of America where we came from.

Now why did I have to go off like this in "Notes from Bittinger?" It isn't my job to provide a nice pretty picture of how good it is to live in a good Christian community. Or whether I am supposed to, like Pastor Pat said to me at church on Sunday, "write for Jesus." I guess one of my clear duties is to remind everyone that next Saturday a major fundraising effort will be held for our church. The yard sale is sponsored by our Youth Group to benefit the Blessing Fund and the hog roast to benefit our Building Fund. If you did not get your ticket yet, you might get in on a walk-in ticket. Sept. 11 would have ever happened. Even when they get our attention, we still do not hear their cries of misery and hunger of the homeless, legless victims of 20 years of their homeland being just a battleground for the Superpowers. Yes, I am glad as anyone to live in a beautiful safe place as Bittinger and to have this place to raise my children. But I know that everyone is not as lucky as we are, and I do think we should include all the children of the world in our concerns. We should regard even the people who live in terrible slums or on the extreme frontiers as our neighbors.

I learned valuable lessons from my neighbors in my building in one of the poorest neighborhoods in Manhattan. My next door neighbor was a tiny dancer who showed up at my door with a knife when she heard a The roast starts at 4 p.m. and the yard sale early in the day.

The national criterion for acceptance is an 85% grade point average, but NHS policy requires that its members maintain an average of 88%. In addition to high scholarship, each candidate must demonstrate good character, strong leadership skills, and service in the school and community. The faculty of the school nominates potential new members each year, and a five-member faculty council selects students based on an activity information form and other qualifications. Todd Foley, current Honor Society president, led the ceremony, under the direction of co-advisers Julie Brenneman and Gayle Grimm. New inductees are shown above. In the front row, from the left, are Amanda Geisler, Holly Hare, Ashley Robinson, Megan Zimmerman, and Dallas Miller. In the second row are Michael Guard, Jamie Livengood, Molly Wolf, Lacie Berkebile, and Amy Umbel. In the third row are Thomas Menges, Mitchell Guard, Landon Southerly, Amanda Frantz, Kristen Schefft, Shawn Fike, Heather Lander, and Tessa Folk. Erin Neil was absent from the photo.

NEW PROGRAM IN GRANTSVILLE SCHOOL — Grantsville Elementary School recently implemented a one-on-one reading/tutoring program based on the Reading Recovery Program. The program is designed to enable students to make accelerated progress in the acquisition of literacy skills. The program, which is sponsored through a grant from the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families, is adapted from a program developed in New Zealand by Marie Clay, and is grounded in early intervention strategies. Daily, individualized, 30-minute lessons are tailored to build upon what the students already know. The reading lessons will supplement, but will not substitute, classroom reading instruction. The coordinator of the program, called RACE (Read And Comprehend Everyday), is Carol Frazee. The goal of the program is to accelerate students toward an independent level, enabling success in the regular classroom. Pictured above, Shawn Snyder is being read to by Mrs. Clark, reading teacher.

The fourth graders performed tribute to the military and presented Crosco with a welcome home banner. The soldier is pictured surrounded by the students. ## Rams Conclude Perfect Regular Season With Two Wins Over BW

Wrapping up a perfect regular season on Friday was the Southern High School varsity baseball team, as the Rams swept visiting Bishop Walsh, 2-0, in the regularly scheduled game, and then completed a game that was suspended back in April with a 19-7 win. The double victory gave the Rams a 19-0 mark for the regular season and maintained their top seed position in the West Region 1A playoffs, which are currently under way.

After having playoff games scheduled for both Monday and Tuesday rained out, the Rams finally met Allegany in a regional quarterfinal clash yesterday. (See separate story.)

The Spartans played the Rams tough in the first game, as Southern's Bryson Meyers and BW's Kevin Orndorf were in a head-to-head battle on the mound. Each went the distance and each allowed just four hits, with Meyers striking eight and issuing no walks.

The Rams took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first via an RBI single by Kevin Goralski, and they doubled their score in the fifth behind an RBI double by Meyers.

The bats of both teams came alive in the resumption of the second contest, which featured a total of 24 hits. The game had been tied at 6-6 after seven innings, and the Rams scored seven runs in the top of the eighth to take a 13-7 advantage, all back on April 5. They added six more runs in the same inning on Friday, and then limited the Spartans to a single run in the bottom of the eighth to end the game.

Southern's Joel Helbig finished with a two-run homer and a single for three RBI, J.J. Bolyard provided three runs with two singles, and Ricky Reams and Chad Panther each contributed a double.

Pacing the Spartans' offense were Brandon Grabenstein with a solo homer and a single, and Orndorf and Eric Perlozzo with two singles each.

The Spartans fell to 12-9.

NHS Netters Grab Bi-County Crown; Four Huskies Going To Regionals

The Northern High School varsity tennis team jumped a big hurdle Saturday en route to a hoped-for region title by cruising to the Bi-County championship at Allegany College of Maryland in Cumberland. NHS is sending four players — Heather Lander and Ashley Robinson as singles players, and the doubles team of Nicole Sisler/Andrea Green — on to the regional tourney, which gets under way at 1 p.m. tomorrow afternoon at North Hagerstown High School.

Northern claimed the Bi-County title by taking first and second place in singles play, and the runner-up slot in doubles competition. Teammates Lander and Robinson went head-to-head in the championship match, each bringing an identical 11-3 record into the contest, and Lander prevailed 6-4, 6-0, to boost her season mark to 12-3. Both girls will represent NHS in regional singles play tomorrow.

NHS's doubles team of Sisler/Green took its first-round match from Allegany's Elizabeth Dean/Jessica Mellon by an 8-4 margin, and downed Fort Hill's Amber Bailey/Nicole Wigfield by the same tally in Round Two. In the finals of top-flight doubles play, Sisler/Green fell 6-4, 6-3, to the Camper tandem of Michelle and Melissa Seib. Sisler and Green earned entry into regional play as the runner-up doubles team.

Northern's other doubles unit, Jennifer Lowdermilk/Rebecca Stark, were eliminated in the first round by Sarah Eisel/Gena Lamp of Beall.

The Huskies' regular season concluded with an excellent 8-1 mark. In addition to Lander's 12-4 record, the NHS singles lineup recorded these season tallies: Robinson, 11-4; Miriah Fletcher, 6-2; Christie Flockhart, 8-3; Amber Weimer, 9-0; Rachel Bruch 8-1; Sisler, 9-1; Green, 6-2; Lowdermilk, 6-2; Annie Donaldson, 1-1; and Stark, 0-1.

The Huskies' impressive on-court showing was matched by their classroom performances. As a unit, the squad recorded an outstanding 91 percent academic average, with the following student-athletes earning Minds in Motion awards for averages of 87.5 percent or higher: Lander, Robinson, Fletcher, Flockhart, Weimer, Bruch, Sisler, Green, Lowdermilk, Sisler, Erica Maust, Heidi McMillan, and Amy Brenneman.

Huskies Eliminated From Post-Season As Alco Takes 3-1 Win

The season ended Friday for Northern High School's varsity baseball team, as the Huskies dropped a Western Maryland Class 1A Region playoff opener to host Allegany by a 3-1 margin. Held to just three singles in seven innings, the Huskies saw their campaign conclude just under .500 at an overall mark of 9-10.

NHS got on the board first, breaking a scoreless pitching duel between Jason Rice and Alco's Aaron Laffey with a fourth-inning run. Chad Carr, who had initially reached base on a walk, scampered home when Derek Workman cracked an RBI single for the Huskies' only score.

Allegany struck back with three runs in the bottom of the fourth, leading off with two singles. A throwing error on a steal attempt let one run score, then a Camper drew a walk before catcher Shane McDade knocked a two-run single.

Trey Brenneman added two singles to Workman's hit for the Huskies three-single tally. Twelve Huskies went down by Laffey strikeouts. The Campers recorded six hits and just one earned run off Rice, who threw a full six innings on the mound.

Allegany advanced to play Southern in yesterday's quarterfinal (see separate story).

Rams Nip Allegany In Playoff, 4-3

A wild pitch by Allegany's ace Aaron Laffey ended a nail-biter in favor of the undefeated Southern High School Rams yesterday afternoon in Oakland, as Coach Jim Bosley's team eked out a tough 4-3 victory in the quarterfinals of the 1A West Region playoffs.

Bosley was concerned going into the contest, noting that Laffey is one of the most talented pitchers in the area. "He had us down 7-4 late in the game in the regular season," Bosley said, "and then they committed a couple of errors which let us get back into the game. That seemed to rattle him a little bit and we came back to win. But he's the hardest throwing pitcher we faced all season."

The Rams managed just six hits off Laffey in yesterday's game, with Brad Palmer leading that effort by connecting for two doubles.

After the Campers took a 1-0 lead in the top of the third, the Rams recorded three runs in the bottom of the fourth via back-to-back doubles by Kevin Goralski and Palmer. The third run was scored by Palmer on a passed ball.

Justin Bussard led off Allegany's half of the fifth with a single, and later scored on a ground out by Laffey to make it 3-2. Then they knotted the score at 3-3 in the top of the fifth when Ryan Strother took first after being struck by a pitch, advanced to third on a double hit to right field by Justin Schellhaus, and ultimately scored on a botched squeeze play.

Ram starter Tobi Stoner was relieved by Bryson Meyers in the top of the seventh and ultimately retired the side, with the tying run on third base.

Southern led off the bottom of the seventh with a single by J.J. Bolyard, followed by a bunt by Nathan Fitzwater, who was safe at first because of a wide throw. The runners advanced on a wild pitch, and Laffey intentionally walked Chad Panther to load the bases. A pitch to the next batter was well outside and in the dirt, allowing Bolyard to come home and giving the Rams the immediate win.

Stoner and Meyers combined for 11 strike-outs and three walks, and allowed seven hits, with Schellhaus recording a double and a single. Laffey also struck out 11 and issued three walks.

It was the 20th victory in as many starts for the top-seeded Rams, who will host Smithsburg today at 4:30 in a West Region semifinal clash. Bryson Meyers is expected to start on the mound for Southern, and is eligible to pitch up to six innings. High school pitchers are allowed to pitch up to 14 innings per week.

If the Rams are victorious today, they will play at Boonsboro tomorrow for the West Region title. That game will begin at 4.30. Boonsboro earned a spot in the finals by defeating Westmar yesterday, 13-2.

Should the Rams capture the regional championship, they will play in the state 1A semifinals next Tuesday in Hagerstown. The state 1A championship game will be played on Saturday, May 25, in Baltimore.

GETTING A HUGE WIN on the mound yesterday for the undefeated Southern High School varsity was senior pitcher Tobi Stoner, pictured mid-delivery above, as the Rams escaped with a 4-3 victory over visiting Allegany in a quarterfinal game of the West Region playoffs. Stoner combined with reliever Bryson Meyers for 11 strikeouts. Leading the six-hit performance by the Rams was Brad Palmer, pictured above right smacking one of his two doubles for the game. Below left, Coach Jim Bosley provides encouragement and instruction to Ram outfielder J.J. Bolyard. Below right, senior Chad Panther lays down a successful bunt. In the photo at bottom right, both coaches contest a call by the homeplate umpire, while Stoner quietly awaits the final decision. FIRING A PITCH TO THE PLATE, Northern High School junior Valens Snyder is shown at work on the mound during yesterday's 15-5 Husky varsity softball loss to Hancock. Snyder was summoned to the mound late in the contest for relief duty. Husky shortstop Bridget Frazee is pictured below gathering in a throw at second base, a toss that just missed cutting down the Panther baserunner's steal attempt. Frazee and fellow seniors Jolene Bronneman, Brooke Butler, and Emily Rawe played their last game for Northern yesterday as the West Region quarterfinal playoff defeat eliminated NHS from post-season contention, and ended NHS's season at a 3-9 overall record. The loss came on the heels of Friday's 16-7 thumping of Westmar in the first round of the playoffs.

NHS Crushes Westmar In Playoff Opener Before Falling To Hancock

The Northern High School girls' varsity softball team got off to a big start in the Maryland Class 1A West Region playoffs Friday with a 16-7 thrashing of Westmar's Wildcats, but the Hancock Panthers redeemed their feline cousins by defeating the Huskies yesterday, 15-5. (Details of yesterday's game were not available.)

The Westmar battle was a true contest through the early going, as a one run Husky second inning was answered by two Wildcat runs in the third. NHS rallied in a big way in the top of the fourth with six runs to go up 7-2. The hosts cut that big lead to just one with four runs in the bottom of the fourth, then each team traded single runs in the fifth to make the score 8-7 in favor of the Huskies.

The dam finally burst in the top of the fifth when senior shortstop Bridget Frazee blasted a pitch over the outfield fence — the first ball ever hit out of the park at Westmar's field — putting NHS up by two. The Huskies then rampaged for four more runs on two more hits, two walks, and a Westmar error to widen their lead to 13-7.

Northern complete-game winning pitcher Jolene Brenneman held the Wildcats scoreless over the next two innings, as the Huskies added three more runs for the final nine-run advantage. For the day Brenneman held Westmar to eight hits, while NHS rapped out a total of 13 hits.

In addition to her one-run home run blast, Frazee added two other hits for a total of four RBI. First baseman Lyndsi Butler also had a big day with a 4-for-5 performance, including a double, for three RBI, and Emily Rawe also drove home three runs on three hits and a walk.

Northern reportedly finished its rainout-plagued season with a 3-9 overall mark.

Oakland Pen-Mar Team Schedules Pair Of Workouts

The Oakland Pen-Mar Baseball League team will hold workouts at the Garrett Community College baseball field next Tuesday, May 21, and next Thursday, May 23, at 6:30 p.m. both evenings. Anyone interested in playing for the Oakland team is asked to attend at least one of these sessions, or contact Coach Craig Bosley at 301-334-8830.

The Pen-Mar League, which is a semi-professional league consisting of teams from the tri-state area, is beginning its 54th season of competition.

Women Golfers Finally Get To Begin Season

After two weeks of cancellations because of rain, the Women's Golf Association managed to begin its season at the Oakland course on May 9. Again rain was a factor, which decreased the play from 18 holes to nine.

The following winners were announced after flight play: First Flight, low gross, Janice Metheny, score 44, and low net, Cheryl Albert, score 30; Second Flight, low gross, Jessie Stowell, score 52, and low net, Cheryl Wotherspoon, score 25; Third Flight, low gross, Loretta Pernell, score 53, and low net (tie), Diane Winters/Carolyn Deverse, score 22; and Fourth Flight, low gross, Helen Nordick, score 60, and low net (tie), Ruth Kight/Shirley Leonhardt, score 23.

The association meets at the Oakland Golf Club each Thursday morning for fellowship, as well as competitive play.

Rams Romp Over Alco; Perfect Bosley Guns Down Leopards

Defending varsity softball state champion Southern High School continues to look the part with ease, as the Rams cruised through their season finale Friday with an easy 7-1 win over Allegany, then debuted in the Class 1A West Region playoffs with a 9-0 win over Smithsburg Tuesday. The win over the Leopards came via yet another perfect game pitching performance by SHS phenom Jennifer Bosley, who has tossed an unheard-of three perfect games (and an additional no-hitter) in her last five outings. Southern has a 17-1 record to date.

The action sets up a region semifinal showdown this afternoon at 5 p.m. in Oakland, a contest that will pit Bosley against Alco's Jen Cook. The pair of superlative pitchers have had some superb battles over the course of the season, and the only aspect that could prevent today's battle from being another teeth-clenching showdown is the fact that Cook worked six full no-hit innings yesterday during Alco's 10-0 quarterfinal win over South Hagerstown, and may tire late against the Rams.

The Rams didn't get much of a chance to hone their bats against Cook Friday, as the Campers' Lacey Smith drew the starting assignment, giving up 10 singles while her teammates committed five errors in the field. Cook came to the mound in the final inning and held SHS scoreless.

Bosley struck an uncharacteristically low (for her) seven batters while giving up just three Alco hits over seven full innings. The lone run Allegany put on the scoreboard was unearned, as Jessica Smith singled in the first inning, then stole second base before advancing to third on a fielder's choice. She scampered home on a passed ball.

Southern answered with a run of its own in the bottom of the first, as leadoff batter Autumn Uphold singled, and advanced to third on Megan Burner's perfectly placed sacrifice bunt. A groundout to second base by Ashley Liller scored the runner.

Allegany got its second hit of the day when Corie McKenzie led off the third with a single. She was then cut down on a fine fielding play by Uphold, who snagged a sacrifice bunt attempt in the air and gunned the ball to first for a double play.

The final hit given up by Bosley, another single, came in the next inning when Bethany Sindy punched a ball out of the infield; however, she was cut down at second base during a steal attempt on a fine throw by Ram catcher Gina Reeves.

SHS scored four runs in the fourth inning after Melissa Flanagan singled, Samantha Skeweris reached on an error, and Uphold walked to load the bases. Burner walked to bring home Flanagan, then Liller singled home Skeweris. Bosley capped the scoring with a two-run single that scored Liller and Uphold.

Other than the three Camper batters who stroked singles, no other Alco batters reached base on the day, for Bosley did not give up a single walk. Allegany was getting the bat around on the ball, however, as the Camper batters knocked three flyballs to left field that were gathered in by Skeweris, who hasn't had much of a chance to practice her fielding with Bosley on the mound. Uphold, one of the finest fielders in the area, recorded six outs at her third base spot.

Southern's 10-single output on offense was paced by Liller's three singles, while seven other Rams knocked lone singles of their own. SHS left a total of 14 runners on base throughout the contest.

Both Bosley and the Ram batters were in top form Tuesday at Boonesboro, as the SHS ace struck out 17 batters in her perfect game outing while Southern stroked a total of 16 hits.

Southern took a 1-0 lead in the first inning, enough for their pitcher, but added five insurance runs in the second, two in the fourth, and one in the seventh and final stanza.

Junior Megan Bernard had a big day at the plate, ripping two doubles and two singles in four at-bats while driving home one run. Bosley tallied an RBI on a double and two singles, first baseman Erica Green had an RBI double and a single, and Uphold and Reeves recorded two basehits apiece.

Should the Rams prevail in today's rematch with Alco, the squad will be slated to host the winner of this afternoon's Hancock/Beall contest. Tomorrow's semifinal contest would get under way at 4:30 p.m. in Oakland.

Junior Golf Program Set By Oakland Club

The Oakland Golf Club is taking registration for this summer's Junior Golf program for 7- to 18-year-old participants of all skill levels. The deadline to sign up for the program, as a participant or adult volunteer, is Friday, June 7, and players will meet for at the club for instruction and play on Wednesday mornings from June 12 through July 31. A skills contest is set for July 3, and a championship tourney is slated for July 31. The program will conclude on Sunday, Aug. 11, with a parent-child tournament and awards banquet.

Oakland Club pro and PGA member Patrick Warren, who founded and operated the Junior Golf program with the help of volunteers last year, will direct the program this summer. "We strive to impart the rules, etiquette, and spirit of golf to our participants, while not forgetting that the game is meant to be fun," Warren said. Program participants will be bracketed by age group and will play from different yardages, anywhere from the 150 yard markers to the men's markers.

"Last year we had 40 kids in the program and we feel that it was a great success. We had parents, grandparents, and some of our senior members volunteering to help each week with driving carts, scoring and check-in. It really couldn't have happened without the help of the volunteers and the support of the club."

The cost of the non-profit Junior Golf program is $25 per player, which is used to purchase equipment, gifts, trophies, and prizes, and goes toward the awards banquet. The Oakland Golf Club is donating the use of the course, and all prizes are purchased at cost. Sponsorships and donations from local business and individuals are also welcome and will be used to help the program expand, said Warren.

Div. One Robert Morris U. Signs Garrett's Cooper

Duke Cooper, starting point guard for the Garrett Community College men's basketball team this past season, has been recruited by Robert Morris University in Pittsburgh. The 5-5 Cooper is slated to take over the point guard position for Robert Morris next season, and "should fit perfectly into the Colonials' up-tempo, pressing style of play," according to RMU coach Mark Schmidt.

"This is my first full year recruiting here, and I was astounded to find a player of Duke's quality so close to our area and still available," said Schmidt, a former assistant of Skip Prosser's at Wake Forest University. "When you get a player from a quality program such as the one Dennis Gibson runs, you know he will be able to handle the transition to the Division I athletic requirements.

"Duke is a consummate point guard. He does a great job of looking for his teammates first, but he can also shoot the open 3-pointer. He has great size for a point guard. He has a great IQ for the game, good instincts. He's exactly what we need. I'm extremely pleased we could get a player of his caliber," Schmidt stated.

This past season at Garrett, Cooper averaged 10.4 points, 8.7 assists, and 6.1 rebounds per game, as he helped lead the Lakers to a 21-8 record. He recorded a pair of triple doubles, missing two more by just one rebound each. He dished out 16 assists against Rockville, the second highest single-game tally in GCC history, and his overall total of 230 assists ranks third on the all-time list.

"Playing and attending Garrett this year was a great experience for me." Cooper said. "I really enjoyed being a part of Garrett's program. I feel that I learned a lot from the coaching staff and the other players on the team. It was a physically and mentally demanding year, but I know that it helped prepare me for next year at Robert Morris."

Laker head coach Dennis Gibson expressed mixed feelings about the departure of Cooper, "I could not be happier for Duke; he deserves this opportunity and I feel like a lot of schools missed an opportunity to land him. We will really miss what he brings to our team and school. He is a quality individual first and a great player second.

"Duke makes other people around him better," Gibson continued. "If he played here as a sophomore, he would be one of the top returnees in our region, if not the country. As he develops at RMU and under Coach Schmidt, there is no question he will have an opportunity to play professionally."

Cooper was also recruited by numerous Division I schools, including East Carolina, Appalachian State, Indiana State, and Binghamton, before he chose RMU. He played one year at Garrett after redshirting his freshman year, and therefore will have three years of eligibility remaining with the Robert Morris program.

Little Leaguers Selling Pizzas To Raise Funds

The annual Oakland Little League pizza sale fundraiser is currently in swing, and is slated to continue through Saturday, May 25. OLL players are contacting local individuals, businesses, and organizations as they take orders for the Joe Corbi pizzas, and persons who aren't directly contacted may call 301-334-6280 to leave a message requesting an order. The delivery date remains to be set.

The young ballplayers are allowed to participate in just one fund-raising event per year, according to national Little League rules. Proceeds from the sales will go to repairs and improvements to the Broadford Park OLL ballfield complex.

The track and field teams of Northern High School both placed third in a five-team competition held last Wednesday at Greenway Avenue Stadium in Cumberland, with Allegany the host of the event.

THE WAIT WAS WORTH IT! — It may have taken 40 years for Doug Ward, left (just kidding — this was Ward's first turkey hunt), but the 40-year-old Dawson, Pa., resident bagged his first gobbler on opening day in the Friendsville area. The big 21½-pound tom boasted a 9½-inch beard, and was called in by Ward's brother-in-law, Rodney Friend of Friendsville, who is shown displaying the quarry's fan.

Bests Personal Goal In First Marathon Race

Garrett County resident Dan Shafer ran in his first marathon race recently during the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center (UPMC) Health System/City of Pittsburgh Marathon. He completed the hilly 26.2-mile course in 3:19, a showing that bettered the 4-hour personal goal he had set prior to the race. Shafer finished 246th overall in the 3,000 runner field, and 21st out of 136 runners in his 20-24 age group.

A 1999 Southern High School graduate, Shafer competed at the interscholastic level for three years as a member of the Runnin' Rams cross country team for three years. He is currently a junior at the University of Maryland College Park, where he is majoring in aerospace engineering.

Shafer is the son of Gary and Jan Shafer of Oakland.

Area Speedway Review

ROARING KNOB
by Donna Butler

Nick Jones took top honors in the Fayette Tire Late Models in Saturday night's action at Roaring Knob Raceway. Other victors were John Redshaw in the Caney Valley Sport and Marine Hot Stocks, Eric Hay in the Vital Link-QCOL Classic Lites, and Marty Spade in the Fort Necessity Garage Stock Four Cylinders. Louie Orris claimed his first career win in the Fort Necessity Garage Modified Four Banger division.

Nick Jones always hooks up well on the wide 3/8-mile oval. Jones, Pittsburgh, was fast right out of the box, as he wired a very talented field of Fayette Tire Late Models. The action was back in the pack. Three wide was the order of the evening, as Gary Dalton, Nolan Dalton, and Jeff Ferguson waged a torrid battle for second spot. Scattered cautions kept the field bunched up, but Jones, ever quick on the trigger, was up to the task. When the smoke cleared, it was Jones over Gary Dalton, Nolan Dalton, and Jeff Thomas. Bob Neratka turned in a fine top-5 finish, with Chuck Clise, Billy Fash, Mel Minnick, Jeff Ferguson, and Dwane Shultz rounding out the top 10. Jones and Gary Dalton took the heats.

The "Farmington Fireball," John Redshaw, took his first of 2002 in the Caney Valley Sport and Marine Hot Stocks. Third-starter Redshaw, the 2000 and 2001 track champ, took over the point on the ninth circuit and withstood the challenges of hard charging Jim Bendishaw Jr. and Jim Byers for a well-earned victory. Completing the top five were Byers, Bendishaw, Steve Huggins, and Steve Sickles. Heats were claimed by Redshaw, Bendishaw, and Scott Spade.

Somerset, Pa.'s, Eric Hay visited victory lane in the Vital Link-QCOL Classic Lites. Hay, Frank Dunkle, and Mike Hay went at it in serious fashion on the raceway. Hay took over the point from Dunkle with a dramatic last lap pass. Dunkle came in second, followed by Mike Hay, Frankie Dunkle, and Rick Buttle. Eric Hay and Mike Hay scored heat wins.

Marty "Too Tall" Spade of Farmington, Pa., led every lap of the Fort Necessity Garage Stock Four Cylinder division. Following Spade to the stripe were Martin Spade Sr., Dave Friend, Ike McCleary, and Allen McNett. Taking heat wins were Spade Sr. and McCleary.

In taking his career first, Friedens, Pa.'s, Louie Orris was at his best. Orris led every lap of the Fort Necessity Garage Modified Four Cylinders. Louie was hounded every inch of the way by Jason Boncoski, but held on for the win. Boncoski came in as the runner-up, followed by Floyd Leonard, Spencer Cale, and Gene Gindlesperger. Boncoski took the heat.

Roaring Knob Raceway returns to action this Saturday, May 18. Extra laps and extra loot are on tap for all divisions with the first installment of the Tri-State Shootout Series. The headlining Fayette Tire Late Models are slated for 40 laps of green flag racing, with $2,000 awaiting the victor. General admission is $15 for this event. As always, youngsters 12 and under will be admitted free. Pit admission is $30.

COMPLETE READING PROGRAM — Students at Swan Meadow School recently completed their After-School Reading Achievers Program for the semester. Principal Linda Fleming, teacher Liz Rees Gilbert, and Frostburg State University education student Delilah Miller met 12 times with the third and fifth graders this spring for two-hour reading sessions each day. There were three purposes for the sessions: reading to perform a task, reading for information, and reading for literary experience. Each session began with a mini lesson about stance questions for the different reading purposes that the students would be responding to that day. After being divided into groups, the students read passages and practiced their question responses. For their task sessions, they followed written directions to make an airplane and its "hangar," shown above. They then wrote their responses to the questions and shared their ideas for improving the directions and their responses. The program was made possible through an after-school mini grant from the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families.

AURORA CEOS

Opening devotions of the April 16 meeting of Aurora CEOS were led by Martha Bolyard. A lesson on "Exploring Our Community Partners" brought information concerning the work of the other organizations, what they do and why, led by Delores Douglas. She mentioned the Aurora Historical Society, the Mountain Lions Club, Senior Citizens, the PTO, and others which have programs to benefit various segments of the community. Alice Penzo reported that the Aurora Project has purchased the former Brookside Resort cottages for restoration into an artist colony, in order to bring some money into the community, but also for the preservation of community history.

Family Life chair Wilda Stemple reported on the development of new treatments for Alzheimer's disease. The new CEOS signs have been placed on the billboards at either end of Aurora. Relay for Life is now scheduled for June 15 and 16 in Kingwood at the Preston High track. If any CEOS member is interested in purchasing a T-shirt ($15) or a tote bag ($9), she may contact Ressie Conrad or Opal Myers. Mrs. Conrad also has literature available pertaining to the literacy program in Preston County, and persons may also contact her about obtaining this. The club voted to send $25 to the Preston County 4-H Foundation. On June 6, members will serve the Mountain Lions Club dinner.

As the special feature, Ressie Conrad showed a sepia picture of her mother, enlarged for her by her children, and the only photo she has of her mother. The meeting concluded with a "Happy Birthday to Us" party for which Mary Redford provided materials such as plates, ribbons, poster paper to make hats, then cupcakes to provide the celebratory refreshments, along with the singing of "Happy Birthday." Photos of the ladies in their completed bonnets are on display at the Aurora Post Office this month.

Fund Drive Set For Rick Hipp

A fund-raiser will be held at G&T Sporting Goods for Howard "Rick" Hipp Jr. on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday (May 16-18). Twenty percent of all sales, excluding license, will be donated to Hipp's medical care. He is the brother-in-law of owner Tammy Hipp. G&T Sporting Goods is located along Kuhn Mine Road in Mt. Storm. Cash donations are also being accepted at the store through May 18.

In April, Rick had severe back pain, which was diagnosed as a severe case of pneumonia, and he underwent surgery to drain the infection from his lung. He had another operation to remove an abscess and excess infection from his lung, and is now at home recovering.

However, unable to return to work for six weeks, and having no heahh insurance or disability insurance, he is financially burdened, said a family member.

Rick is a 1972 graduate of Union High School, and lived in the Mt. Storm area until moving to Charlestown to work.

Donations may be sent until May 16 to Emoryville Methodist Church, Rt. 1 Box 201A, Elk Garden, WV 26717, or to G&T Sporting Goods, HC 76 Box 122, Mt. Storm, WV 26739. Checks may be made payable to one of the above with a memo or note stating the donation is for Rick Hipp. For more information, persons may call 304-693-7854.

Rick is unaware of this fund drive and will be "surprisingly presented" with the funds at the completion of the drive, a family spokesperson said.

In Memory of Dave Turney

When tomorrow starts without me and I'm not there to see if the sun should rise and find your eyes all filled with tears for me, I wish so much you wouldn't cry the way you did today while thinking of the many things we didn't get to say. I know how much you love me, as much as I love you, and each time that you think of me I know you'll miss me too. But when tomorrow starts without me please try to understand that an angel came andcalled my name and took me by the hand. They said my place was ready in heaven far above and that I'd have to leave behind all those I dearly love, but as I turned to walk away a tear fell from my eye, for all my life I'd always thought I didn't want to die. I had so much to live for, so much left yet to do; it seemed almost impossible that I was leaving you. I thought of all the yesterdays, the good ones and the bad. I thought of all the love we shared and all the fun we had. If I could relive yesterday, just even for a while, I'd say good-bye and kiss you and maybe see you smile, but then I fully realize that this could never be, for emptiness and memories would take the place of me, and when I thought of worldly things I might miss come tomorrow, I thought of you and when I did my heart was filled with sorrow. When I walked through heaven's gates I felt so much at home when God looked down and smiled at me from his great and golden throne. He said, "This is eternity and all I've promised you. Today your life on earth is past, but here life starts anew. I promise no tomorrow, but today will always last, and since each day's the same way there's no longing for the past. You have been so faithful, so trusting and so true. Though there were times you did some things you knew you shouldn't do, you have been forgiven and now at last you're free. So won't you come and take my hand and share my life with me?" So when tomorrow starts without me, don't think we're far apart. For every time you think of me, I'm right there in your heart.

GCC's First Global Education Grads Ready To Take On World

by Joan Crawford

As Garrett Community College holds its last commencement under that name, the occasion will also mark a major "first" in the college's 30 year history. For the first time, international students in the Global Education program will be graduating, and four young women from Estonia will receive their degrees this Saturday, May 18.

Two of the new graduates will be returning to Estonia to continue their education while the other two intend to remain in the United States a while longer. As the young women packed their belongings and prepare to move on with their lives, they reflected on their experiences here and speak of their future plans.

Reeda Tuula from Viljandi had graduated from the University of Tartu before she came to GCC to get another degree in adventure sports. A champion cross-country skier in her native country, she quickly became an avid snow boarder here in Garrett County.

Tuula now views her experience as an international student here as "very beneficial — both educationally and personally. I am just thankful and happy to have had this kind of experience and kindness. This was exactly what I needed to get me going again." She credits her instructors as being "really awesome, interesting and knowledgeable people to look up to and even consider as friends."

Tuula will now return to Estonia and probably enter a master's degree program at Tallinn Pedagogical University in the Faculty of Physical Education specializing in recreation, but she is not ruling out the possibility of returning to Garrett at some future date to refresh her skills and knowledge in certain fields.

Haiku Sikka from Harjumaa also looks on her expertence here in a positive light. "Garrett County became a home for all of us for several years and we will take many wonderful memories with us," she says. "It was hard at first to leave my friends, family and way of life as I knew it, but we made many new friends here and even found new families we became part of. I have absolutely no regrets, and would do it all over again."

Like her classmate, Sikka gives credit to her instructors. "I received so much support and encouragement from my teachers here at GCC that I excelled in subjects I had always disliked. Coming to GCC and meeting Steve Herman has definitely enriched my life and been one of the best experiences I have ever had."

Sikka has received a Presidential Scholarship to the University of Maryland Baltimore campus, where she will transfer in the fall to major in international politics with an emphasis on defense. Before coming to GCC she had studied at the Institute of Economic Law and Politics in Estonia.

Another student who hopes to stay in the United States after she graduates is Terje Kaur from Valgamaa, who had earned a bachelor's degree from Estonia Agricultural University before coming to GCC. She is now waiting for permission from the Immigration and Naturalization Service to enter the optional practical training program, where she will get experienee in the greenhouse business. During her years at GCC she has taken several horticulture eonrses, where she learned about hydroponic gardening of vegetables and herbs.

Kaur said her experience here has been "great," and explained that she "enjoyed studying here because of the friendly people. You can always ask for adviee. There are much more formal relationships in Estonia between instructors and students." About the personal benefits she experienced from her education as an international student, she answered, "Improving my English, learning about a new culture, and living with my host family. I would do it again." Kaur has been living with the George Bishoff family on their farm since she came to GCC.

Ava Kikas of Otepaa had attended the Estonian Agriculture University and the University of Tartu before she came to Garrett Community College. She liked the size of GCC and the personal touch she found there. "The instructors here are more like friends and guides than like detached professors," she said. "I appreciated the friendliness of the faculty and students and the variety of classes I had here. I would definitely do it again."

Kikas credited Darlene Preston, coordinator of Global Education, for doing a good job of finding opportunities for international students to go to events and to meet with other international students. "We got to visit embassies, sample international foods and meet students from other countries, and we even had an all-American hoagie sale," she said. "The Global Education office was very helpful in letting us experience life in the States." She also noted that GCC students do not take advantage of the many aetivities offered them, and perhaps more off-eampus events should be planned.

Following her graduation from GCC, Kikas plans to return to Estonia to obtain a bachelor's degree in agricultural accounting and finance, and hopes eventually to work in business management or marketing.

As these four women now graduate and go their separate ways, they take with them the realization that their lives have been enriched by their experiences as international shortcuts at GCC and that the campus they are leaving has been enriched by their presence.

Any Garrett County resident interested in hosting an Estonian student, and providing transportation to and from the college, may contaet Preston at GCC at 301-387-3010.

"LOOK OUT WORLD, here we come!" — These young Estonian women will be among the first graduates of the Global Education program at Garrett Community College on hand for the upcoming GCC commencement. Pictured from the left are Terja Kaur, Haiku Sikka, and Reeda Tuula (fellow graduate Ava Kikas was not available for the photo), each of whom credits the Garrett program with preparing them for the rich variety of experiences they hope to have in the future. The GCC graduation exercise is set to get under way at 10:30 a.m. this Saturday, May 18, on the McHenry campus.

The 10th annual March for Jesus in Meyersdale, Pa., is set for Saturday, May 18. Participants will leave the Meyersdale Grace Brethren Church parking lot at 10:30 a.m. They will move south on Salisbury Street and follow the parade route through town, returning to the parking lot for a prayer rally. A free-will offering will be collected and will be used to help Christians in countries where they are persecuted.

The Meyersdale event coineides with the international 2002 March for Jesus, which is scheduled each year on Pentecost weekend and involves thousands of Christians worldwide. Balloons and banners will be included, as well as broadcast music, as believers from diverse denominations and heritages take part in the march of peace and joy, a spokesperson said. The words of one of the traditional mareh songs are: "Peace be to these streets in the name of Jesus," the spokesperson noted.

"The March for Jesus is not a protest or political statement; it is simply taking the praise of the church beyond its four walls into the streets," the spokesperson said. "No political causes may be represented on banners used in the March."

A hay wagon will be available in Meyersdale for those participants unable to walk. March booklets, which include the music and prayer scripts, will be available at no cost. The march will be held rain or shine, the spokesperson said.

Oakland Resident Gives Chase To Literary Pursuit With Scholarship

Oakland's Roger Skipper, who in mid-career gave up an executive position with a nearby West Virginia building supply company to attend college and pursue a writing career, is one of the first recipients of a Jack Kent Cooke Foundation Graduate Scholar Award. Believed to be the most generous scholarship program in the country, the JKCF awards were bestowed to 50 winners selected from a pool of 675 applicants from across Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

ROGER SKIPPER

"The only thing I've ever won before in my life was the [military] draft lottery," the 50-year-old Skipper joked recently in an article that appeared in The Washington Post announcing the JKCF awards. The scholarship will fully fund the aspiring novelist's pursuit of a master of fine arts degree through the prestigious creative writing program of Vermont College, located in Montpelier.

The scholarships are funded through a $500 million foundation representing the bulk of Cooke's estate, and were created by his will after his death five years ago. A media and real estate mogul best remembered as the owner of the NBA's Los Angeles Lakers and later the NFL's Washington Redskins, Cooke was a self-made multimillionaire who left school during the Depression to feed himself by selling encyclopedias.

The foundation, which seeks to "identify extraordinary individuals and help them pursue the kind of formal education Cooke himself never had," is considered by many to be a legacy of the self-made man's regret at never having returned to school to finish his formal education.

Skipper, who did a stint in the U.S. Navy as a young man, has worked as a luthier making acoustic musical instruments, a woodworker, and a building contractor. He also began working in the Beachy Lumber Company yard at the age of 16, and later returned to the company to work his way up to the post of chairman of the board of directors of Beachy Lumber Company of West Virginia, in Canaan Valley.

After his children graduated from college, Skipper took it upon himself to fulfill his own dream of a writing career, and left Beachy's to enter Garrett Community College in 1997. He graduated at the top of his GCC class, and next week Frostburg State University will award him a bachelor's degree — summa cum laude — in English with a focus in creative writing.

After putting down a woodworker's chisel and executive's briefcase, Skipper has taken up his pen in hopes of crafting his creativity and earning a living with his hands — one keyboard strike at a time. His new pursuit draws heavily on childhood roots. "My dad read widely, deeply, and constantly," recalled the son of Sibre and Geraldine Skipper, who still reside in the Oakland area. Among the younger Skipper's earliest memories are treasured trips to the Ruth Enlow Library with his father, where the pair devoured book after book. "My dad is one of the best-read people I know, although a college education remained out of his reach." Sibre Skipper left school in the seventh grade to begin work, and was a carpenter and home builder before he became a manager at Beachy's."

Sibre Skipper's lack of formal education did not prevent him from becoming the best teacher his son could have had, however. The father's insatiable curiosity "empowered me to learn without shame," Roger Skipper recalled. "The balanced, positive, common sense attitude toward life in our home helped me succeed without a college education of my own."

Skipper's daily 1,000 word writing regimen of recent years, halved when attending college classes, has led to his publication of a number of feature and nonfiction articles and poems, and he has completed Some Other Tuesdays, a 269-page novel that portrays Appalachian life from a middle-age man's wry perspective. "The book is set in an area similar to this one, and folks who read it will recognize aspects of Garrett County in it."

SILVER MEDALS were awarded to two Southern High School sophomores at the University of Baltimore after they won second place in the Senior Group Documentaries division of the Maryland State History Day competition, held April 27. Michael Nelson, left, and Adam Sincell were honored for a video they produced, titled "Gothic Cathedrals: A Revolution in Architecture," and for which they won first place in the regional competition held earlier at Frostburg State University. Their documentary evaluated the social, economic, political, and religious factors that led to the flurry of cathedral building in Europe in the 12th and 13th centuries, as well as the long-term consequences of this movement. Three other SHS students also competed in the state contest, including Ben Peracchio in the individual performance category, as he portrayed a coal miner during the Matewan incident in southern West Virginia; and Holly Sauder and Natalie Domenick, who entered into the group exhibit division their display board on the revolutionary effects of the Magna Carta. Nelson and Sincell will now participate in the National History Day competition, which will be hosted by the University of Maryland in June. Some 11,000 middle and high school students in the state participated in the regional contests, with over 300 moving on to the state contest. The theme of the state competition was "Revolution, Recreation, Reform in History." It is sponsored by the Maryland Humanities Council, with financial support provided by Columbia Gas of Maryland. The cooperating teacher for Southern High School's students was Dave Bender.

Skipper has been running that writer's common rite of passage — a gauntlet of form letter replies that begin, "Thank you for your submission, but . . . ."

"I don't even bother to keep count of my rejection slips any more," he observes, tongue firmly in cheek. "Now I just toss them on the scale and weigh them." Things are looking up, however, as a Washington, D.C.,-based literary agent has taken up Skipper's cause, and the publishing professional is "very enthusiastic" about the prospects for Some Other Tuesdays.

While waiting for that book to gain traction, Skipper is hard at work on his second novel, Under the Blood, an "Appalachian farce" revolving around the comic foibles of an evangelist who "gets religion."

Skipper and his wife Connie, a Department of Natural Resources naturalist stationed at Herrington Manor/Swallow Falls state parks, have two grown sons, Jason and Dan. For the past 12 years the family has been contributing its time to a volunteer project in Sucre, Bolivia. The Skippers have helped build a classroom and dormitory building, a children's home, facilities for an accredited college, and a drug and rehabilitation center.

The rich and varied lives of Skipper and his family, past, present, and perhaps future, could provide a wellspring of material for coming novels. "I love books: old books, new books, thick or thin," the wordsmith said. "But I especially cherish the books that flow from the unique experiences of the author. I reverence books that demonstrate the craftsmanship of a writer well-schooled in his trade. I am resolved to write books that do both."

As Skipper quipped at the announcement ceremony for the JKCF scholarship, speaking of the roundabout path that has led to the award and his budding literary career — "I want to write about the strange and wonderful things that have happened to me — like this."

ONE STEP FORWARD...

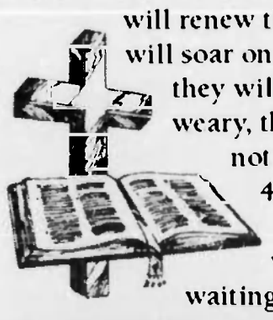
"One step forward... then another and another... each step more confident than the last... that's right... hold your head up; step firmly and proudly without faltering... you're almost there, on the stage...."

That's the way it starts... one step forward. "Nothing can stop me now." As time goes on, you continue to step ahead. Yet, one day you take a step or two back. "Wait, this isn't supposed to happen. Nobody warned me! What's wrong here!"

Nothing is wrong. It is called "life". You learn from every success, and more from every failure when you let it guide you, not discourage you.

Most importantly, have a strong relationship with your Heavenly Father, for life takes you to unfamiliar places. "Even youths grow tired and weary, and young men stumble and fall; but those who hope in the Lord will renew their strength, they will soar on wings like eagles; they will run and not be weary, they will walk and not be faint." (Isaiah 40:30-31)



Worship this week. God is waiting to guide you.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

TIME FOR A COURSE CORRECTION

May 19, 2002

Background Scripture:
Galatians 5:1-15.
Devotional Reading:
I John 2:7-17.

At first glance, it would appear to us that Paul's struggle with certain Christians over adherence to the Jewish law is, at best, interesting but not relevant to us today.

Apparently, when Paul established the churches of Galatia, he preached a gospel of salvation by grace through faith. In his absence, however, it seems that some people, either locals or outsiders, were able to convince them they must also live under the Jewish law, including circumcision. Today, neither circumcision nor the Jewish law are issues among Christians. So Paul has nothing to say on this to us, does he?

Yes, he does, for, although most of us confess salvation by grace through faith, many of us live as though we are actually saved by works. For many, God, is a celestial scorekeeper keeping a debit and credit running account on each of us that will ultimately decide our residence for eternity. It is hard to give up the mentality of salvation by the plusses that outweigh the minuses. Our plusses will never add up to a saving score.

Ouo Add-on's

Paul spells it out simply: "Now I, Paul, say to you that if you receive circumcision, Christ will be of no advantage to you" (5:2). This is possibly in response to some who have asked why they can't add being circumcised to their qualifications as Christians. No, Paul, it's just a little something to add on. That's our problem, too: we're always 'adding something on' to our discipleship—a ritual, a creed, a set of standards. There is nothing wrong per se with these add-on's, so long as they do not become legalistic means to winning God's favor.

The novelist Somerset Maughm recognized this same tendency in the discipline of creative writing: "It is the mark of an inexpert novelist to pose a powerful situation at the beginning of his story, and then to fail to realize, or at least examine, the inevitable implication." We begin our Christian lives well enough, but along the way we drift into something else and nothing is worse than thinking that what we have drifted into is where Christ leads us. Paul asks: "You were running well; who hindered you from obeying the truth?" (5:7). J.B. Phillips renders this as: "Who put you off course?" and Halford Luccock asks: "Why do we swerve from a brave beginning and go downhill?"

Those are questions which each of us must ask ourselves. Have I stayed on course? Has my discipleship begun to slide downhill?

Free To Serve

Paul gives us a guideline in making our self-assessments. "For you were called to freedom, brethren; only do not use your freedom as an opportunity for the flesh, but through love be servants of one another" (5:13). In freeing us from the law, Jesus did not free us so we could be irresponsible and indifferent. Free of the crushing weight of a salvation we cannot earn or deserve, we are free to love our neighbors as ourselves—and not out of compulsion, but of eternal gratitude for God's grace. Salvation by works was an imposition laid upon us; salvation by grace makes good works a thankful privilege.

Paul warns us that "For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision nor uncircumcision is of any avail..." Just as circumcision does not help to save us, neither does the lack of it. It does not count either way. Neither does anything else that we do count toward giving us more salvation debits than credits. I once knew a man who bitterly condemned Roman Catholic ritual, affirming that it could not save them. But, it seemed to me, he assumed that by not having ritual in his worship, he was earning spiritual Brownie-points.

Actually, this is not a difficult concept. Paul puts it in the plainest language: "For the whole law is fulfilled in one word, 'You shall love your neighbor as yourself.'" That's the direction in which you should be headed

Senior Housing Seminar Scheduled

Community Action Committee's Area Agency on Aging (AAA) is sponsoring a seminar, "Piecing the Puzzle Together: Senior Housing Options," on Friday, June 21, at the Grantsville Senior Center. The seminar is scheduled from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. The registration fee includes a continental breakfast, breaks, lunch, and all materials. Scholarships are available for individuals 60 and older if needed. Social work and nursing continuing education hours are available. An additional $5 will be charged for nursing CEUs.

The seminar is a collaborative effort of AAA, UMB Geriatrics and Gerontology Education and Research Program, Western Maryland Area Health Education Center, Garrett County Health Department, Garrett County Department of Social Services, and Garrett Community College.

Presenters will provide an in-depth look at the various housing options available to seniors today, including continuing care retirement communities, assisted living, congregate housing and services, ECHO housing, and more. In addition to presentations on retirement communities and assisted living, one session will be dedicated to identifying existing housing options in Garrett County and how they are accessed. Attenders will also receive information about housing options available in surrounding counties and other areas, a spokesperson said.

"Professionals and paraprofessionals working with the senior population, as well as older individuals themselves, are often stymied when trying to locate appropriate housing. We hope this seminar will help shed some light on the issue," said Adina Brode, AAA director. "Furthermore, we want to give the county's older adult population an opportunity not only to learn about today's housing market for older Americans, but also a voice in the direction that future housing development should take. Therefore, a forum is included in the afternoon.

"The audience will have an opportunity to address questions to panelists and to express their opinions about the housing needs of an ever-increasing older population. Comments from the forum will be compiled and forwarded to local government, senior housing developers and advocates," she said.

Persons interested in obtaining a brochure and or registering for the seminar may contact the AAA at 301-334-9431 or 1-888-877-8403, ext. 140. Registration may be made by phone. The deadline for registration is June 12.

Although the over 60 population is encouraged to attend the entire seminar, the agency will permit seniors to attend the afternoon session only at no cost. However, reservations are required in order to assure adequate seating. Reservations for the afternoon forum may be made by calling the agency at the above number.

'Parenthood': Fact or fiction for Steve Martin?

By Taylor Michaels
©Tribune Media Services

Q: Seeing Steve Martin on TV in the movie "Parenthood" prompts me to ask: Has he ever been married? Any children? –Edward J. Stanley III, Columbus, Ohio.

A: At 56, Martin has been romantically linked with a number of actresses, including Bernardette Peters, Anne Heche and Helena Bonham Carter, but has married only once: to British actress Victoria Tennant, from 1986-94. He has no children.

Q: I am a fan of "McMillan and Wife" but recently saw "McMillan" with Rock Hudson living by himself in a different house. What happened to his wife on the show, and what is she doing now? –Linda Maxwell-Smith, Mount Washington, Calif.

A: At the end of the 1975-76 season, Susan Saint James, who played Sally McMillan, left the show in a contract dispute, so the writers killed off her character in a plane crash. Saint James found renewed fame with Jane Curtin on "Kate & Allie," but today, at 55, she is married to former "Saturday Night Live" producer Dick Ebersol and acts only when she chooses – such as guest starring on "The Drew Carey Show" as the mother of Kate (Christa Miller, Saint James' real-life niece).

Off-camera, she is a certified master gardener, serves on the board of the Special Olympics and runs Seedling & Pip, her company that sells gift baskets for newborns. Did we mention she also has five kids?

Q: Please help me remember the title of a wonderful old movie starring Robert Ryan and Shirley Booth. I think it was a woman's name ("Mrs." something). –Joan Temple, Wyandotte, Mich.

Steve Martin

A: That was "About Mrs. Leslie," a 1954 drama in which Booth played a landlady looking back on her life.

Q: Please tell me in what year "The Winds of War" was first aired on TV. Also, did a sequel called "War and Remembrance" ever air? –Ms. Josephine Gombar, Philadelphia.

A: Based on Herman Wouk's best-selling 1971 epic novel, "The Winds of War" premiered in 1983 on ABC. "War and Remembrance" didn't make it to the air until 1989.

Q: Has Jean Stapleton died? I haven't seen anything about her recently, and I recall there was no mention of her at the funeral of Carroll O'Connor. –Dorothy D., East Palestine, Ohio.

A: Stapleton sent her apologies but could not attend O'Connor's June 2001 funeral due to a professional commitment: she was starring in a play in Houston.

In Focus

Arthur (Jerry Stiller) winds up at the psychiatrist on the 100th episode and season finale of "The King of Queens," airing Monday, May 20, on CBS.

Constant arguments with dad drive daughter Carrie and Doug (Leah Remini, Kevin James) to consult a psychologist (played by guest star William Hurt). A heavily medicated Arthur has flashbacks to his childhood, making him realize his problems stem from his relationship with his own father. Stiller's real-life son, Ben, plays Neal Vadnais.

Trivia

Calista Flockhart ("Ally McBeal") is named after her great-grandmother. Calista means "most beautiful" in Greek.

David Duchovny ("The X-Files") received degrees from both Princeton and Yale and commuted from Yale to New York to study acting.

Willie Nelson ("The 37th Annual Academy of Country Music Awards") was inducted into the Country Music Hall of Fame in 1993.

So. Garrett GOP Women Attend Middletown Event

Several members of the Southern Garrett County Republican Women's Club recently attended the annual "Mad Hatters" luncheon of the western region of the Maryland Federation of Republican Women (MFRW). The event was sponsored by the Middletown Valley club.

The featured guest speaker was Betty Carroll, MFRW first vice president, who reviewed the population figures for the four western Maryland counties of Garrett, Allegany, Washington, and Frederick, breaking the statistics down into numbers of registered voters of the Republican and Democratic parties. She challenged each club to develop efforts to increase voter turnout, and expressed her desire in visiting each of the 42 Republican women's clubs located in the state.

Participants designed and decorated their own "mad" hats in patriotic and Republican themes, and held a "parade of hats." Garrett County resident and SGCRWC member Leona Beckman won first prize for prettiest hat, and was awarded a Double Bar pin proclaiming her as the "World's Greatest Republican."

GOP WOMEN GET LAST WORD WITH "MR. PRESIDENT" — Although surrounded by enthusiastic supporters, "President George W. ## Springs Society Slates Civil War Presentation

Dr. Paul Newman, commonwealth speaker for the Pennsylvania Humanities Council, will present "Faces of the Civil War, Realities of Modern Armed Conflict" on Monday, May 20, at 7:30 p.m. at the Folk Meeting House in Springs, Pa.

"The American Civil War is popularly remembered as a gallant and courageous conflict, in which the national family simply split between Yankee and Rebel brothers," said Harriet Berg, spokesperson for the Springs Historical Society. "Yet for many Americans, the war and its consequences were not so noble or so neat."

Newman's slide presentation, using well-known and obscure Civil War photography, will explore the real human consequences of America's first modern armed conflict, said Berg.

Newman is assistant professor of early American history at the University of Pittsburgh, Johnstown, Pa. He is also a military history consultant for Fort Necessity National Battlefield and Fort Ligonier.

Newman's program is sponsored by the Springs Historical Society and is free of charge and open to the public. The presentation is a program of the Pa. Humanities Council and supported in part by a grant from the Pa. Historical and Museum Commission. For more information, persons may call 814-445-6945 or 814-662-4366.

NORTHERN LIGHTS SHINE AT ROCKY GAP

The Northern High School Envirothon team, the Northern Lights, placed second and fifth at the Allegany Envirothon competition held May 9 at Rocky Gap State Park. A total of 20 teams from five Allegany County schools competed for the right to represent their county at the state championships. NHS was invited to compete at the event, since there was no opportunity to compete at the county level. Northern's eight-person team was divided in order to create two equally balanced teams. The purpose was to maximize the competitive experience for team members. The Northern Lights "R" team finished second with 374 points, just two points off the first place finish by the Allegany team. This was significant since the first team was composed of five seniors, whereas Northern's team had just four players (3 juniors and a sophomore). The "R" team also had the top finish in the aquatics category with a score of 88 points. The Northern Lights "L" team finished fifth in the competition with a score of 353. The "L" team also played one person short of the allowed five-person maximum. Though the Northern Light's finish at the Allegany contest is unofficial, it provides a good indicator of its readiness to compete at the state championships in Harford County in June.

REGIONAL TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Heather Lander, Ashley Robinson, Nicole Sisler, and Andrea Green are participating in the Regional Tennis Tournament in Hagerstown on Friday, May 17.

PARTICIPATE IN MODEL UN - Twenty-six students from Southern and Northern high schools recently participated in the Frostburg State University Model United Nations Security Council, administered by FSU political science students. Students were divided into teams of two delegates and assigned nations they would represent on the council. They researched their nations' geo-political, social, historical, oconomic, and physical characteristics in order to accurately represent those nations in the discussions. Students were then presented with a scenario of Iraq's development of weapons of mass destruction, and were to try to resolve the threat in a peaceful and cooperative way. In the process they learned the intricacies and frailties of international coalitions when trying to resolve such a situation. Five area high schools were represented. Garrett County students were, pictured above, front row, from left: Vanessa Logan, Brian Crabtree, Erin Oxford, Shalna Custer, Matthew Cline, Scott Pusateri, Margaret Mastej, Jacki Brenneman, Barbara Hall, and Robbie Glotfelty. In the second row are: Jason Fike, Ann Johnson, Dan Cathell, Kasey Bell, Yesha Patel, Karla Buckel, Amy Umbel, and Brandi Broadwater. In the back row are: Michael Nelson, Arden Paugh, Kelly Wade, Jessica Sharon, Brittany Naylor, Alasha Rush, Valerie Mastej, Emily Nixon, and Amy Bonitz. Discussion the issues in the photo below are, from left, Jason Fike, Erin Oxford, Kelly Wade, and Emily Nixon.

Registration For School Year Near Completion

The Garrett County Board of Education has announced that parents who have not registered their children for entering school for the first time this fall should register as soon as possible.

Parents of students entering kindergarten or new first grade students who did not register during the pre-registration program may contact the principal of the school to arrange an appointment.

Parents must take the child's birth certificate, immunization records, and proof of residency with them at the time of registration. The school also requests the child's social security number for record identification.

Any child who will be 5 years old on or before Dec. 31, 2002, must be enrolled in kindergarten or apply for a one-year maturity waiver. Any family who is planning to use home instruction (home schooling) instead of enrolling the student in school must submit forms at least 15 days in advance of that start of school.

Information may be obtained through the Pupil Services Office at the Board of Education building or by calling 301-334-8939 or 301-359-9209.

Families who are planning to move during the summer should check with their local school or Pupil Services Office to see whether or not the children will be attending the same school this fall. If the new residence places the student in a new school district, it would be better to make the transfer during the summer rather than after the new school year begins. Any time a child moves to a new school, the child must be enrolled in that school and the school must be provided with a new documentation of residency.

Collecting
by Larry Cox

Fostoria glass continues to be an extremely popular collectible. The company began in 1887 in a small studio in Ohio but relocated to West Virginia four years later. The Fostoria Glass Company produced pressed pattern tableware and lamps. Their most famous pattern of pressed glass was America, introduced in 1915 and still cherished by collectors throughout the world, according to Schroeder's Antiques Price Guide. The company ceased production in 1986.

Feral Cats, Revisited

Q. I am responding to your recent column titled "Taking the Country Out of the Cat." I have always loved cats, and all of the ones I have now have come in from the woods. Some come into the house, and some stay outdoors. Some of these cats don't like men, some don't like women and almost all don't like children — abuse is what it is. Any animal knows if you love it, and care about it.

Where do all the thousands of cats come from at the Humane Society? They will tell you most are strays. Why are they put up for adoption? My husband and I have been feeding up to 20 of these "rescued" cats at one time or another ... and no, we are not willing to give up one member of our rural family due to your idle rambling. No thank you, sir. — Karen M., Huntsville, Ala.

A. Karen, thank you for writing — I appreciate hearing a different view from my readers.

Your question, "Why are they (strays) put up for adoption?" is a valid one. Many abandoned or lost housecats are picked up by or left at animal shelters, and some pet owners, like yourself, are able to adopt strays.

So, let me clarify the difference between strays — abandoned or lost cats that once had homes — and feral cats, which have never known a human home. Strays can often be reintegrated into home life, whether they come inside or stay outside; but feral cats, never having known a domestic life or a human's touch, just do not adapt. They remain territorial, venture inside a yard only for food, typically fight with domesticated cats and will bite and scratch humans.

Perhaps the problem is bigger here in Florida, where colonies of feral cats hide in the mangroves and are hard to reach by rescue organizations. But in any part of the country, feral cats create a problem for both housecats and their owners in terms of disease and injury.

I applaud you and your husband for rescuing so many cats. Many pet owners are unable to do so because of space limits or feeding and medical costs. Please continue your work to care for abandoned pets.

What changes with electric choice and what doesn't?
A. You'll get to choose your electricity supplier, while delivery over poles and wires remains the same.
In the past, your entire electric service was provided by your local electric utility. With electric competition, the three main parts of electric service — generation, transmission and distribution — are separated. As the market develops, you will be able to choose the company that provides the generation of your electricity. This company is called an electricity supplier. Transmission and distribution services include the actual delivery of electricity over poles and wires and will continue to be provided by your local utility. Your utility is now called your electric company. They are the ones to call if the power goes out, just as you always have. Got questions about electric competition? ## Annual United Way Drive Nets $800,000-Plus

People in surrounding communities contributed $819,702 to lund programs of agencies affiliated with their local United Way during the recently completed 2001-2002 annual appeal. This is the second consecutive year that donations exceeded $800,000 to support local human services.

"We are fortunate to live in a community where people not only care about tragedies that occur in our country, but they also remember the needs of our neighbors," noted Harry King, County United Way executive director.

"We are grateful to the many volunteers in Allegany and Garrett counties in Maryland, as well as Grant, Hampshire, Hardy, Mineral, and Pendleton counties in West Virginia, who gave many hours of their time to raise this financial support," King added.

The agencies whose programs will receive assistance from their local United Way effort include Allegany County Human Resources Development Commission, Allegany Health Right, American Red Cross, Associated Charities, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Potomac Council Boy Scouts of America, Burlington United Methodist Family Services, Carver Community Center, Catholic Community Services, Developmental Center & Workshop, the Dove Center, and Family Crisis Center.

Additional agencies are Family Crisis Resource Center, Friends Aware, Frostburg Village Adult Day Services, Garrett Cooperative Ministry, Garrett County Community Action Committee, Garrett County Habitat for Humanity, Garrett County Lighthouse, Garrett County Literacy Council, Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, Girl Scouts of Shawnee Council, Grant County Family Issues Task Force, Habitat for Humanity of Hampshire County, and Hampshire County Special Services Center.

Hospice of the Panhandle, Maryland Salem Children's Trust, Mountain Glade Adult Day Services, Peidmont Library, Potomac Highlands Support Services, the Salvation Army, the Tri-Towns After-School Program, United Charities of Keyser, United Organizations of McCoole, Western Maryland Catholic Charities, Western Maryland Food Bank, Western Maryland Make-A-Wish Foundation, and the C. William Gilchrist Center of the YMCA are other agencies affiliated with the local United Ways who will receive funding.

"All the money raised in each of the neighboring counties will stay in those counties to support the programs of the agencies serving those counties. In this way, people living in the surrounding counties can support local programs that help people with needs in their home county. By making one donation to their local United Way, people can contribute to all the affiliated agencies serving their county," explained King.

Local volunteers have formed a United Way of Allegany County, a United Way of Garrett County, and a United Way of Grant, Hardy, and Pendleton counties. Also, there is a United Way of Hampshire County and a United Way of Mineral County.

"The 38 human services organizations, supported by contributions to these local United Ways, served 48,033 people in the region in 2001," concluded King.

Readers interested in more information about their local United Way may telephone 301-722-2700 or log on to www.cuw.org. Local readers may also write to the United Way, P.O. Box 394, Oakland, MD 21550.

GCCAC Honors Volunteers At Annual Banquet

The Garrett County Community Action Committee held its ninth annual volunteer banquet recently at the Pleasant Valley Community Center, with approximately 150 persons in attendance. Volunteers currently donate over 7,000 hours to Community Action, and, as Delegate George Edwards told the gathering "with the overall budgets becoming tighter, it takes the efforts of these volunteers to allow the quality of services to be offered within the agency."

Among the honors presented by agency president Duane Yoder was the 2002 GCCAC Volunteer of the Year award, which went to Cathy Higgs, who has donated numerous hours to the Community Action program over the past year. Higgs is a representative of the Overlooks Policy Council, and has maintained a perfect attendance record with that group. She also serves on the Health, Mental Health and Disabilities Advisory Committee and FIF book selection committee.

The Volunteer of the Year award is a tribute to Higgs's "thoughtfulness and endless acts of caring and giving," according to a Head Start spokesperson. Yoder presented Higgs with a flower arrangement donated by the Flower Basket.

COMMUNITY ACTION COMMITTEE HONORS VOLUNTEERS — These dedicated community servants were among those recognized at the ninth annual Garrett County Community Action Committee volunteer banquet recently. Last year, in part, the agency relied on over 7,000 volunteer hours that were donated to its many varied programs. Several volunteers recognized as Exceptional Volunteers shown above, from left, are Lisa Singell of Kids 'N' Corporated; Phil Gordon of the Loch Lynn After-School Program; Mabel Cassidy of the Area Agency on Aging; Kristy Meadows of Head Start; and Charles Tusing Jr. of Food Resources. Not pictured are fellow Exceptional Volunteer Craig Ingram of Housing Services and 2002 GCCAC Volunteer of the Year Cathy Higgs, who is a representative of the Overlooks Policy Committee, and a member of the Health, Mental Health, and Disabilities Advisory Committee and the FIF book selection committee.

Exceptional Volunteers recognized for their dedication to various GCCAC programs were Kristy Meadows of Head Start; Craig Ingram of Housing Services; Lisa Singell of Kids 'N' Corporated; Phil Gordon of the Loch Lynn After-School Program; Charles Tusing Jr. of Food Resources; and Mabel Cassidy of the Area Agency on Aging.

Certificates were given to the many volunteers that serve Community Action, including Lt. Randy Resh, commander of the McHenry barrack, and Garrett County Sheriff Richard Sanders for their continued support of the after-school programs. Both police agencies have assigned personnel to serve on the advisory boards and to be mentors to the students attending the programs.

The guest speaker for the event was Lori Senese, who coordinates the Service Learning program at Frostburg State University. She has over nine years of experience in developing and administering volunteer programs in Pennsylvania and Maryland, and next month she will become the director of the FSU Institute for Service Learning.

The awards banquet was dedicated to the memory of Dr. Alta Schrock and Lt. William Lucas for their efforts with Community Action programs. Schrock was one of the original founders of Community Action in 1966, and remained active in the agency until her death in November 2001.

While commander at the McHenry MSP barrack from January 1999 to March 2001, Lucas was actively involved in the Grantsville Kids 'N' Corporated After-School Program and the Loch Lynn After-School Program. He succumbed to cancer this past March.

Also on hand for the event were a number of special guests and dignitaries, including Del. Edwards, State Senator John Hafer, Lt. Resh and 1st Sgt. Scott Trice of the Maryland State Police, McHenry barrack, Garrett County commissioners Fred Holliday and Wendell Beitzel, and Sheriff Sanders and Captain Larry Gnegy. GCCAC vice president of administration Clay Garland delivered the invocation at the outset of the evening.

Hershman Gets FSU Scholarship

Ashley D. Hershman, Mtn. Lake Park, recently received a Karen and Joseph Wooddell Scholarship to attend Frostburg State University.

Now a senior at Southern High School, she plans to major in accounting. She is a Maryland Distinguished Scholar, a distinguished honor roll student, a member of the National Honor Society, and a recipient of a Minds in Motions award. Her volunteer activities include Relay For Life and Adopt-a-Highway.

She is the daughter of Glenn and Rebecca Brown.

The FSU scholarship program is administered by the FSU Financial Aid Office. Funding is provided through FSU Foundation Inc.

GCC Business & Tech. Club Visits Chicago

Members of the Garrett Community College Business and Technology Club are spending this week on a five-day trip to Chicago where they plan to experience some of the business environment and the cultural attractions of that city. The group's itinerary includes visits to the Federal Reserve, Mercantile Exchange, Sears Tower, several museums, Adler Planetarium, and Shedd Aquarium, the world's largest indoor aquarium.

The club was formed this year by business and economics assistant professor Stacy Miller and business professor Pramod Kapoor to help students who intend to pursue a career in business or information technology. The trip to Chicago was planned because of the business activities that can't be seen in other places and the rich cultural environment of the Midwestern city. Five GCC students are on the trip, accompanied by Miller, Carolyn Deniker, and Christa Knotts.

The Business and Technology Club plans to have other trips to major business cities in the future.

DNR Park Service Slates "BioBlitz", Cancels Yard Sale

The Maryland Forest and Park Service will hold a "BioBlitz" at New Germany State Park from 3 p.m. on Saturday, May 25, through 3 p.m. on Sunday, May 26. The event will celebrate biodiversity month with a 24-hour species search.

The public is invited to see how many species of mammals, birds, plants, fish, reptiles, amphibians, and insects are living in the 400-acre park. College professors, natural resource professionals, and naturalists will also participate in the 24-hour search. Anyone that has some expertise in a specialized field of natural science and who would like to be a team leader during the event may call the Maryland Department of Natural Resources at 301-895-5759 or 301-746-8359.

There is no charge to participate in the event. For further information, persons may contact Eric Savage at the numbers listed above or by e-mail at ericdsavage@yahoo.com.

Additionally, the New Germany State Park community yard sale that was scheduled for Saturday, May 18, has been canceled because of lack of interest, according to Savage.

For this is your Birthday
and we just want to say
We miss you and love you every single day.

You were so great and
so full of life,
And sometimes we feel it just wasn't right.

You guided us through life,
And little did we know
You would be gone, before too long.

We will never take for granted that things will always be here.
And what we have now,
we will treasure memories dear.

For this is your Birthday
And we just want to say
Thank you, Dad, and Happy Birthday

Products Designed for Aging Skin

Since the skin is the largest and most visible organ of the body, changes in the skin are one of the first visible signs of aging. The skin becomes dry and easily wrinkles. Age spots or growths may appear. Researchers indicate that smoking and hereditary factors can contribute to premature skin aging.

Wearing a quality sunscreen product when exposed to long periods in the sun — throughout life — is one of the best ways to prevent wrinkles. Tretinoin can be used to treat acne as well as reverse some aspects of sun damage by improving skin texture and reducing irregular pigmentation. Moisturizers are helpful for dry skin, especially if applied after bathing. Skin products containing alpha-hydroxy-acids (called AHAs), such as glycolic acid, may give skin a softer look and feel by encouraging surface cell pealing. Beta-hydroxy-acid (BHA) is similar and is preferred to open pores and clear pimples. Stronger AHAs are used by dermatologists for chemical peels, usually along with trichloroacetic acid. Antioxidants such as vitamins A, C, and E are being evaluated as ingredients in skin care products, but the most effective amount for topical use has yet to be determined.

GCC's Outgoing Student Officers Pass SGA Torch

As another academic year comes to a close and Garrett Community College prepares for its 30th Commencement on Saturday, May 18, the outgoing officers of the Student Government Association are preparing to graduate and transfer, as new officers assume leadership positions for next year.

President Lauren Stillwagon came to GCC from Cumberland because she liked the small college atmosphere and wanted to be away from home. She will transfer to University of Maryland, Baltimore Campus, to major in math with plans to become a biostatistician who collects and compiles data on the environment and endangered species.

Gregory Jean-Baptiste, from Norwalk, Conn., who has been vice president of the SGA this year, first found GCC on the Internet. He feels that GCC was the right place for him to start because the faculty and staff were very helpful. He will now transfer to the UM Baltimore campus to study computer information technology.

Bonnie Riley, a graduate of Southern High School, has served as treasurer of SGA this year. A secondary education major at GCC, she will now graduate and transfer to Frostburg State University to pursue her goal of becoming a teacher.

Vance Slagle, also a Garrett Countian, has served as SGA secretary this year. In addition to being a full-time student, he operates a small business and has just purchased a motel. After he graduates on Saturday he will transfer to FSU to continue his study of secondary education.

As these students renewed highlights of their last year at a recent SGA meeting, they counted a variety of service projects and social events. Beginning with New Student Orientation in September and a new student ID system, the SGA officers sponsored pumpkin carving, costume contests, and clothing donations for Goodwill, helped with Toys for Happiness campaign, volunteered for Special Olympics, served as guides for campus tours, and helped host the annual Spring Fling event.

New officers who will now assume their leadership positions are president Lacey Holtschneider, vice president Jessica DeWitt, treasurer Megan Lilley, and sophomore representatives Michael Saturday and Carrie Dolan. The GCC Student Government Association is advised by coordinator of Student Activities Tim Foster.

St. Paul Alumni Slate Reunion

Alumni of the St. Paul School, Pa., will hold a reunion Saturday, June 1, beginning at 10 a.m. in the Springs Mennonite Church basement. A carry-in lunch will be held at noon. Tableware and drinks will be provided.

Alumni are invited to share their memories of the old school, renew friendships, and sing the old tunes and harmonies, such as "The Papaya Tree." Music teacher Carrie Mosser Rodamer is scheduled to attend.

Weight Watchers Compete In GC Exercise Event

Weight Watcher members recently participated in an exercise competition that pitted members from the southern end of Garrett County against members from the northern end. The competition, involving 110 participants, was sponsored by the Garrett County Health Department Community Outreach division.

"The goal of this competition was to get people who are trying to lose weight to understand the importance of exercise and to realize that a healthy diet and exercise go hand in hand," said Amy R. Ritchie, registered dietitian at the Health Department. "The Weight Watchers program encourages its members to be physically active."

The competition took place from Jan. 21 until April 14. Prior to the completion, Weight Watcher members enrolled in the Health Department's exercise program — "Just Move It" — and had their blood pressures taken. Participants were then responsible for recording their physical activity in miles each week. As a team, miles were totaled every other week, and updates were given about which team was in the lead.

"Just Move It" sweatshirts were awarded to individual participants after they had exercised 100 miles. On the southern team, 16 members earned a sweatshirt, while 8 northern participates received sweatshirts. "Just Move It" water bottles were also awarded to four southern members for reaching the 250-mile marker. One southerner received a patch for exercising more than 500 miles.

The 12-week competition ended with the southern members defeating their opponents by 682 miles. Thirty-seven members had their blood pressure measuremants taken again by Community Health employees. Of those, 29 saw improvements in their readings.

Garrett County residents or those employed in the county are eligible to join the "Just Move It" program. For more information, persons may call the Health Department at 301-334-7730.

On The Mountaintop

County's Rainfall Stressing Small Grain Production

With scattered showers throughout last week and heavy thunderstorms on Sunday, Maryland farmers had an average of 4.9 days suitable for field work. The rain that fell last week and the previous week was needed to improve subsoil moisture, although 50 percent is still reported in short to very short supply.

Precipitation accumulations have been scattered for the month so far. The western part of the state has received above average amounts of rainfall for May, with Garrett County receiving 3.1 inches, 1.3 inches above normal. Small grains in this area are reported as showing stress due to standing water. Northern counties including Frederick, Carroll, Baltimore, and Harford counties are at normal amounts of precipitation for May. Areas to the south, however, are at below normal rainfall with St. Mary's County receiving 0.7 inches of rain, 1.0 inch below normal.

Small grains remain in mostly good to excellent condition with winter wheat rated 32 percent excellent, 43 percent good, 19 percent fair, and 6 percent poor. Barley is rated 33 percent in excellent condition, 47 percent good, 18 percent fair, and 2 percent poor.

Health Tips To Farmers Offered By Publication

Just because farmers don't endure a daily commute through smoggy cities or survive on fast food lunches doesn't mean they're off the hook when it comes to health. In fact, farmers are exposed daily to elements that most people won't face in a lifetime. The May/June issue of Progressive Farmer addresses their unique set of health concerns and the risks that can take a toll after years in the fields.

From dust and pesticides to the relentless sun, farmers today are working hard to uphold the highest safety standards to protect themselves. Respiratory illness is the biggest health problem on the farm, encountered by growers who work in pesticide-laden fields, as well as farmers who work with animals in confinement buildings contaminated with gases and bacteria. Reports indicate that 5 to 20 percent of agricultural workers will develop such airway problems as asthma and bronchitis. Dust may be to blame for the high incidence of pneumonia among farmers.

Arthritis, the nation's No. 1 disability, is another concern that affects farmers because of constant bending and climbing, and using vibrating equipment. A survey conducted at the University of Missouri indicates that two-thirds of farm respondents say arthritis inhibits their activities — some working shorter days and others unable to work at all.

Although farmers typically are considered healthier than the general U.S. population because they smoke less, eat healthier, and are more active, they are at greater risk of certain cancers and diseases. The medical community suspects that exposure to pesticides increases the risk of developing prostate cancer up to 50 percent. Farmers also have higher rates of leukemia, non-Hodgkin's lymphoma, and Parkinson's disease.

While researchers are looking for new ways to prevent health problems, the Marshfield Clinic in Wisconsin recommends farmers take these precautions:

- Wear ear protection and respiratory masks.
- Hire professionals to clean pits where gases are present.
- Install ventilation systems.
- Use proper lifting techniques and mechanical assistance.
- Keep chemical loading and washing pads more than 50 yards from the house.
- Change pesticide-contaminated clothing outside the house and do not wash with other laundry.
- Always wear hats, long sleeves, sunglasses, and sunscreen.

For more information, persons may contact Marshfield's National Farm Medicine Center at 1-800-662-6900.

Crop Acreage Report Deadlines Approaching

The Preston County Farm Service Agency reminds farmers that the deadlines for filing Crop Acreage Reports are approaching. Reports of crop acreage are required for selected Farm Service Agency programs, including Commodity Loans and Loan Deficiency Payments, Conservation Reserve Program, Farm Storage Facility Loan Program, and the Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program.

Acreage reporting dates for the 2002 crop year have been established and are as follows:

- Friday, May 31 — small grains, alfalfa, clover, grass, legumes, lespedeza, lettuce, mixed hay, peas, strawberries, timothy, and vetch.
- Monday, July 15 — corn and all other crops not specifically assigned another reporting date.
- Monday, Sept. 30 — ornamental nursery and aquaculture.

For further information on any of these USDA-FSA programs, persons may visit the Preston County Farm Service Agency office located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza, or call 304-329-1923.

Seed Corn Maggots

Beware of Seed Corn Maggots this planting season (if it ever stops raining). Growers need to assess fields before planting and if a high organic matter or no till condition will be planted into, a seed treatment containing permethrin, diazinon or lindane should accompany the seed to defray the effects of the maggots.

How Late is Too Late for Planting Corn?

Mark Lawson of Garst Seed has this to offer with regard to planting between raindrops. Concerned about planting delays? Don't panic — It's not late yet. You also have options: First corn has the ability to adjust Growing Degree Day requirements if planted late. Corn will drop approximately 5 GDD units required to reach black layer for each day after May 10 up to June 1. Switching to earlier hybrids too early can cost yield and gain very little in reduced moisture at harvest.

In order to get the crop in the ground in a more timely manner this year consider changing your plans for all or some of your acreage. Consider N fertilization at side-dress rather than pre-plant. P, K and early N needs may be met with starter fertilizer and/or 30 units of broadcast N. Reduced tillage or No-till can save passes over the field and days of time at planting. If we are planting in between wet periods, tillage for weed control may not be possible. Weed control may best be achieved with burn-down and/or post-applied herbicides.

Good Weather Conditions for Slugs

Slugs will probably continue to be a problem in corn this spring. Overwintering conditions were favorable and spring weather has been perfect for slug activity. Damage is especially bad when wet soil conditions during planting prevent the seed slot from closing completely. When this happens, slugs can feed on the seed and/or young seedling in the seed slot below ground level. Their feeding damages the growing tip and can kill young plants. If seed slots are closed tight, slugs only feed above ground after the seedling emerges, and plants usually outgrow the injury under normal growing conditions.

Wet, no-till fields with high amounts of residue are especially vulnerable and should be scouted for slugs. These small gray gastropods normally feed at night, hiding under clods and debris during the day; however, they are sometimes active on cool, cloudy days. They leave a slimy trail, silver colored when dry, wherever they go. Slugs usually feed on the lower part of the plant, eating partly or completely through the leaf, leaving ragged holes. They can actually cut off rolled leaves in the whorl of small plants. Their damage resembles the injury caused by young cutworms and flea beetles, but the presence of silver-colored trails should be the telltale.

There are few options for slug control after corn is planted. Deadline granular formulations containing metaldehyde are available but expensive. In heavily infested fields, rescue treatments of urea-based nitrogen can be applied at night as a direct contact irritant to slugs. The control efficacy of this approach can be erratic because of night-to-night fluctuations in slug activity, which are due primarily to windy conditions. However, broadcast treatments of 30% urea-based nitrogen, applied at night when slugs are actively feeding on plants, can cause significant slug mortality. This material should be applied at a 10-gallon-per-acre delivery rate mixed 1:1 with water and applied during a calm night when the slugs are active on the plants. Inconsistent control with nitrogen treatments has been attributed to severe infestations of slugs feeding below the ground surface or windy conditions. Keep in mind that 50% control may be the best one can achieve with this rescue treatment. You may think the cost of a nitrogen spray may be partly offset by the added fertility, but it is doubtful whether much of this nitrogen becomes available for plant growth.

The big news last week was the 64-35-majority vote on Wednesday by the Senate in favor of the Farm Bill. This essentially means that we have an enormous boost in crop and dairy subsidies by about 68 percent, despite fears that it will violate trade rules. Simply stated, this bill is farmer friendly, but it is in no way a market friendly move. The bill is a move backwards from free market reforms set up in 1996 and is expected to cost the taxpayers an estimated $51.7 billion over the current level of support.

Md. Water Assn. Honors Sanitary Dist. Employees

The annual conference of the Maryland Rural Water Association (MRWA) took place in Ocean City recently, where two 15-year employees of the Garrett County Sanitary District (GCSD), Mary DiSimone and Jim Baker, were recognized during an awards luncheon for outstanding service to the community.

DiSimone was selected Clerk of the Year by MRWA. "Mary does a wonderful job for us," said Sanitary District administrator Ron Petrella. "She is responsible for the quarterly billing for approximately 20 different water and wastewater systems throughout Garrett County, handles customer issues on a daily basis, resolves problems, and has an excellent working relationship with everyone at the District."

The association selected Jim Baker as its Operator of the Year. "Jim is considered one of the best operators in Maryland," Petrella stated. "He does an excellent job and we are lucky to have him working for us. He is genuinely concerned about customer service and is well respected by his peers."

Petrella also remarked that the GC Sanitary District was appreciative of the support and assistance the MRWA provides on a variety of issues.

Habitat Members Attend Regional Conference

Five members of Garrett County Habitat for Humanity recently attended the Central Atlantic Habitat for Humanity International Regional Conference — "Building in the Blue Ridge and Beyond." More than 700 people attended the Roanoke, Va, event.

"All of the attendees felt they brought back enthusiasm and increased support-ive encouragement for the partner families, as well as much information to share," said a spokesperson for Habitat.

The Garrett County group obtained their new knowledge and enthusiasm by talking to other regional Habitat staff members and volunteers, as well as other professionals in related fields, and by attending seminars. Two of the speakers were Millard and Linda Fuller, founders of Habitat for Humanity International, who spoke several times during the March weekend event.

Some members attended a daylong workshop on selecting partner families and providing ongoing support to the families. Kathy Reel, a Habitat homeowner and volunteer, also attended a facilitating networking meeting.

The members, all of whom are volunteers, also attended sessions related to their individual interests. For example, Bill Riley, chair of the Church Relations Committee for Habitat, attended seminars titled "Building on Faith," "Sticking Points," and "Inviting Your Community to Minister." The other Garrett County group members who attended the conference were Ida Maust, Ellen Fritz, and Shirley Brandes.

IN A NUTSHELL

Tent caterpillars and fall webworms are often confused with each other. What's the difference?

Although both are pests of many forest and ornamental trees and they build webs, the web of the fall webworm covers the leaves while the tent caterpillar web, built only in the spring, is at the fork of branches of fruit trees, mainly cherry and apple. The egg masses of tent caterpillars are found on the branches in the winter. The larvae of both will complete their life cycles as moths.

GCC Center Sets STOTT Course

The Continuing Education and Training Division of Garrett Community College is offering a beginner to intermediate-level STOTT Pilates mind-body conditioning course from May 30 until July 11. The six classes will be held on Thursday evenings from 7:30 until 8:30 p.m. in the upper level of the Grantsville Outreach Center.

This course is a continuation of the previously offered Pilates course. A perspective student should be familiar with Pilates or gain permission from the instructor, Jennifer Christophel, to attend the class.

The STOTT Pilates is a contemporary approach to the mind-body exercise developed in the 1920s by German athlete Joseph Pilates. The program puts an emphasis on movement quality, posture, and breathing, and is described as providing benefits of greater mind-body awareness, core stability, body balance, increased flexibility, agility and mobility, relief of pain and tension, flatter abdominals, better posture, and increased circulation.

For more information and to register, persons may call Terry Beachy, Grantsville Outreach Center, at 301-895-3368. Space is limited.

GARRETT COUNTY

GA1979G011/5 - Town of Grantsville, P.O. Box 29B, Grantsville, MD 21536, has applied to increase their existing water appropriation and use permit from an annual average of 70,000 gallons of water per day (gpd) and an average of 90,000 gpd during the month of highest use to an annual average of 111,000 gpd and 186,000 gpd during the month of highest use respectively. The water will be withdrawn from 4 existing wells and 4 springs in the Pottsville/Allegany Formation. The wells and springs are located on the north side of Alternate Route 40, 0.5 to 2.5 miles west of Grantsville, Garrett County, Maryland.

Projections of impacts to the resource and to neighboring water users were made using data from an on-site aquifer test. Since three of the wells and all of the springs are being used to their maximum extent, the increase in appropriation will come from well #5. Calculations of impacts by the addditional withdrawal were based on increasing the pumping of well #5 by 96,000 gpd. The results indicate that under these conditions, during maximum pumping conditions, a drawdown of less than 3 feet could occur at the nearest domestic well.

GA2000G002/1 - Town of Grantsville, P.O. Box 296, Grantsville, MD 21536, has applied to appropriate and use an annual average of 112,000 gpd and 186,000 gpd during the month of highest use from one new well in the Purslane Formation. The water will be used to supplement their existing water supply and to provide public water supply to the Keysers Ridge area. The well is located 0.2 mile south of Alternate Route 40, 3.5 miles west of Grantsville, Garrett County, Maryland. Projections of impacts to the resource and to neighboring water users were made using data from an on-site aquifer test. The results indicate that during periods of maximum use, a drawdown of three feet or less may occur at the nearest known neighboring well.

GARRETT COUNTY

GA1979G011/5 - Town of Grantsville, P.O. Box 29B, Grantsville, MD 21536, has applied to increase their existing water appropriation and use permit from an annual average of 70,000 gallons of water per day (gpd) and an average of 90,000 gpd during the month of highest use to an annual average of 111,000 gpd and 186,000 gpd during the month of highest use respectively. The water will be withdrawn from 4 existing wells and 4 springs in the Pottsville/Allegany Formation. The wells and springs are located on the north side of Alternate Route 40, 0.5 to 2.5 miles west of Grantsville, Garrett County, Maryland.

Projections of Impacts to the resource and to neighboring water users were made using data from an on-site aquifer test. Since three of the wells and all of the springs are being used to their maximum extent, the increase in appropriation will come from well #5. Calculations of impacts by the addditional withdrawal were based on increasing the pumping of well #5 by 96,000 gpd. The results indicate that under these conditions, during maximum pumping conditions, a drawdown of less than 3 feet could occur at the nearest domestic well.

GA2000G002/1 - Town of Grantsville, P.O. Box 296, Grantsville, MD 21536, has applied to appropriate and use an annual average of 112,000 gpd and 186,000 gpd during the month of highest use from one new well in the Purslane Formation. The water will be used to supplement their existing water supply and to provide public water supply to the Keysers Ridge area. The well is located 0.2 mile south of Alternate Route 40, 3.5 miles west of Grantsville, Garrett County, Maryland. Projections of Impacts to the resource and to neighboring water users were made using data from an on-site aquifer test. The results indicate that during periods of maximum use, a drawdown of three feet or less may occur at the nearest known neighboring well.
